Misses Alfa and Blanche Parshall spent last week with friends in Hornellsville.

We wish to call the attention of our highway authorities to the dangerous condition of the walk leading from Main street to the railroad station for pedestrian in the night time. A step off the south side would precipitate a traveler into a cellar or off a high bank, and in case of injury the town might be called upon to settle. It is more dangerous since train 4 now reaches Greenwood some time after dark. It should be put in to a railing before some unsuspected stranger gets a fall. A light on the subject would also be a good thing.

An outside company has offered to put down a gas well at or near the head of Christian Hollow, if they can lease 800 acres of land. That amount ought to be readily secured.

Sunday School Lesson.

Lesson for the International Series for December 20, 1908. Parable of the Pounds. Luke 19:11-27.

[PREPARED BY REV. C. LEFFINGTON.]

THE LESSON TEXT.

(Luke 19:11-27.)

11. And as they heard these things, He added and spake a parable, because He was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear.

12. He said therefore: A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.

13. And he called his ten servants, and delivered them ten pounds, and said unto them: Occupy till I come.

14. But his citizens hated him, and sent a message after him, saying: We will not have this man to reign over us.

15. And it came to pass, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

16. Then came the first, saying: Lord, thy pound has gained ten pounds.

17. And he said unto him: Well, thou good servant, because thou hast been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.

18. And the second came, saying: Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19. And he also said likewise to him: Be thou also over five cities.

20. And another came, saying: Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin:

21. For I feared thee, because thou art an austere man; thou takest up that thou layest not down, and reapest that thou didst not sow.

22. And he said unto him: Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked servant. Thou knewest that I was an austere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping that I did not sow:

23. Wherefore then gavest not thou my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required mine own with usury?

24. And he said unto them that stood by: Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.

25. (And they said unto him: Lord, he hath ten pounds.)

26. For I say unto you: That unto everyone which hath shall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath shall be taken away from him.

27. But those mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Occupy till I come, one of us shall give account of himself to God. —Rom. 14:12.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

This lesson in circumstance and surroundings as well as in our Gospel record immediately follows the last. Jesus was speaking to the same people and at the house of Zacchaeus concerning that He had gone to be a guest with a sinner, but He was also speaking to a great multitude who had accepted Him as the Messiah and were expecting "that the kingdom of God should immediately appear." He was traveling toward Jerusalem, was only 15 or 20 miles from that city, and the multitude expected Jesus was there, now, and there to establish His earthly reign. The parable was a warning to them. Jesus, like the nobleman, was to receive His kingdom, indeed, but, also like the nobleman, He would have to go away to receive it; that is, He was to die. The nobleman, we are to understand, was not to receive some distant kingdom, but was to go to some distant place where the chief authority resided in order to be made king over his home province, where he would reign. The object of the parable was to teach that we expected Jesus to immediately found an earthly kingdom how to wait in faithful, patient service for the coming of the kingdom.

LESSON ANALYSIS.

The Nobleman and His Kingdom...Vs. 11-12
The Ten Pounds.....Vs. 13-25
The Accounting.....Vs. 16-26
The Rebellious Citizens.....Vs. 14-27

The Nobleman and His Kingdom.—As explained in the introductory paragraph, the nobleman was to be king not over a distant kingdom, but over the province which he was leaving for a time. The length of his absence was left an indefinite period.

The Ten Pounds.—Certain of his cares had to be shouldered by others during this absence. Like a wise man, he did not entrust the whole to any one servant, but divided the work share and share alike among ten servants. There is one interesting point about this parable that is not brought out in the similar parable where one servant was given five pounds, another two, and a third only one pound. Here every man had only one pound. Different men of different abilities used this pound. No complaint was made that the pound was not enough for the abilities of the servant, but the greater ability was so used to make more of the pound which were entrusted to his care.

One man didn't put his pound to any use at all. He kept it and returned it. As far as his honesty was concerned, he had done all that could be found fault with. He had done what he had been told to do. The nobleman had said: "Occupy till I come." He meant that it should be used and invested. The nobleman had not said anything about how much should be returned. He was merely to make the best possible use of it. Had he lost it in a legitimate way he could could have been found; but he had not obeyed his master. He had made no use whatever of his talent.

The Rebellious Citizen.—The reference to the citizens who did not want the nobleman to be king over them and protested against his authority was meant as a warning to the enemies of the kingdom Jesus come to establish. Jesus' kingdom was surely to come on earth. Some time right will ultimately triumph. The entire destruction of the powers of evil is the only logical out-
