Another week's sins to answer for.

• • •

Nineteen sixteen is jogging along.

• • •

Hail to the fellow who remembers to hail us.

• • •

Yes, Willie, you are a gentleman. Now live up to it.

• • •

Many a rising sun will go into eclipse after the June conventions.

• • •

If gasoline keeps on soaring it will soon be so high we will be rid of its stink.

• • •

A man's worst enemy is often a friend whom he has refused to lend money.

• • •

Every day is pay-day at this office. Trot right along and receive our thanks.

• • •

The fellow who hides his light under a bushel is putting the bushel to poor use.

• • •

Kick yourself as much as you like, but never let the other fellow do the kicking.

• • •

The more some women love their husbands the harder they pull the financial leg.

• • •

An editorial squib writer is a guink who manufactures smiles for everybody but himself.

• • •

An "eminent attorney" is the fellow who can lift your money without being called a thief.

• • •

If your thoughts are worth anything, speak up. The world may be the brighter for what you say.

• • •

The wise man picks his steps and rises in life. The fool sinks in the mire of his own foolishness.

• • •

If men's shadows were X-ray photographs—Phew! What would everybody think of everybody else?

• • •

You bet we are in favor of honest government, but we don't want it to interfere with us. You too?

• • •

Good advice is a valuable stock in trade, provided we make use of it ourselves before passing it along.

• • •

Between the war and the automobile the unhappy horse is kept continually sidestepping sudden deaths.

• • •

Funny thing happened the other day. A fellow sprung a joke on us that we hadn't heard twenty times before.

• • •

With all of the wisdom of this community we surely ought to produce at least one candidate fo the presidency.

• • •

Some men are great, others are near-great, but the greatest of all is the man who doesn't realize that he is great.

* * *

It is cheaper to pay for your own paper than to wear out shoe leather going over to your neighbor's to borrow his.

• • •

When a youth reaches a certain age he is fully convinced that the people of his home town are a bunch of mutts.

• • •

Did you ever see a scalawag who didn't consider himself a bright, brainy and shining example for his fellow men?

• • •

Speak softly, step carefully, act wisely and you may die happy. And once you are dead you may know more than the rest of us.

• • •

If Andrew Carnegie achieves his pretended desire to die poor it will not be because he blew in his millions on a bunch of gadding leg-pullers.

• • •

Yes, paint is a mighty useful article and much in demand. It is especially valuable in covering wagons, barns, fences and women's faces, and it beautifies everything it touches. Hurrah for paint!

Our "B. B. B" column always does the business.

WILL YOU BE MISSED?

Some of these days you, who are reading this editorial, are going to die and pass on to your reward—whatever that reward may be.

But will you leave a void behind?

Will you be missed?

The Creator has ordained that man must carve out his own career in this world and when he journeys to the great unknown he leaves behind him a record founded upon his own acts.

You may leave behind you a wife or children or other dependents. As you died by them in life so will their grief be gauged and tempered at your death.

Will they miss you?

In this town you have friends and business associates and perhaps many acquaintances. They know you as you are, as you have been for these many years. They have judged you living and will judge you dead.

Will they miss you?

In the banks and the stores and the offices and out upon the farms are people who have known you in the past and who know you to-day. As you have been so are you known to them now.

Will they miss you?

In the house of darkened windows, where sweet-toned music soothes the tired brain and the minister tells of the ways of a better life, are many people who know you for your acts and your deeds, for that which you have performed or have left undone.

Will they miss you?

In our homes are many little children who know you, who have passed you on the streets, who, prechance, may have been greeted with a kindly smile or wan a frown. They will remember you.

But will they miss you?

Even your faithful animals or pets know you as you are, and as you have been to them.

Will they miss you?

There is no place you may go, no point of the compass to which you may turn, but what people have known you, or will know you, and by all these you will be judged when you have passed away.

As you shape your career in life, so do you write the record by which you will be known after death.

Your family, your associates, your acquaintances, even your dumb brutes will remember you after you have passed on.

But will you be missed?

* * *

THINGS YOU DON'T KNOW

We of to-day often admire the knowledge displayed by our friends and our neighbors, and occasionally we may entertain a slight conception of that which we ourselves possess.

But we are not prone to speak of or to admit those things that we don't know.

For instance —

You don't know when the European war will end.

You don't know which side will be the victors.

You don't know what conditions will prevail in Europe after it is ended. You may surmise, but you don't know.

You don't know what effect it will have on this country when Europe gets down to business again.

You don't know whether the end of this war will mark the beginning of a world peace or whether it is the forerunner of a greater and more devastating conflict which will be waged between the old world and the new—between a combination of European nations on the one side and North, Central and South America on the other.

You don't know in the event of such a war, whether the Americas would continue to be free and self-governed countries or whether they would become mere overseas possessions of the kings and emperors of the old world. You may poo hoo, and swell out your chest and let the eagle scream, but you don't know.

You don't know what Congress will do about preparedness, for this cuntry. Yoou don't know whether it will do anything at all or not—for, truth to tell, Congress is all muddled up and don't know itself, for it don't know what you think or what you know.

Fact is, brother, we don't imagine any of us know much of anything about this phase of our national existence, for we have been too busy grubbing for dollars to give much heed to the present or future welfare of our country.

And, too, we don't know what the penalty of our indifference and neglect is going to be.

Now do we?

As The Editor Sees It.

We have entered upon what is predicted to be a year of great and unexampled prosperity for the American people. Unquestionably many communities and peoples will rise to the crest of the wave and reap to the fullest of the harvest of gold.

But will there be any for you?

All over this fair land, from the snow-capped fields of the Dakotas to the sun-kissed shores of Florida, farmers of every degree will thrive upon the riches that are to pour into our country from the nations of the earth.

But will there be any for you?

The manufacturer and the workman who create the goods we use, the wholesaler who distributes them, the merchant who retails them, all are hoping and planning and scheming for the most productive year in history and into every state and county and hamlet the flow of gold is expected to find its way.

But will there be any for you?

The woodsman who falls the trees, the millman who turns out the lumber, the architect who draws the plans, the contractor who erects the building, the laborer who does the work, all have their eyes fixed upon the promise of a golden future.

But will there be any for you?

The doctor, the lawyer, the teacher, the lecturer, even the editor—everywhere we turn the American hand is outstretched, for these millions in gold.

But will there be any for you?

Gold may come—it will come—in millions and billions.

But what will it leave in its wake? What will it bring to you?

Some who will profit by the great wealth that is to flood our country will use a portion of their riches in an amelioration of the condition of the poor; they will take sunshine into the homes of gloom, they will bring the smile of gladness to the faces of despair; the ones they will plant the seed of hope in the hearts of despair; they will be as God intended they should be honest, upright, kind and gentle, with a word of cheer and a helping hand for those upon whom fortune has failed to shine.

But what will you do?

Others will reap the harvest of mammon and will follow the God of the god of greed. The gold that comes to them will purchase the desires of lust, the pleasures of sin, and will pave with misery the road that leads to oblivion.

But what will it buy for you?

In our minds we see the gold that is wrung from the tears of Europe, strewing our land with smiles and with gladness, for gold is gold, and is the power that moves the world. It is more potent than the honor of man, than the chastity of women; it is the rock upon which the hopes of the future are wrecked; it lifts the lowly to high spheres in life, and it drops the exalted and the noble down from their pinnacles of greatness and bemires them in the slough of debauchery and greed; it is the source of more gladness and sorrow than all else the world of man has produced.

They tell us that nineteen sixteen is to be a year of gold—that this is to be a land of gold—gold everywhere, gold for everybody, glittering, shining gold.

But will there be any for you? And what will it do to you?

* * *

We have started down the year 1916, and are face to face with its problems. It may bring us much or little, as we choose. The question is, what do we choose? In the parlance of the street "It is up to us."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

In Memoryum of our departed sister, Mrs. Louise Cronk, who died January 5th, 1916.

Again that unwelcome yet relentless visitor, death, hath entered the portals of our lodge room and summoned a dear sister to the beautiful home beyond. Her zealous work in the interests of our beloved Order, and her life, laden with gentleness and kind deeds, has won for her the plaudit of the good Master and will cause her name to be cherished in the affectionate memory of our lodge.

And WHEREAS, the all-wise Father hath called our beloved sister to the New Jerusalem, where "happily she hath heard the signal of her release on the bells of the holy City, the chimes of eternal peace." And she having been a faithful and ardent worker in the teaching of Friendship, Love and Truth, therefore be it

RESOLVED, That Andover Rebekah Lodge, No. 303, in testimony of its loss, and to express its Rebekah love, be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family of our beloved sister our sincere condolence, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

And when a few more days are flown,
And the last lingering sand is gone,—
With Jesus night;—
How blessed then to lay me down and die.

It seemeth such a little way to me
To that strange country, the Beyond
And yet, not strange, for it has grown to be
The home of those of whom we are so fond.

ANNUAL CONVENTION

Christian and Missionary Alliance Meeting in Wellsville, Beginning on Wednesday, Jan. 23.

The Annual Convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will be held in the Pearl Street Church, Wellsville, Sunday, January, the 23rd, through 26th, with afternoon and evening services. Four speakers are expected: Rev. B. F. Armstrong of Scranton, Pa.; Rev. J. S. Moore, of Lancaster, Pa; Mrs. G. B. Minter, from Central China; Miss Mary Compton of India. Mr. Armstrong and Miss Compton will open the convention on Sunday, Mr. Moore and Mrs. Minter arriving Monday, the entire party remaining until the close. This will be a fine opportunity to hear the Word expounded in a capable manner by men of much experience, touching some of the frequently neglected themes of the Bible. Mrs. Minter and Miss Compton can speak of conditions in the foreign fields from their experience gained during their years of service. A general invitation to these meetings is extended to all who are interested in the Word and Work of God.

The pastor, R. H. Smith, 57 Martin street, will be glad to furnish any additional information regarding these meetings.

Print a want ad—repeatedly if necessary—and find the position you want.

GAS SHORTAGE CAUSES SUFFERING

Dunkirk and Other Places, Dependent Upon Gas For Fuel, Shivers With the Cold.

Dunkirk, Jan. 17.—The situation growing out of the shortage of gas was even more acute to-day, in spite of the fact that the manufacturing plants have been cut off and hundreds of coal, wood and oil stoves and kerosene lamps put into use for heat. From all parts of the city some reports of keen discomfort and, in some instances, actual suffering. The temperature is close to zero.

Stoves of all kinds, both new and second-hand, are in great demand, and coal dealers are doing the most thriving business they have enjoyed in the last ten or twelve years.

Operations were suspended at the plant of the Continental Heater Company to-day, but the suspension will not be for long as arrangements have been made for heating the ovens with coke. Coke ovens are being installed at the local plant of the United States Radiator Company. The melting department of the Atlas Crucible Steel Company will remain closed until arrangements can be made to replace the gas with some other fuel. The other departments of the steel plant are running as usual.

At the hospital to-day the old method of sterilizing surgical instruments with carbolic acid was resorted to.

Fredonia to-day reported low gas pressure and widespread discomfort.

The Frost Gas Company tonight gave an option on its property at Fredonia, Brocton and in this district to Henry Doherty & Co., of New York. It is said the price agreed on, if the option is taken up by February 1st, is between $500,000 and $600,000. Henry Doherty & Co., bought the South Shore Natural Gas & Fuel Company a few weeks ago.

The Frost Company has been selling the Brooks works of the American Locomotive Company between 2,000,000 and 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas per month. Today notice was served on them that the service would be discontinued until the pressure is again sufficient to supply small consumers.

RAILROAD WAGES

It is a debatable question whether the railroad or the agricultural industry is the larger in the United States. In some respects agriculture is a greater economic quantity; but as an employer the railroad is in a class by itself and leads by a considerable margin, paying out in wages for high-class and skilled labor many milions of dollars.

Some interesting figures, just issued by the Erie Railroad, throw an interesting light upon this subject. In 1914 it paid to its 38,782 employes wages amounting to $28,297,226, an increase in the total amount of wages paid over 1902 of 70 per cent, while the increase in the number of employes was 26 per cent. The gross operating revenue for 1914 was $60,983,575. Thus it is shown that the employes receive nearly half of the receipts.

Wages have advanced, more men are employed, and the prices of everything have increased at the same time. It cost the Erie, for example, $3,351,567 for fuel in 1914, an average of $1.65 per ton, while in 1902 the average cost was $1.36, an increase in 1914 of 21 per cent, in cost per ton.

Incidentally, it is worth while mentioning in this connection that Erie taxes have increased 81 per cent. from 1902 to 1914.

That business is good, for the first time since 1907, and unless the railroads are unduly "regulated" and annoyed by unreasonable legislation, prosperity is in sight for employer and employe alike.

SPOILING THE COUNTRY LAD

The Back to the Farm movement might be arrested if the following letter written by a seven-year-old boy, a pupil in a country school, revealed the true condition of most farm lads and were read by city boys who listen with eagerness to their fathers as they describe the Golden Age when they have made their little pile in town and go back to the country. The youngster referred to was asked to write his teacher a letter describing his daily life and occupation. His efforts were as follows:

"You have wanted to know what i do after school. I pick the eggs and get in the wood and i feed the chickens and get hay down for the horses and cows and i get in the straw and i bed them and i milk some of them and i have to give the cats some milk and i water the chickens and i get in some water in to and i bed the horses and cows and i set the table and i put the knives and forks on then i put the plates on and then i put the saucers and then i put the cups and then i put the sugar on the table and then i put the jallie (jelly) on the table and then i put the spoons on and then i put the honey on the table and then i put the sauce on the table and i pick up chips and i take and set the things in the seller."

The letter does not stop there, but the chief item of news in the remainder is that the young author ultimately goes to bed, after which there seems to be nothing more to write about. He surely deserved a good night's rest, but we are wondering if his father will be fool enough to blame the kid if some morning he calls him early to get up and go for the cows and finds that his little trundle-bed is empty. If that boy lands in a big city and becomes a useless dependent here, it will not be his fault, it will be his father's.
