Jan uary Oil Report.

The January Pipe Line Report shows a reduction of 2,3000 barrels a day in January production of Pennsylvania oil, the decrease is 720,411 barrels. The shipments are in excess of the sums every month. The law of supply and demand must force the market up again in the very near future.

THIRTY DAYS WITHOUT FOOD.

Carrie Stives' Ducks Live from Jan. 3. to Feb. 2 Under a Snow Bank.

The Alma Hill correspondent of the Wellsville Reporter relates the following remarkable story: "Carrie Stives had five ducks, which disappeared on the night of January 3d and no trace of them could be found. It was thought they were sitting on the pond of water and had been drifted over by the snow and were given up for dead. On February 2 one of the little girls went out near the pond to shovel out the spring when she heard a duck quack. One of the ducks came swimming out where she had shoveled the snow away and on shoveling the pond open all five ducks were found. All but one were alive and able to fly out. They were drifted in 30 days without food. This seems to be incredible but can be vouched for, as the ducks can be seen paddling around, only seeming a little weak from their long confinement."

This hrm is the only one in Allegany county, so far as known, that shares its profits with its employes.

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach and wards off and overcomes disease. J. H. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chrisman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by the use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." L. A. Burrows, Andover.

STRUCK BY FLYER.

An Erie Employee Instantly Killed at Cuba.

Joseph Gifford, who had charge of the Erie system of interlocking switches in the Cuba yards, was struck instantly killed by west bound passenger train No. 5, Tuesday morning, at 10:30. The unfortunate man was thrown 50 feet, nearly every bone in his body broken and his skull badly crushed. Giffords mangled remains were taken into the tower, where Coroner H. E. Gillette held an inquest and gave permit to have the body prepared for burial. A pusher engine was standing directly in front of the tower, half a mile from the station, and as usual steam was being blown thru the pipes to keep them from freezing. It was at this point that Gifford was struck—the escaping steam and blowing snow prevented him from seeing the approaching train, and the noise of the steam and wind made it impossible for him to hear it gliding over the rails. It is probable, however, that Gifford saw the train an instant before it struck him, as an Italian who witnessed the accident says that Gifford stepped from between the rails on to the end of the tiers and then caught the death dealing blow from the engine, which threw his victim clear over the south switch into the ditch, a crushed and bleeding mass of flesh and bones. Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup. For sale by L. Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.

A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Susquehanna Valley Orphans' Home Investigated.

BOYS SAID TO BE NEGLECTED.

Witness Said That Caretaker Watson Thrashed 20 Boys in a Day and That a Six-Year-Old Was Beaten Until Blood Ran Down His Legs—Counter Evidence.

Binghamton, N. Y., Feb. 25.—A second hearing in the matter of charges of alleged gross cruelty and neglect against the management of the Susquehanna Valley Orphans' home was held here by the managers and assistant managers.

Further evidence of alleged illtreatment was added to the evidence of the previous hearing, when several inmates testified that they had been beaten with horsewhips and knocked down by Caretaker Watson and that no care was given the wounds thus received.

Witnesses were heard in an attempt to prove that the boys who told these stories of brutality are utterly untrustworthy, and four women attendants asserted that they knew of no abuses existing at the home. The trend of some of the evidence shows that an effort will be made to prove that the reports of cruelty were started by Wesley Buckley, a caretaker who was recently discharged, and that other officers at the home are influenced by jealousy against Superintendent C. E. Fuller and Caretaker Watson.

At the hearing Clinton Grandall, a recent inmate, testified that Carl Danfirg, agod 6, was beaten by Watson until the blood ran down his legs, and that on some days Watson thrashed 15 or 20 boys. Boys who made slight mistakes in the military drill, he said, were lined-up in rows and thrashed one after the other.

Instructor G. W. Boyce said that the boys were neglected and little attention is given by the superintendent to training them for future citizenship. The boys are lined-up with folded hands, he said, and the one who unfolds his hands is "tamed."

George Hacker, Fred Uttley, Harry Russell, Andrew Wright and Lynn Potter identified a big horsewhip, loaded at the butt, as one that had been used on them.

Miss Sarah McConnell, an attendant, said she had been called to dress a deep cut two inches long on a boy's leg, said to have been caused by a whipping. The wound bled profusely. Misses May Baldwin, Bernice Hayes, Minnie Osborne and Jeanette Appley and Nina Tennant, employees and attendants, denied knowledge of cruelties.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

Will Continue Fight For Statehood Bill as It Came From the House.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The Democratic senatorial caucus tnis afternoon adopted the two-state proposition for the admission of now states, as united by the Republicans.

Speeches were made in the caucus by Senators Clay, Bacon, Teller, Dubois, Simmons, Foster (La.), Bate, Morgan, Pettus and others. A Democratic senator who is a member of the committee on territories, on being asked for a statement of the reasons for rejecting the compromise proposition, made the following statement:

"It would be gross injustice to the people of both Arizona and New Mexico to join them in one state. From East to West, as railroads must be built, it would be 1,700 miles across them. The proposed state would be as large as Texas, and Texas is too large for its convenient government.

"Many Democrats feel that the Republican fight for statehood has not been sincere, they having used the statehood bill as a buffer to prevent trust discussion and legislation.

"The Democrats have stood for the statehood bill as it passed the house. They believe that each is entitled to statehood and they have stood loyally by the Republican minority in their efforts to give them statehood; but they will not inflict the injustice that probably never can be repaired of forcing the people of the two territories into a state so large that it would continue a burden they should not bear."

After the adjournment of the caucus the Democratic members of the committee on postoffices met the Republican members friendly to statehood and decided to ask the chairman of the two committees on postoffices and agriculture to withdraw the statehood riders which the committees have placed on two appropriation bills.

They also decided to continue the fight for the omnibus bill as it came from the house without amendment but not to antagonize appropriation bills or executive business with it.

MRS. FAIR'S FURS.

Articles Returned From San Francisco Are Not the Ones Appraised in Paris.

Paris, Feb. 25.—The investigation into the mysterious change of the furs of the late Mrs. Charles L. Fair was resumed before Consul General Gowdy. Four affidavits from San Francisco witnesses were read.

Chanel and Grunwaldt have made a written reappraisement of the furs returned from San Francisco. The document sets forth that the articles are Chinese sable worth together $270 and also specifically states that the articles are not those they appraised.

Mr. Gowdy considers that the evidence vindicates the forwarding companies. The evidence shows that the American consulate never had possession of the articles.

Consul Gowdy expresses surprise at the report published in United States that a considerable quantity of jewelry which belonged to the late Mrs. Ellen Gore had been stolen after her death here. He says she had no jewelry at the time she was shot in the apartments of a Russian singer.

Daughters of American Revolution.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The consideration of proposed amendments to the constitution of the D. A. R. took up the time of the congress at its night session. The only one to receive favorable action was that proposed by the treasurer general which provided that the incumbent of that position shall hold office until her successor has secured bondsmen, who have been duly accepted by the national board of management. The other officers are to hold over until their successors are elected. When the congress adjourned the amendment proposing a judicial board to which controversies shall be referred for adjudication was pending.

Several New Cases of Typhoid.

Ithaca, Feb. 25.—Dr. Daniel Lewis, state commissioner of health, arrived here to investigate the typhoid situation. He spent the day conferring with the city and university authorities and at night addressed a mass meeting of citizens. One death was recorded yesterday and several new cases, among them two Cornell students, G. B. Lull of Dehli, N. Y., and Clyde A. B. Leavitt of Bellaire, Mich. However, a score or more students returned to the university. This is the first indication that the tide of exodus of students is turning.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Secretary of the Navy Moody ordered a general court martial to convene at the navy yard, Pensacola, Fla., on or about March 6 for the trial of Ensign Ward K. The debate will be held in New York on March 26.

Trouble in Building Trades.

Schenectady, Feb. 25.—The building trades council representing all men employed in any of the building trades has made a demand upon Shaffer & Barry, the employers of William Potter, the expelled millinaan, for his discharge. The demand has been refused and the building trades council has decided that when the spring building season opens, all union carpenters, painters, masons, lathers, plasterers, etc., will refuse to work on any building on which Potter has been employed. It is expected that the employers will stand together, especially since the formation of the builders' exchange, composed of all building trades employers, and the result will be to tie up operations. Over 3,000 men are involved, whose average wages are $2.50 a day.

Lord Roberts has conditionally accepted the invitation.

Investors Considered as Partners.

St. Louis, Feb. 25.—On the plea that the turf co-operative investment companies are simply gambling schemes and that all investors are partners in the business and must have known the nature of the business, the first attachment suit of the many filed against John J. Ryan & Co. was dismissed by Justice Kleiber. The suit was to recover money invested.

Nervous Headache Breeds Insanity.

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief obtained. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headache. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mrs. D. W. Elston of 602 Church St., Elmira, N. Y., says: "Ever since I was a little girl I have suffered with good hard nervous sick headaches. They just made me sick all over—my eyes and neck would get stiff—it was awful. I tried everything with no relief. Some one told me of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and I got a box and they have acted wonderfully well with me and so quietly and easily—no disturbance. I am delighted with them as they of all medicines have the power to break up the attacks for me." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Med. Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Stock Exchange Member Found Guilty by Governing Board.

RESULT OF PETER POWER SUIT.

Stock Exchange Believed These Suits Were Conceived in Bad Faith—Defendant's Attorney Says Another Action Will Be Brought in Nassau County Where Mr. Weidenfeld Lives.

New York, Feb. 25.—Camille Weidenfeld, member of the stock exchange since 1890, was found guilty by the governing committee of the exchange of acts "detrimental to the welfare and interest of the exchange" and was suspended for one year.

Besides Mr. Weidenfeld the witnesses before the committee were M. H. Boutelle of Minneapolis, Parker C. Chandler of Boston and Herbert R. Limburger of this city, all of whom appeared as counsel or attorneys in the Peter Power-Northern Pacific litigation and of which the proceedings were the outgrowth.

The nominal complainant at the trial was William McClure, secretary of the exchange. The exact character of "the charges and specifications" against Mr. Wiedenfeld were not disclosed, but it was accepted as a matter of fact that Mr. Weidenfeld was regarded as the author and instigator of the Peter Power suits, and that the stock exchange believed these suits to be conceived in bad faith, at least.

Following the decision of the governing committee Mr. Limburger, speaking for Mr. Weidenfeld, said:

"We had information beforehand that the proceedings would take this course, irrespective of any evidence that might be presented. We prepared accordingly and have served Mr. McClure with a copy of complaint for adjudication in a court where Mr. Weidenfeld will probably have a fair hearing. Action will be brought in Nassau county, where Mr. Weidenfeld resides, so as to be reached more speedily for trial.

"Mr. McClure was the only witness against Mr. Weidenfeld. The governors of the exchange, so Mr. Weidenfeld declares, produced no papers or documents—no proof of any kind, so far as I can learn—against him. Mr. Weidenfeld appeared before the law committee of the exchange last October and nothing, so far as we know, was done by that committee. The finding of that committee was not given to the defense. We will bring other actions against the exchange and against the men back of Mr. McClure. The Northern Pacific litigation will go on as before and the appeal will be argued next May."

Mr. Limburger declined to specify the nature of the "other actions" or to disclose the identity of "the men back of Mr. McClure."

The complaint served on Secretary McClure charges that he "entered into a combination or conspiracy with one George Alfred Lamb and one or more other persons, (1) to vex and harass, by means of legal proceedings, the persons who were interested in bringing about the retirement of the whole of the outstanding preferred stock of the Northern Pacific Railway company and interested in having the corporation known as the Northern Securities company acquire more than a majority of the common stock of the Northern Pacific Railway company and of the preferred stock of the Great Northern Railway company."

The complaint goes on to say that "said charges were made and published by the defendant dishonestly, wilfully, maliciously, recklessly and in bad faith. Thereby the plaintiff was injured in his good name, reputation, credit, business and otherwise to his damage in the sum of $500,000, for which he demands judgment, together with the costs and disbursements of this action."

Mr. Weidenfeld was formerly a partner in the brokerage firm of Lawson, Weidenfeld & Co., the senior member being Thomas W. Lawson, the copper magnate of Boston.

A Lesson In Humility

How Little Johnnie Got a Lot of False Pride Out of His Heart

From "Letters From a Self Made Merchant to His Son," by George Horace Lorimer. By permission of Small, Maynard & Co., Publishers, Boston

I never see one of these fellows swelling around with their petty larceny pride that I don't think of a little experience of mine when I was a boy. An old fellow caught me lifting a water-melon in his patch one afternoon, and instead of cuffing me and letting me go, as I had expected if I got caught, he led me home by the ear to my ma and told her what I had been up to.

Your grandma had been raised on the old fashioned plan, and she had never heard of these newfangled theories of reasoning gently with a child till its under lip begins to stick out and its eyes to fill with tears as it sees the error of its ways. She fetched the tears all right, but she did it with a trunk strap or a slipper. And your grandma was a pretty substantial woman. Nothing of the tootsy wootsy about her foot and nothing of the airy fairy tribe about her slipper. When she was through I knew that I'd been licked—polished right off to a point—and then she sent me to my room and told me not to poke my nose out of it till I could recite the Ten Commandments and the Sunday school lesson by heart.

There was a whole chapter of it, and an Old Testament chapter at that, but I laid right into it because I knew ma, and supper was only two hours off. I can repeat that chapter still, forward and backward, without missing a word or stopping to catch my breath.

Every now and then old Doc Hoover used to come into the Sunday school room and scare the scholars into fits by going around from class to class and asking questions. That next Sunday, for the first time, I was glad to see him happen in, and I didn't try to escape attention when he worked around to our class. For ten minutes I'd been busting for him to ask me to recite a verse of the lesson, and when he did I simply cut loose and recited the whole chapter and threw in the Ten Commandments for good measure. It sort of dazed the Doc, because he had come to me for information about the Old Testament before, and we'd never got much beyond "And Ahab begat Jahab," or words to that effect. But when he got over the shock he made me stand right up before the whole school and do it again. Patted me on the head and said I was "an honor to my parents and an example to my playmates."

I had been looking down all the time, feeling mighty proud and scared, but at that I couldn't help glancing up to see the other boys admire me. But the first person my eye lit on was your grandma, standing in the back of the room, where she had stopped for a moment on her way up to church, and glaring at me in a mighty unpleasant way.

"Tell 'em, John," she said right out loud before everybody.

There was no way to run, for the elder had hold of my hand, and there was no place to hide, though I reckon I could have crawled into a rat hole. So, to gain time, I blurted out:

"Tell 'em what, mam?"

"Tell 'em how you come to have your lesson so nice."

I learned to hate notoriety right then and there, but I knew there was no switching her off on to the weather when she wanted to talk religion. So I shut my eyes and let it come, though it caught on my palate once or twice on the way out.

"Hooked a watermelon, mam."

There wasn't any need for further particulars with that crowd, and they simply howled. Ma led me up to our pew, allowing that she'd tend to me Monday for disgracing her in public that way—and she did.

That was a twelve grain dose without any sugar coat, but it sweat more cant and false pride out of my system than I could get back into it for the next twenty years. I learned right there how to be humble, which is a heap more important than knowing how to be proud. There are mighty few men that need any lessons in that.

It would be more creditable to the British government if, instead of revoking the application of the crimes act to certain counties in Ireland, the barbarous law were repealed altogether.
