We have a letter from Young Hickory sent for publication to which the writer has not signed his or her name. In accordance with our rule as to unsigned letters we shall have to withhold publishing the same.

One of the principal reasons assigned for our campaign in the Philippines is the duty we owe to the uncivilized peoples of the earth, to extend the blessings of civilization to them. Would it not be wise for us to withdraw our civilizing forces from abroad and concentrate them in Kentucky? Evidently Aguinaldo and his countrymen are as well fitted for self government as the majority of the Kentuckians of to-day; for in that state the majority and minority alike are a disgrace to our civilization. The apologists who try to throw the blame for existing conditions on the other side are knee deep in the crime, for both sides are to blame. The Kentucky theory is wrong at the foundation. It is the general determination that the bullet and not the courts shall be the final arbiter of disputed questions. Neither party is willing to accept the decisions of their own courts as final unless in their own favor, and the final appeal is to an armed mob. A little good behavior manifested now by either party to the disputed election would place them in an unquestioned majority in a future election, but neither seems disposed to yield. Here is a field for missionary effort. The Turks in Armenia are not more bloodthirsty than professed Christians in Kentucky.

America's Heroes of Peace. When the storm howls on a winter night, and from the shelter of a comfortable home one hears the snow or sleet driven against the window-pane, it is natural, at least for those who live near the sea, to think of the perils to which sailors are exposed. With this thought may well be blended some recognition of the brave men who are waiting to give succor to vessels in need. From nearly two hundred stations on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, and from 70 more on the Great Lakes and the Pacific, the crews of the life-saving service patrol the coast on such nights, keeping a sharp lookout for vessels in distress. It rarely happens when a ship goes ashore anywhere along the extended American seaboard that the life-savers are not at hand to give aid. Few know their names, and their daring deeds are seldom mentioned in the newspapers; but they are as ready to risk their lives as if their names were to be gazetted for bravery. In 1898, the serious work of the crews began early with the great blizzard which swept the Atlantic coast late in November. Nearly two-thirds of all the recorded loss of life on the coast for the year occurred in that single storm. Altogether the crews saved nearly 4,000 persons who were on board of vessels which had met with some disaster; and they saved also more than $6,000,000 worth of property. There is little danger that the heroes of war will be denied the glory which their courage merits, but these heroes of peace, who risk and sometimes lose their lives to save others, deserve recognition also.

Two years ago a well was drilled on the Hays farm, about 7½ miles northeast of Independence, Kan., in search of oil. The well was put down by some eastern company, presumably the Phoenix Oil company of Buffalo, N. Y. Situated in a secluded place along a little creek, very few people ever knew the well had been drilled. What was found in the well will never be known, for, as soon as it was completed, it was immediately filled up with rock and dirt. Lately, however, gas has begun to issue from the well, and now it comes forth in considerable quantities. It is not far from a little station on the Santa Fe railroad, and this winter the tramps have taken possession of the place. They have piled rocks around the well and turned a part of an old store over it, on which they cook. They have put up a shanty, and in the center of the room their stove heated it with natural gas. The advantage of natural gas has made the place a favorite rendezvous for tramps for miles around, and they have quite a colony there.

After the American battleship Maine was blown up in the harbor of Havana, February 15, 1898, the bodies of the victims of the explosion were buried in the cemetery at that city. Recently they were disinterred by orders of the government and brought to this country, to be buried in the national cemetery at Arlington. Brief but impressive services took place December 23, when 150 coffins containing the bodies were lowered into their graves. Chaplain Chidwick, formerly of the Maine, conducted the services for the Roman Catholic church, and Chaplain Clark, of the naval academy, read the Episcopal service. President McKinley, Secretary Long, Admiral Dewey and Capt. Sigsbee and Commander Wainwright, formerly of the Maine, were among the witnesses of the ceremony.

A divorce in seven minutes is the world's record and Colorado as the scene of it has eclipsed the pace of all the other states of the union. The South Dakota record is 16 minutes. The fast-time divorce case here was instituted in Ouray county. The grounds for divorce were desertion, nonsupport and cruelty. A jury was drawn, two witnesses were sworn and examined, the jury was retired and returned with a verdict all in a space of seven minutes from the time the case was called for trial on the docket.

One night recently, says the Swea City (Ia.) Herald, a large turkey climbed from the ridge of the roof on Ole Peterson's house to the top of the chimney and sat down, so as to get the benefit of the heat from the fire below. Early in the morning Mrs. Peterson and two children sleeping in the room where the hard coal stove was located were discovered to be deathly sick and the room was full of gas. The turkey was soon discovered and driven off, but it took quite awhile for the sick to recover.

This Baby talks before Weed. ...from the Denver Republican undoubtedly entitles the inventor to a conspicuous place in the front rank of fertile-minded geniuses of the country: "Game Warden Frank Fenn, of the office of the state game commissioner, sent a man to Boulder to investigate complaints that three owners of sawmills on the Middle St. Vrain creek were allowing the dust from their establishments to flow down the stream to the detriment of the trout and other fish in the water. Mr. Fenn says that he has warned the sawmill owners heretofore and will prosecute if the evidence warrants it. 'However,' said Fenn, 'it is an ill wind that blows nobody good, and even this killing of fish by filling the stream with sawdust is a lucky event for some of the people in the vicinity, I am informed. Just to-day I received a letter from a prominent citizen in the locality saying he hoped I would take no steps to stop the dumping of sawdust into the creek, as it was helping scores of poor persons there. It seems that the fish swallow so much of the sawdust that when they die they are so filled with wood that they do not sink but are washed ashore. After they are dried the poor of the neighborhood come along with big hampers and baskets and gather up these sawdust-filled fish, which they use for firewood. There is more than sufficient firewood there to keep the poor in fuel during all this cool weather. I am informed that in this manner many persons who would otherwise have been charges on the county have been able to struggle along.'"

A wedding is so overpowering an event that few persons will venture to blame John Kurtz, hotelkeeper, of Queens Borough, who, according to the New York Press, forgot to invite to the ceremony his fellow-members of the volunteer fire company. But when the best of everything in the hotel had been placed before the wedding guests, and everybody was feeling happy, Kurtz remembered his fellow-firemen, and concluded that the wedding could not be complete without them. So he turned in a fire-alarm. When the firemen came dashing up to the hotel with the fire apparatus, Kurtz stood at the door and invited them all to come in. At first the boys were indignant, and some of them wanted to turn the hose on the bridegroom; but they relented, and accepted the invitation.

Photo Speech ...Preacher. A sensation was created in Raleigh (N. C.) church circles a few Sundays ago by Rev. J. M. Jordan, who, according to the News and Observer of that city, has preached the Gospel in nearly every Baptist church in the state at one time or another, and has been in Raleigh for some time, superintending the publication of a history of his life and labors. Sunday morning he attended the First Baptist church, and was called on by Dr. Carter, at the conclusion of his sermon on "Christian Growth," for a prayer. And such a prayer it was! The venerable preacher, with bowed head, seemed to be talking familiarly with God, telling Him of the sins of the people, man by man, and asking the Almighty for mercy and indulgence till they could be called to repentance. "O God," he said, "thou knowest the majority of Christians are like wasps—larger at birth than at any other time. And they grow smaller and meaner as time goes on. Thou knowest, also, that a great many members high up in the church drink beer and whisky and go to dances. O Lord, they call them germans, but that's just to fool the people. They are regular old dances—nothing in the world but fiddling and dancing. We read the paper this morning and there they had printed the names of all the gals and their partners. O Lord, have mercy on these miserable rascals. Then, O Lord, a lot of them are giving card parties around here, going into saloons, visiting places of ill-fame, and playing the devil generally. No wonder that when they ask a sinner to turn from his evil way he replies: 'Go 'way, you old devil, we know you.' We heard only this past week of a prominent church member who had been drinking beer ten years and who went home and found his little boy dead drunk and as limber as a dishrag. O Lord, have mercy on these miserable sinners, who pretend they are following Thee, but who go around with their breath smelling like an old swill tub. We have a little grandchild, Lord, we were thinking of sending to school, but, O Lord, this is such a degraded, fearful wicked city, that we are afraid to send her here. Then there is a college here where the young men are encouraged to give dances. O Lord, have mercy on the president of that institution. Thou knowest there are only a few righteous people in Raleigh. All the rest are wicked, and were it not for these few good people the whole city would go to the devil. God would rain down fire and brimstone and destroy it like Sodom and Gomorrah."

You never know what form of blood poison will follow your constipation. Keep the liver clean by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers and you will avoid trouble. The famous little pills for constipation and liver and bowel troubles. Benedict & Van Noy.

"I have used DeWitt's Little Early Risers, and find them the best pills on the market. They are mild, yet effective and quick to act. They leave no misery. They are simply perfect," writes Hardy Souger, Veedersburg, Ind. They cure constipation and liver and bowel troubles. Benedict & Van Noy.

One Minute Cough Cure, cures.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

A good preacher, fine singer. Everybody invited. Bring your "Best Hymns" singing books. 7:30 o'clock week nights.

Daniel Sharp Ford, founder, editor and proprietor of the Youth's Companion, is dead. Mr. Ford's name is entirely unknown to the readers of the Companion, as his name never appeared in its columns. The name "Perry Mason & Co.," which is known everywhere, was a purely fictitious one. Mr. Ford left a fortune of over $3,000,000.

The Mission Band of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. Matie Robinson, Tuesday evening, Feb. 13th. The following will be the program for the evening: Roll call; fact about China; reading, "Dr. and Mrs. Baldwin in Tso Chow," Clara Warfield; reading, "Light shining in dark places," Alice Mead; reading, "Tel Sonu," Mrs. Matie Robinson.

Donations. Mrs. C. Greene has generously loaned his magnificent picture of Andersonville prison to the Andover Free Library for a limited time. Explanations printed at the bottom enable one to fully understand its details. Have you any object of historical or scientific interest to the public? If so place it in the Reading Room. Open every evening and Sunday afternoon. Books loaned and returned Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and Saturday evening.

A good man is the man who impresses the world with his goodness; leaves the impression behind him. Same way with good printing. It is successful. "Little boy blue, go blow your horn," says Mother Goose, and from infancy we learn that it is only by publishing our wants that we get what we want. If many a man in the blues only blew his horn a bit—a decent tune on a decent horn—that horn might turn out a cornucopia. It has in the past. But a Bowery tune on a tuneless trombone is like a poor ad seeking customers by poor printing. It is a long way to the cornucopia with such printing.

Roch Bundy returned Sunday evening from the West, where he has been visiting for the past three months. He made headquarters at Portland, Oregon, while there. He reports a fine time, and is quite enthusiastic over the climate and country, especially of California, yet we notice he never fails to say that old Allegany county is a pretty good place after all. Although we have our sudden changes in temperature, and some severe and long winters, there is that about the county that makes one always have a kind thought of her, no matter where they may be, and are glad to see the old hills standing as sentries to guard the peace and welfare of its citizens.

Hornellsville Tribune: About a year ago Postmaster D. S. Merville of Bliss made application through Congressman James W. Wadsworth of Geneseo for rural free delivery from that office. An Irishman bought a return ticket to St. Louis and didn't come back. What did he save? A German saved up enough money to go to Germany, and then bought a schooner and didn't go. What did he save? An Italian bought an eight-day clock with the second hand gone. It gained 55 minutes every hour, how long did it take to let a whole Dago? These problems are easy to figure out, compared to "who sells the best Jewelry, and does the most satisfactory watch work?" One guess is all you've got, and if you guess H. Mourhess, Andover, N. Y., we will do the rest. We are still selling jewelry, watches, clocks, optical goods, etc., cheaper than it was ever sold for in this city.
