County Fair Receipts Drop $1,500

In spite of some $1,500 drop in receipts the Allegany county fair did not operate at a loss this year, according to Secretary Stillwell. Anticipated lower receipts prompted fair officials to practice economies in this year's fair, which offset the lower income.

The premium list was about $40 more than a year ago with $8,139.75 paid out this year compared to an even $8,100 last year.

The total receipts were about $9,500 with Uncle Sam receiving $556.57 in Federal taxes.

Most of the loss in income was found in gate receipts altho concessions returned about $200 less this year than a year ago. Grandstand receipts were substantially the same.

Directors hope to receive 100 per cent in State aid this year in view of the fact that a total of 16 fairs were not held this year which operated last year.

Officials have reached no decision as to whether or not the fair will be held next year.

Motorists Urged To Protect 1942 Auto Plates

With current license plates slated for use next year, motorists are urged by State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles John Splain to keep their plates in good condition.

Commissioner Splain advocated the application of one or two coats of clear spar varnish as the best method of protection.

"I would suggest that motorists apply the varnish to both sides of their present plate as well as to the cover strip when that is issued," he said. "This will serve to protect the plate against weather conditions."

In pointing out the necessity of keeping license plates in good condition for identification purposes, Commissioner Splain said no duplicate plates can be issued and that persons whose plates are lost or stolen must present an affidavit before the Bureau of Motor Vehicles will issue new plates.

According to the Division of State Police, at least 95 per cent of the 1942 license plates displayed at the present time are in excellent condition.

Girls Needed For Milk Testing

The New York Dairy Herd Improvement Association is experiencing a shortage of milk testers, and a two weeks' training school is now planned for every month in each county to train testers.

The course will include Babcock testing, D. H. I. A. records and their application, health, feeding and breeding. Before being approved for association work at the end of the school, applicants must pass an examination for license in Babcock testing given by State inspectors. While the regulations require that applicants for a Babcock testing license be at least 18 years of age, the State Department has waived this rule and may now issue a license to persons under 18 years who are otherwise qualified, and who are able to pass the examination, according to Mr. Tailby.

The next school will be conducted Sept. 14 to 26. Cost of the course will be a laboratory fee of $2.00 plus room and board which can be had for $8 to $12 per week.

New Game Syllabus Ready For Distribution

Publication of a new and improved edition of the syllabus of fish and game laws is announced by Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne. Designed primarily to keep New York State sportsmen posted on open seasons and bag limits of fish and game species, the new booklet this year, also contains a wealth of information of vital importance to sportsmen.

Commissioner Osborne in announcing the publication of the new syllabus said that distribution would be made in the usual manner and that sportsmen would receive their copy when purchasing licenses.

In this year's syllabus, an effort has been made to answer many questions uppermost in the minds of sportsmen. For instance, drawings on the cover depict the male and female pheasant, ruffled grouse or partridge, woodcock and quail. Shown in flight, the reproductions will help sportsmen to know his birds.

Copies of the new syllabus have been received by Mrs. Bloss, local town clerk, where they can be obtained by calling at the town clerk's office.
