Farmers' Club at Alfred.

The April meeting of the Farmers' Club was called to order in Firemen's Hall, Alfred, Tuesday, the 5th, at 2 p. m., by President C. F. Moulton. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. P. Hunting, and the address of welcome delivered by Rev. B. C. Davis, President of Alfred University, which was responded to by President Moulton.

The following is President Davis address:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I esteem it an especial privilege to welcome, in behalf of the citizens of Alfred, the Farmers' Club of Allegany County to our village. Situated as we are in a farming community we appreciate most heartily the work that the Farmers' Club is doing for the farmers of the county and for the citizens of the village as well, for all prosperity of the community must find its basis in the prosperity of the farmers of the community. Although somewhat removed from the duties of the farmer I nevertheless feel a personal interest in the occupation, and having spent my early life as a farmer, I feel to a considerable degree identified with the farming interest of the community.

Alfred as a college town has special reasons to welcome thrift on the part of our farmer friends. This may be apparent for various reasons. First, as a college town we believe in intelligent labor; that no successful labor is merely expenditure of muscle; and that the more of intelligence and culture there is connected with labor the more successful the labor will prove. We are seeking continually to make our educational work of so practical a nature as to render assistance to all classes of our citizens, no less to the farmer than to the professional man. We therefore rejoice in any advance which is made in your peculiar occupation along the lines where intelligence enters into more successful attainments. We welcome you again because in a history of sixty years, experience has shown that our best material for educated and influential men and women comes to us from the thrifty farm homes and farming communities. We are especially reminded today of the progress which has been in all departments of industry in the past generation. Today we have barred in this village one of its oldest citizens, born 84 years ago, when but three rude houses represented all that is now found in our thriving village. Thus any of us who are inclined to be pessimistic and feel that but little progress is being made need only to enlarge the scope of our vision and remember that the world's progress is measured by centuries and not by days. Such a view can teach the most skeptical that progress, even in our own county, is indeed most phenomenal. Inasmuch as there has come to be such a vital relation between the college and the successful farmer, I may be pardoned for a reference to a plan of education which is being impressed upon the public just at this time in an unusual way. A few weeks ago a distinguished college President in New York State made an address in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City in which he declared that the average college course had become "too expensive" for the average American youth. Luxury and extravagance have been admitted into college life in such a manner as to render the average parent unable to give his children a liberal education in the average college. This address struck a note in accord with the reform in which Alfred has taken the lead throughout its entire history, viz: in reducing unnecessary expenses of a liberal education and making it possible for every young man and young woman with earnest purposes and willing hands to secure, even unaided by parents, a liberal education. Competition and the various causes of the recent hard times, compel more people than ever before to recognize the justice and the merits of such a reform movement in education. The fact that we know such efforts are appreciated by the farmers of Allegany county enables us, still the more heartily, to welcome you all to our midst.

F. S. Place spoke on "The Farm and Garden," when the Question Box was opened, and the subjects of the best breed of cattle to raise, the best fertilizers, and other kindred subjects interesting to farmers, were freely discussed.

The evening session was opened with prayer by President B. C. Davis, followed by a recitation by Miss Jessie Mayne. Next came a lecture by Prof. G. W. Cavanaugh, of Cornell University, which occupied the balance of the evening.

The next meeting of the Club will be held at Whitesville on the first Tuesday in May.
