We hear many complaints from farmers of Greenwood and vicinity about the wholesale destruction by caterpillars, amounting to almost total extinction of their maple forest trees. The country had already been cleared up to the limit," and what timber there was left was rapidly appreciating in value and the loss at this particular juncture is irreparable. Millions of dollars worth of timber in the state is going to feed worms. What is the cause of this rising up of these pests that threaten such wide spread disaster? Why this sudden increase to an overwhelming army? The song birds that once made our woodlands ring with music are now seldom heard. They were the farmers' ally to hold in check the too rapid increase of the lower orders of life on which they fed; and we are now learning from experience that the extinction of bird life means a corresponding diminution in vegetable life. Still the carnage goes on. By the free use of insecticides, small areas may be protected. A farmer may spray his potato field with poison, but such protection cannot be extended to forest growths that have taken the century to mature. To day there are but few varieties of vegetable growth that are of value to man, that under the best cultivation would reach maturity without protection from some form of life that is waiting to destroy. Who is to blame for present conditions? All who aid or abet in the killing of birds. Not alone the sportsman who kills for amusement. Not alone the hunter who slays the birds for the profit found in marketing wings and heads for ornamental purposes. Not wholly the lady who brings the dead songster to adorn her Easter hat, but all are principals in one of the most unreasonable crimes of the age. How can the evil be remedied? Where ought a reform to begin? First, with each individual that has a consciousness of wrong being done to our feathered friends. Let such person do nothing to encourage their slaughter. The lady who wears a bird on her hat cannot excuse herself on the ground that she did not kill it, for the consumer or wearer is the one who creates the demand; in fact, hires it done. Think of a Christian woman who has rigorously observed the lenten season in pious meditation, coming out in the world at its close dressed in a hat which she has converted into a bier for a dead bird. It hardly seems consistent with the life of Him who said that not even a sparrow shall fall without your Father's notice. When farmers fully realize the importance of action in the matter they will move from selfish interest in their own defense. It seems almost incredible that in this enlightened age that the present conditions could exist, but it seems that fashion is stronger than the dictates of humanity or the argument of personal interest.

Convenient Postage Stamps. Everyone who carries stamps knows what a nuisance it is to do so. The stamp will stick together. Special cases to hold them and oiled paper to keep them apart, with other devices, may be tried, but they are inconvenient and unsatisfactory. The Washington Star says that the third assistant postmaster general is considering a plan to save the annoyance of stuck-together stamps. The plan is to bind the stamps in little books, with alternating leaves of stamps and paraffin paper, the books of pocket size and will contain stamps to the value of 2 cents, 48 cents and 96 cents. The government will pay two dollars a thousand for making these books and will charge an advance of one cent each, which will yield a handsome profit on the enormous sales. The book containing 12 two-cent stamps and costing 25 cents would probably be the most popular. The idea is a sensible one, and it is strange that it had not been thought of before. The discouraging thing about carrying one of these books, though, is that the man who carries stamps is always the victim of the man who doesn't have any but wants to borrow Government Forestry Work. Investigation of the causes, effects and means of prevention of forest fires in the west, will be carried on by the government division of forestry next summer in Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, South Dakota. Besides field study, designed chiefly to discover means of preventing the evil, the division is making a historic record of all important fires which have occurred in the United States since 1754. Although yet incomplete, says the official bulletin, this indicates that the annual recorded loss by forest burnings in the United States is, at the very lowest, $20,000,000. It will probably run far above this sum, as the Pacific coast states have been only partially examined. Accounts of over 5,500 disastrous fires have been obtained in the 17 states already examined. Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin have suffered the most severely. These records are taken chiefly from newspapers, and where it has been possible to compare them with the figures of practical lumbermen, it has been found that the tendency of the press is to underestimate the damage.

Education the Modern Moses. To-day we have common workmen who approach the wise men of 200 years ago. Our public schools have created an enthusiasm for education that is pathetic, writes Newell Dwight Hillis, in Woman's Home Companion. Recently a foreigner exclaimed: "It is too late for me to learn! But my children, they shall not be ignorant!" Our working people understand that so long as they remain ignorant the ecclesiastical despot will oppress them, the political despot will spoil them of their treasures, the industrial despot will tyrannize over them. To escape oppression the toiler becomes informed. Education is making the poor man's muscle so powerful that despots cannot afford iron enough to reach around his wrist. To-day for the first time in history knowledge is becoming universal. Agitators are being succeeded by educators. People see that intellect and ability are the real creators of wealth. Education is the modern Moses leading the people out of the wilderness into the promised land of happiness and plenty.

Butter in the United States. The convention of butter makers that was lately in session at Lincoln, Neb., represents one of the most important classes of men in the United States. The extent of their interests was shown by the attendance of 4,000 delegates. Each year the convention has grown in size and influence, largely through the belief that united effort on the part of the butter makers is necessary to check the increased production of oleomargarine. It may be considered doubtful whether the efforts against the imitation of butter products have had effect. Certainly, it is true that the production of oleomargarine is increasing largely. At the same time, the dairy interests gain in prosperity. In 1840 the dairy products of the United States had an annual value of $70,000,000; last year the production was not far from $500,000,000. The farmers in 1899 owned 15,990,113 milch cows, and, although this is less than during some previous years, their value was $474,233,925, which is much greater than ever before in the history of the United States. In fact, the last ten years has seen a steady annual increase in value, in spite of the competition of imitation dairy products. The dairy interests of the rest of the world do not compare with those of the United States. Mulhall estimates that the American production is about one-fourth that of the world. The American cows produce 20,000,000 tons of milk annually, which is used in the creameries and butter factories that nowadays do most of their work by machinery, the old-fashioned churn being nearly as archaic as the spinning wheel.

Farming Items!

From Cholera During the Past Year.

The Germs of this Fatal Disease are Lurking Everywhere. Thousands of Dollars Saved by This Wonderful Discovery.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars has been lost in the poultry business on account of the devastation among the flocks, caused by cholera, roup, gape, and other fatal diseases. There have been many remedies advanced, but none seem to be so successful as the American Poultry Mixture. This will cure chickens in the last stage of cholera and roup, and is excellent for gapes. Do your fowls suffer from violent diarrhœa, dropping of the wings, stupor or excessive thirst? These are the first symptoms of cholera. Cholera is a germ disease and being infectious spreads rapidly through the entire flock. Take time by the forelock; don't stop to experiment with unreliable or untried remedies. Use this mixture at once and the sanitary measures they recommend in connection. Don't give the fowls up. Cholera is a terrible disease but this remedy cures it every time. It is also guaranteed for roup, which can be told by hoarse breathing, swelled eyes, discharge at the nostrils, resembling catarrh. Fifty dollars is offered for any case the Mixture will not cure. If some of your fowls are diseased it will prevent the rest from catching it. Try it. It is cheap, reliable and effective; a scientific preparation, goes more than three times as far as any other remedy; does more good than all of them combined. It is used and endorsed by the most experienced and largest breeders of plain and fancy poultry in all parts of the world. The manufacturers guarantee every package or refund purchase money. If your druggist don't sell American Poultry Mixture, he's behind the age. In that case send $1.00 for sample box to American Mfg. Co., Terre Haute, Ind. 2

The bicycle, the automobile and the use of rubber tires upon family carriages are great helpers in the good roads improvement. America's railroad system is so complete that this country has rather neglected its highways, by comparison with the older countries of the world, but influences are now at work which promise to effect great changes.

Monday wasn't much of a day for heavy-weights at the depot, but there were eight gentlemen weighed there while waiting the arrival of train 3 in the morning. The average weight of the eight was 217 pounds, the heaviest weighing 248, and the lightest 198.

Mrs. Z. A. Barrett of Nunda was nearly cremated alive Friday. She started up stairs with a lighted lamp, and either fainted or fell, falling the entire length of the stairs. The oil caught fire and burned her badly. Her face and hands are one mass of blisters and burns, but the physicians think she will recover.

About forty of the friends of Mrs. Arthur M. Mingus gathered at her home on South Hill Friday evening, for a surprise party to her, it being the 41st anniversary of her birth. A very enjoyable time was had, and upon leaving, the company left a beautiful dinner set as a kind remembrance to her of the friends assembled.

News from the hospital at Hornellsville in the case of Mrs. Johnston is that all danger is practically over from the result of the operation in the cancer case which was noticed in the NEWS of last week, and the patient is slowly convalescing, and will perhaps be able to return to her home and family during the present week.

Judge S. M. Norton of Friendship granted a hearing Saturday, at Attorney Earley's law office, to the proceedings brought by some of the heirs of the estate of A. Porter, to have a change in the administrator of his will. The complainants finished their testimony and the case was postponed for two weeks, when the defendants' side will be argued.

It has been remarked that there may be some hopes of a fellow who gets a "gag" and disturbs the citizens with his boisterous ways in the small hours of the morning, for he has a chance of sobering up. But there is no such hope with a fool that is sober, and disturbs neighbors' rest at or after midnight, even if he be coming home from a church social.

Miss Minnie Horan, who has been visiting her uncle, Ed. Dean, at Hackensack, N. J., returned home Tuesday evening on train 1. Mr. and Mrs. Dean were contemplating a visit to Andover this week, but Mrs. Dean, who had been suffering from Bright's disease for about a year, was suddenly taken worse, and died Saturday morning. She was buried Monday.

The following important ruling of the Treasury Department regarding cancellation of revenue stamps is the latest: In addition to writing or stamping thereon, with ink, the initials of his name and the date when affixed, the person cancelling a documentary stamp shall mutilate said stamp by cutting three parallel incisions lengthwise through the stamp, beginning and ending one-fourth of an inch from the ends thereof.

A dispatch came to S. J. Fowler this afternoon with the sad intelligence that his mother was dead. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler will start to-morrow for Sidney, N. Y., where the funeral will be held Saturday, at the home of her son C. A. Fowler. The interment will be at Afton, N. Y.

Colonel Charles O. Shepard, commandant of the New York State Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Bath, has been removed from office by the unanimous vote of the six remaining members of the board of trustees. This action was the result of the charges preferred against him, which charges, in the judgement of the board, were sustained. Col. Andrew Davidson of Cooperstown, Deputy State Treasurer, has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

We have heard a few fish stories in our life, and maybe, perhaps, indulged in a few; but when Delos Remington gets started about his hens, especially the variety of White Plymouth Rocks, we throw up the sponge. He came into the NEWS office with an egg from one of those breed of hens, in his overcoat pocket the other day, which he measured, in our presence, 12½ inches around it the long way. The egg can be seen at our office. Who can beat that?—at measuring, we mean.

There are lots of men who think they can edit a newspaper. Rev. Chas. M. Sheldon of Topeka, Kan., is one of them. He tried it last week. He put into his paper things that interested himself regardless of whether they would interest others or not. He may be a good preacher, but he certainly is not a good editor. His idea was to show what kind of a newspaper Jesus would publish were he on earth to-day. We are of the opinion that if Jesus were here to-day he would steer clear of the editor's chair.

D. E. Corbin of Friendship died suddenly at the residence of a friend at Seneca Falls a week ago Saturday, of heart disease. In company with his brother, H. A. Corbin, he had just completed a trip through the South, arriving at Seneca Falls March 3d, and would soon have been on his way homeward. He was 42 years of age, and was interested in business in the hardware line at Friendship, Angelica and Belmont. He is survived by a widow and five children, two brothers and one sister.

The Wellsville home talent troup, advertised to appear at Prest's Opera House last Friday evening, to present "Pauline," failed to show up. As near as we can learn they got into a jangle with their manager, Arthur Randall, and smashed. At any rate one of the Wellsville papers burned them terribly. The cake for the cake-walk prepared by E. G. Smith for the occasion was raffled off, but we can see no way Landlord Miner of the American House can get even on the 60 suppers he prepared Friday night by order of their manager, unless he takes it out of someone's hide.

Quite an enthusiasm was shown in the post-office Monday morning when John Conwell received and opened a letter from "Ould Ireland," containing a nice bunch of Shamrock sent him by some friend there. The letter was mailed at Killybegs, Ireland, the 7th of March. The plant was well preserved, and a number who never before had seen Shamrock were glad of this unexpected opportunity. It is a trifoliate plant, resembling our white clover somewhat, and is used as a national emblem by the Irish. The legend is that St. Patrick once plucked a leaf of it for use in illustrating the doctrine of the Trinity.

Herman Jackson Badly Hurt. While trying to bind a load of rig timber on to a wagon yesterday, in the Warfield woods, Herman Jackson met with a very severe and painful accident. He had wrapped the chain around his load and placed the binder underneath as is the usual manner of binding a load, but upon putting his heft upon it the binder slipped and let him over backwards, striking upon a crowbar which was sticking up beside the load, the bar penetrating his thigh and rectum. His case is considered very critical.

An Old Bachelor

is the most miserable of men. How do I know? I've seen them. YOU need a wife—you'll need a wedding ring—an 18K solid gold ring. I have them. All sizes. Engraving nicely done.

Did You Know that

COATS BRO. never had so many chairs, couches, parlor and chamber suits in stock in the history of this establishment as at present? and if you just call you will be readily convinced of this fact.

EVERYTHING HAS GONE UP!

But these goods were purchased before the late rise in the price of furniture, and owing to this fact we will give our customers the benefit from now on.

A large supply of FEATHERS and feather pillows constantly on hand. Mattresses of all kinds and at bottom prices.

Call and see those Brace Arm Cane Seat Chairs at $1.00 each, and bargains on high grade furniture.
