For these complaints take Simmons Liver Regulator. It keeps the stomach clear and prevents any of the above poisons from getting in the system, or, if there already it will drive them out, no matter how strongly rooted or long-standing, and you will again have good health and be happy.

Have you a pain in the side, back or under the shoulder-blade? It is not rheumatism but dyspepsia. Take Simmons Liver Regulator.

Does your heart throb violently after unusual exertion or excitement? It is not heart disease, but indigestion.

Take Simmons Liver Regulator.

"As a matter of conceived duty to humanity I wish to bear my testimony to the failing virtues of Simmons Liver Regulator. If people could only know what a splendid medicine it is, there would be many a physician without a patient and many an interminable doctor's bill saved. I consider it infallible in malarial infection. I had, for many years, been a perfect physical wreck from a combination of complaints, all the outgrowth of malaria in my system, and, even under the skillful hands of Dr. J. P. Jones, of this city, I had despaired of ever being a well woman again. Simmons Liver Regulator was recommended to me. I tried it; it helped me, and it is the only thing that ever did me any good. I persevered in its use and I am now in perfect health. I know your medicine cured me and I always keep it—a reliable 'stand by' in my family."—Mrs. P. T. Ray, Camden, Ala.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

There chance not in thy place by accident.

Mayor Washburn of Chicago, has followed up the good work begun in nominating Major McLoughry by closing the gambling dens of the city. He sent for Chief of Police Marsh and asked him if it was possible to suppress gambling. Marsh answered that he thought it was. "Then," said the Mayor, "I want you to detail two men to tell the owners of the gambling houses to close their doors. If they open them again I will have the houses raided and furniture destroyed. I expect your men to do the work honestly. If a newspaper reporter finds a house open this evening I shall ask for the officers' resignation." The order was carried out, every gambling house in the city, commencing with the high-toned ones and going down to the low dives, was warned that unless closed that night they would be forcibly closed next day. All apparently obeyed, and the good people of the city most heartily thank Mayor Washburn for the stand he has taken.

Mrs. Anna Garland Spencer has for some time held the position of pastor of the Bell street Chapel, Providence, R. I., without ordination. Last week she was formally ordained and installed. Her husband, Rev. Wm. H. Spencer, took part in the ordination services, which were very beautiful. Rev. Wm. J. Potter, in delivering the ordination sermon, said: "Women have been ordained to the ministry in several of the religious denominations in this country, but it is believed that this is the first instance of the ordination of a woman in Rhode Island. But the state, which under Roger Williams gave a hospitable refuge to Anne Hutchinson, who was the first woman preacher in New England, through not ordained—the state that gave her a home and freedom when she was banished from Massachusetts for heresies, should not be behind in that progress which recognizes woman's fitness for the pulpit; and the pastoral 'soul's liberty' which Roger Williams preached and Mrs. Hutchinson practiced, has no distinction of sex."

TRIALS ON A STREET CAR.

A Conductor's Version Not Agreed With by a Woman Who Interrupts His Tale.

A conductor on an Eighth avenue car going up town one evening when the cold weather was recently here, wore a smile so pronounced that no one could resist asking him the cause of his jubilant spirits.

"Why," said he, as he pulled the strap to let a woman with a big basket get off the car, "I've had nothing but a picnic all day. I started out this morning with an open car, but after the first trip most of the open cars were recalled and closed cars substituted. I've had a closed car all day."

"Do you much prefer a closed car?" he was asked.

"Well, rather. Say, it's nothin' but fun to run one of these cars alongside of one of these big carryalls for a couple of months," remarked the collector of fares as he became so much interested in his conversation that he failed to hear a stout man ringing frantically for him to stop the car.

"Here, you see, I have only a nice little select crowd to look after, and I can see every motion or signal that is made, while on one of the open cars I must be on the lookout constantly for some one who wishes to get on or off the car, and I must bounce off about every minute to help a woman on, and a woman never knows where she wishes to sit, and usually walks the whole length of the car before making up her mind that she desires the vacant seat furthest from her. In fact," he continued, growing confidential, "women cause me all the annoyance I have on the road. They have more little tricks to bother a conductor with than any one can imagine. Now, in the first place, if they have a mutilated coin in their pocketbook the conductor is sure to get it. May as well take it and say nothin'. We are sure to get it some way.

"Another common occurrence is when a woman has three or four pennies in her purse and a $5 or $10 bill. She will hold the pennies in one hand and the bill in the other for the conductor to take his choice—the pennies or change the bill. Another pleasant little pastime which a number of the women patrons of this line have is to pay their fare with five pennies and manage to drop two or three of them on the floor in handing them to the conductor. They seem to enjoy seeing us try to fish the money out of the slats which cover the floor of the car. If a man has an idea of getting married he should work on this railroad for a while, and I think he would get so discouraged with women that he would be glad to remain"——

"Why didn't you stop the car at Twenty-ninth street, as I asked you?" demanded a woman with blazing eyes and voice quivering with rage at this juncture. "Do you think I want to walk the whole length of the city? I'll take your number and have you discharged to-morrow, you careless, heedless fellow," she said, as she swept off the car.

"See there, that is what I have to put up with all the time. Just because I carried that woman a couple of blocks too far she abuses me like a pickpocket," sighed the conductor with an injured air, as he went into the car to ask a man to stop smoking.—New York Tribune.

How Skunks Are Caught.

You fasten a piece of meat to a stout piece of cord and let it hang over the fence. Pretty soon an animal comes along and sniffs the meat. "Fe, fa, fo, fum; I smell the blood of an Englishman," says the little ogre, and straightway fastens his teeth in the meat. Now straightway lift him up. He will not drop for full a minute. If you have a bag handy drop him into it. And Mr. Clark says that you can safely put half a dozen in together, throw the bag over your shoulder and march off with them.

Another way permitted by the insurance companies for handling the animal is to lift it up by the tail. It will do you no harm. But let it once catch your eagle eye then look out for trouble. There is a whitey spot on the face of every skunk, and that is the danger signal.

"When you see the whites of the British eyes fire!" said old Put, at Bunker Hill.

"When you see the whites of the polecat's face then run," say I. It is a very safe experiment.—Cor. New York Herald.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

A Week's Record of Events at the National Capital.

[From the News' Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, May 25, 1891.

Close observers of the game of politics were not surprised to learn that it was charged that both the old party managers had paid emissaries among the delegates to the Cincinnati convention. It would be extremely difficult even where all the delegates were regularly accredited from legitimate organizations, and simply impossible in a convention where many of the so-called delegates represented only themselves, or at best paper organizations, to keep out crooked men. And I happen to know that more than one man went to that convention from hereabouts who has on past occasions handled crooked political money.

* * *

If I desired to be personal it would be possible to name one of the delegates at that convention who has been named as a member of the National committee, and who, in at least two campaigns, while ostensibly connected in a conspicuous manner with one political party, was in the pay of the campaign committee of another. Dates and amounts paid might in this case be specified if it were necessary. He belongs to the fortunately small class of men who live by the sale of their honor.

* * *

There are grave differences of opinion here as to the effect that the work of the Cincinnati convention will have upon the campaign next year, but all agree that it depends entirely upon the actions of the great Alliance convention which is to be held on the 22d of next February. If that body endorses the work of the convention just closed, then will the third party have assumed mammoth proportions; if not it will not be a factor in the fight.

* * *

A newspaper man with more imagination than good judgment started the rumor that Mr. Harrison snubbed Senator Quay when that gentleman was here last week. The cause of this conclusion was that after sending for Mr. Quay to come here Mr. Harrison found himself so busy that he sent the Senator a note requesting that the interview be deferred to a more convenient time. Bless your soul, Mr. Harrison may not be in love with Quay, the man; but he will never think of snubbing Quay, the boss, who controls the Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican national convention.

* * *

Mr. Harrison and all the members of the Cabinet, except Blaine and Noble, who are away, seem to be as busy as beavers, but it is probable that they are only catching up with the routine work that accumulated while the President was away. At any rate if they are engaged in any work of national importance they are keeping it very quiet. It is known that Mr. Harrison is awaiting the return of Mr. Blaine before taking up the important matters pending before the State department. The new Peruvian minister is more than anxious to obtain the same trade reciprocity for his country that Brazil now enjoys with us, but he has been informed that nothing can be done until Mr. Blaine returns.

* * *

Several times this week it was rumored that Mr. Harrison had asked or forced resignation of Commissioner of Pensions Raum, but he hasn't up to date, and Gen. Raum, who claims that his son and himself are victims of a conspiracy, says that he does not intend resigning unless asked to do so. It is believed here that Mr. Harrison would gladly accept the resignation of Gen. Raum, but that he, for some cause, dislikes to request it. If the resignation under a cloud of Gen Raum's son from the Pension bureau shall succeed in breaking up the practice, all too common in Washington, of officials appointing their sons, daughters and in some instances their wives, to important positions under them, it will prove a blessing in disguise for the public service, as this practice has grown to be an evil of mammoth proportions.

Spring-time stirs up the bile. Simmons' Liver Regulator removes it.

A little girl who is just learning to read short words takes great interest in the big letters she sees in the newspapers. The other evening after she had kept her mamma busy reading the advertisements in the newspapers to her she knelt down to say her prayers. "Dear Lord," she lisped, "make me pure," then she hesitated and went on with added favor a moment later, "make me absolutely pure, like baking powder."

Summer-time brings colic and Stomach ache. Simmons Liver Regulator cures it.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

An incident is related by Mrs. S. M. I. Henry which has many parallels in the experience of white ribbon women and suggests, as statistics never could, the far-reaching and beneficent influence of their work. It is as follows:

"A young tobacconist came to me for the temperance pledge. A few days later I took a marked copy of the book of Proverbs, and called upon him in his cigar store. After a few inquiries I handed him the little volume and said, 'Read a few verses in this book every day, and remember I pray for you.' He gave me a quick look, and turning about began fumbling among the boxes on the shelf as though I had asked for a box of cigars. After a moment he turned again toward me, and with moist eyes looked me frankly in the face, saying: 'Excuse me—you took me by surprise—thank you; nobody in the world ever prayed for me before.'

'Not your mother?' I asked.

'My mother never prays.'

'Then would you like to have me pray for you?'

'Indeed I should. I shall not forget it. I will read the book.'

'Well,' I said, 'you may know then that I shall pray for you; but when my prayer is answered you will be in a different business and a different man. Will you be willing to make the change?'

It was a moment before he replied. Then he said:

'The change would be for the better; yes, I should be willing to be anything that your praying would make out of me.'

I cannot take space to relate what followed; but the change came, and was for the better."

The brethren said, "Keep right on praying, sisters; you're in line of God's providence." But we never could understand it; how we were in the line of God's providence praying the saloons out of existence, and they were in the line of God's providence voting them in.—Rev. Anna Shaw.

Miss Sarah H. Henton of Lexington, Ky., is a writer for the largest New York syndicate and American Press Association, besides writing constantly for many periodicals. She takes a high rank among Southern women journalists.

Statistics give 6,500,000 women as the number who earn their own living by industrial pursuits in Germany; 4,000,000 in England; 3,750,000 in France; about the same number in Austro-Hungary; and in America 2,700,000.

Mrs. Jennie M. Lozier, M. D., Mrs. Vanderpool and Mrs. Townsend are elected to the board of trustees of Rutger College, and are the first women to serve on the same.

What you want is not to shut your ports, but to shut the doors of the saloon; and then you may open your ports as wide as you please.—Rev. P. S. Henson, D. D.

Miss Helen Reed, who won the Sargent prize at Harvard, is now literary editor of the Boston Advertiser and doing excellent work.

Little Anna, seeing a tree from which the leaves had fallen, said: "It is all worn out, isn't it, mamma."
