Scott, at Friendship, is a lady nearly 80 years old, has just finished about 50 sections of a silk quilt on which she has been working a few weeks past. For phenominally industrious old ladies Friendship takes the laurel.

A Weak Stomach

causes a weak body and invites disease. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures and strengthens the stomach and wards off and overcomes disease. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Chriesman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and run down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by the use of Kodol, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefited me, and after taking four bottles I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." L. A. Burrows, Andover.

Belmont Man Assigns.

From the Reporter

D. A. VanCampen made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors yesterday to B. P. Mapes. He has been in the grocery and bakery business here for nearly two years, and has many friends who will regret to hear that he has to succomb to the pressure of the hard times that seem to have forced him into the course that he has taken. There are no preferred creditors and everything is open and above board. The bakery department will be greatly missed by his many customers in that line.

$40,000 Contract.

Clark Bros. of Belmont have closed a deal with parties from the state of Washington to equip with machinery one of the largest sawmills on the Pacific coast. The contract involves about $10,000 and is the largest job that ever went out of the shops. It is conceded that Clark Bros. shops have the best machinery of any in this country.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will do them good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has saved many children from croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup. For sale by L. PROFIT

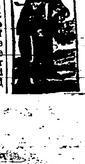
The matter of feed is of tremendous importance to the farmer. Wrong feeding is loss. Right feeding is profit.

The up-to-date farmer knows what to feed his cows to get the most milk, his pigs to get the most pork, his hens to get the most eggs. Science.

But how about the children? Are they fed, according to science, a bone food if bones are soft and undeveloped, a flesh and muscle food if they are thin and weak and a blood food if there is anemia?

Scott's Emulsion is a mixed food; the Cod Liver Oil in it makes flesh, blood and muscle, the Lime and Soda make bone and brain. It is the standard scientific food for delicate children.



Send for free sample.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

STEAMER ON A REEF.

Passengers Had a Perilous Experience.

BROUGHT OFF IN LIFE-BOATS

Quebec Liner Past on Rocks Off Bermuda—Vessel a Total Loss—First Boat Launched Dashed to Pieces Second Attempt More Successful and All Passengers Reached Tug.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Feb. 11.—The Quebec Steamship company's steamer Madiana, Captain Frazer, which sailed from New York last Saturday with a party of excursionists for a special cruise around the Caribbean Islands, went ashore on the reefs off this island at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The passengers had a thrilling experience: The ship is a total loss, but all on board were rescued and brought safely to land, after a perilous trip in lifeboats from the wreck to a tug standing a mile off. The mails and the passengers' baggage were also saved.

According to statements made by those on board, the Madiana was threading her way in the night through the narrow channel between the coral reefs which lead to Hamilton harbor when she struck a reef one and a half miles northeast of North Rock.

No explicit explanation is yet forthcoming as to how the vessel went on the rocks and the only information obtainable from the officers is that the light which indicates the channel for some reason could not be seen.

All the passengers were in their bunks when the Madiana struck the rocks, but the shock of the impact awakened them and they rushed on deck, the majority of them without attempting to dress.

Anxious Time For Passengers.

Considerable alarm, though not a panic, prevailed among the passengers when they found that the vessel was hard on the rocks, but the officers went among them and calmed them, although a number did not venture below again to seek other clothing.

A part of the crew did not share the coolness of the officers but the latter soon restored order among the troublesome seamen. Distress signals were sent up and the passengers passed an anxious time during the latter part of the night.

The Madiana listed heavily in the night and when morning broke lay broadside to the wind. The passengers, many still scantily dressed, were huddled together on the hurricane deck and the sea breaking over the steamer drenched them to the skin.

As soon as the news of the wreck became known here government and other tugs proceeded to the scene to endeavor to render assistance. A heavy sea, however, was running and they dared not approach too closely to the reef on which the Madiana was pounding. For some time no communication with the Madiana was possible.

The tug Gladiafen stood about a mile off awaiting an opportunity to assist, but it was not until 11 o'clock in the morning that it became possible to effect a rescue.

The crew of the Madiana launched a boat, but it could not live in the sea then running and was dashed to pieces against the steamer's side. A second and more successful attempt was made a little later and some of the passengers were lowered to it and, after much exertion, the boat succeeded in reaching the Gladiafen.

The Madiana's other lifeboats were then launched in succession and the remainder of the passengers and the captain and crew gained safely the salvage tug.

Passengers and Mail Landed.

By the prompt action of Engineer Nelson, who had the Madiana's bulkheads broke through, the mails and the passengers' light baggage were taken out and brought in the last boats to the Gladiafen, which landed the passengers, crew, mails and baggage here in the afternoon. The weather moderated somewhat during the morning.

Jos ph K. Crofut, of Hartford, Conn., one of the passengers, was interviewed. He said:

"I was in my bunk when the shock of the steamer's stranding awoke me. I at once hurried out and rushed on deck, being the first passenger to reach it. The other passengers streamed from below immediately afterwards. There was no confusion among the officers or the passengers. The officers faced the situation coolly and quickly reassured the passengers. The crew, however, who were mostly foreigners, became disorderly at first, but discipline was soon restored.

"Finding that the center of the ship was firmly fixed between two rocks and that there was no immediate danger of her breaking up, the passengers gained confidence. We remained on deck until we saw the tug Gladiafen approaching. It lay about a mile off, not being able to come nearer on account of the heavy sea.

"About 11 o'clock one of the Madiana's boats was lowered, but before any one could get into it it was smashed to bits. The other ship's boats were then launched with better success. The passengers were attached to ropes, the women first of all, and lowered into the lifeboats. It was a dangerous journey to the Gladiafen the boats' crews had to pull through the heavy seas, but no mishap occurred and we were all safely embarked on the tug. The officers and the remainder of the crew with some of the passengers' light baggage followed us. The wreck was abandoned and we were landed here."

Theodore W. Noyes of the Washington Star, Otis H. Luke of Boston and many other passengers confirmed the particulars given by Mr. Crofut and emphasized especially the fact that there was no panic on board. In fact to illustrate the coolness displayed by the officers and passengers in spite of the danger and discomfort of the situation, a passenger said:

"It all passed off as though it were a part of the program of the cruise."

HANNA'S PENSION BILL.

Mr. Cullom Says in His Opinion No Such Bill Can Pass.

Washington, Feb. 11.—The house adopted the conference report on the department of commerce bill by a vote of 251 to 10. One Republican (Littlefield, of Maine) and nine Democrats voted against this action. Several Democrats took the position that the "Nelson amendment" to the bureau of corporations was a fine and in effectual attempt to provide the machinery for corporation publicity. Mr. Mann of Illinois on behalf of the Republicans contended on the contrary that it was a better measure of publicity that had been presented in any other bill.

Mr. De Armond of Missouri in a brief but exceedingly caustic speech relative to the bill recently introduced by Senator Hanna to pension the ex-slaves precipitated quite an interesting debate. He denominated the bill a "curious evidence of the prevailing tend of politics," which was more valuable as a piece of political maneuvering than as a piece of prospective legislation.

The introducer of the bill, he said, announced that he was not a candidate for the presidency, but from the same authority came the announcement that there were no trusts. The exact facts could, he said, be balanced in the public mind after a study of both statements. The negro delegate, he said was an important factor in Republican national conventions and there was nothing like making preparations in good time. It was an interesting game and those not concerned could watch it with equanimity.

It was a farce, he said, but still farces had their solemn aspects. And it was sobering to think of the old negroes in their cabins in the south giving up their small earnings until the time came when they would turn for relief to their natural protectors—the white people of the south.

Mr. Cannon, in reply, treated Mr. De Armond's remarks lightly, calling attention to the fact that Senator Hanna's bill had been introduced "by request."

Mr. Richardson of Tennessee treated the matter very seriously. He said that companies were already being formed and circulars being sent out to ignorant colored people by unscrupulous adventurers and he thought both sides should join in an assurance to them not to invest their quarters and dimes in this chimerical scheme.

Mr. Cannon responded that all should understand, rich and poor, white and black, cultured and ignorant, that the government promised to all alike equality of opportunity and under it each must work out his own salvation.

Mr. De Armond was not satisfied with this statement but asked for a more specific assurance and in reply Mr. Cannon stated with emphasis that if the ignorant were being imposed upon they should be undeceived—that in his judgment no such bill could or would pass.

In the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Senator Cullom, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, said yesterday that he had decided to give the Panama canal treaty preference when an executive session long enough to consider any of the pending treaties can be secured. His reason is that the option of the United States on the franchises and other canal property of the French Panama canal company expires March 4 and because of the announced determination of Senator Morgan to talk at length on the treaty. Mr. Cullom said he will move an executive session to take up the treaties as soon as the consent of the advocates of the statehood bill can be obtained. They are still in a position to prevent executive sessions of any length which would prevent discussion on the statehood bill.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

PEOPLE WHO CAN'T SLEEP.

Many people go to bed—not to sleep, but to think—to ramble and toss—to get up, walk about until tired Nature gives way and a few fitful hours of sleep are obtained just before dawn—a sleep that does not rest—a sleep from which one wakes weary and tired, wholly unfitted to take up the daily routine of household, shop or office duties. That this condition goes on uncared for is almost criminal, when the well known, time tried and sound powers of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to give restful nature sleep have been so fully proven in such cases.

Mrs. James Hennessy of No. 517 7th street, Olean, N. Y., says: "Indeed I can recommend Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. I was all played out—could not sleep, and had the most awful tired feeling day and night. I was just miserable. Some one told me of the Pills and I got them. I used up the box and have not had a minutes trouble since. I am all right in every way. I sleep and work well and feel full of energy and vigor. I think the medicine the best all round and nerve tonic I ever took." 50 cents a box at dealers, or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. GIFT FOR CARNEGIE LIBRARY.

The Babcock Estate Makes Liberal Offer to City.

The F. G. Babcock estate of Hornellsville has made a proposition to the Common Council of that city that they purchase the late residence of Mr. Babcock on Church and Genesee streets for use as city building. The house is one of the largest and was at one time the finest residence in the city. The lot is very large and would furnish plenty of room either for a court house or city hall, which it is believed the house would be converted into, while the barn would make a good police station. In addition to all this there would be plenty of room on the lot for a new Carnegie library.

A Tale of a Typewriter.

A quaint tale of a typewriter is told by an Anglo-Indian. An English judge in India, an expert on the typewriter, used it for the taking of judicial notes.

The machine was taken into court, when a certain novelty was imparted to the proceedings by the click of the keys and tinkle of the bell. The prisoner was found guilty and sentenced.

Promptly he appealed on the ground that instead of listening to the evidence the judge had whiled away his time by playing on a musical instrument.

Mean Advantage.

On attempting to question a loquacious patient one day the late Dr. Sands was irritated beyond all endurance. After vainly endeavoring to stem the torrent of speech, he said sternly:

"Madam, let me see your tongue. That's good. Now keep it there while you hear what I have to say to you."

It may be only a coincidence, but it seems somewhat significant that just at this time the German government should make an exhaustive report on the condition of its navy. It is shown, according to the Berlin correspondence, that the kaiser can command the services of 74,000 trained sailors against 26,000 of the United States. Whether or not this statement is made for the benefit of the United States, it is an item which congress might do well not to overlook when the naval bill comes up for consideration.

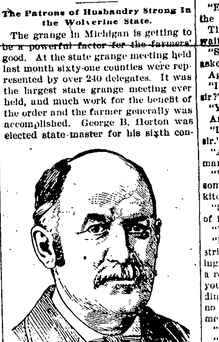
MICHIGAN STATE GRANGE.

The Patrons of Husbandry Getting in the Wolverine State.

The grange in Michigan is getting to be a powerful factor for the farmers' good. At the state grange meeting held last month sixty-one counties were represented by over 240 delegates. It was the largest state grange meeting ever held, and much work for the benefit of the order and the farmer generally was accomplished. George B. Horton was elected state master for his sixth consecutive term and received every vote cast. In his annual address, among other things, he called attention to the duty of the grange in educating the membership to the true work of the grange and made a strong appeal for every grange to equip and build its own hall. He believes all granges should be incorporated under the laws of the state in order to insure business efficiency. He spoke with much favor of grange fire insurance. Grange companies exist in thirty counties of the state, and the aggregate value of risks carried is about $10,000,000. The annual cost of insurance has been about $1 per $1,000. He wisely urged that only those matters be pushed before the legislature that have practically the united support of the Patrons of the state. The secretary's report showed that eighty-seven new subordinate granges had been organized, and twelve granges have been reorganized during the past year, that sixty-five counties have granges, and the total membership now is 33,476, a gain of about 10,000 the past year. The report also showed that the grange has assets amounting to about $22,000. The grange endorsed the attitude of President Roosevelt on the trust question, also the plan of the postal savings banks.



GEORGE B. HORTON OF MICHIGAN.

Illinois Grange Ideas.

We in Illinois confine the membership of our granges very closely to farmers. We admit schoolteachers when they teach in the country and are closely connected with country life, but we have never been in the habit of taking in members who are not eligible in the strictest construction of the term.

I notice a great deal of difference in that matter in the different states where the national grange holds its sessions. In New England especially there are many admitted to membership who are in business and professional life and not strictly farmers. This helps to make the national meetings interesting, as in each place we go we find a different variety of members and in consequence a variety in the work that is done.

In one section of the country one department of work is made prominent and another in some other state. This is, of course, aside from the great general plan of the work of the Order.—Mrs. Martha Wilson.

The Grange as an Educator.

The yearbook of the department of agriculture speaks of the grange as a factor in agricultural education as follows: The second half of the nineteenth century has witnessed a great awakening of the farmers of this country to their educational needs and opportunities. This has led to the broadening of the work and influence of the general agencies for their education. The state and local societies have been supplemented by great national organizations such as the Patrons of Husbandry which, besides doing a great deal for the promotion of their general welfare, have done much to quicken the desire of multitudes of farmers for definite education in matters relating to their art.

The Opportunity Once.

Sage Master Ladd of Massachusetts said he his annual address that "at no time in our history has there been greater need of farmers organizing. The day of successes by old methods has passed. New conditions and competitions confront us on every hand. Better methods and counter organizations are our only hope. If we succeed, it must be by our own efforts, and the grange has given us the opportunity."

Michigan is said to have more grange halls owned by subordinate granges than any other state in the Union.

The class at the Massachusetts Agricultural college is the largest in twenty years.

A "Tip" for the Waiter.

"Everything all right, sir?" asked the waiter.

The patron nodded, but still the waiter hovered near.

"Steak cooked to suit you, sir?" he asked again presently.

Again the patron nodded.

"Potatoes the way you like 'em, sir?"

"Yes."

Another period of silence.

"I hope the service is satisfactory, sir."

"Are you bidding for a tip?" demanded the patron.

"Well, sir, of course we get tips sometimes, and I've got to go to the kitchen for another plate, so—

"So you'd like a tip now, to be sure of it? Well, I'll give you one."

"Yes, sir."

"Here is the tip: I have a large, strident voice that I am capable of using. If anything is wrong, I'd let out a roar you can hear in the kitchen. If you don't hear it, you can know I am dining in peace and comfort, for it is my fun to have to pass verbal judgment on every mouthful I eat."

"But the tip?"

"That's the tip, and a mighty good one it is too."—Chicago Post.

The Origin of Johnycake.

No doubt many others besides the writer may have wondered how Johnycake came to be the name it bears. When a child, I settled it for myself by imagining John Smith, whom Pocahontas saved, had something to do with it. The cake, being made of Indian meal, became thus associated in my mind with the historical name. A writer in the Housekeeper says:

In tracing the term we find ourselves at a time antedating by many years steam cars and hotels on wheels, in an age when mankind depended entirely upon his four footed companions for transportation and had only saddlebags in which to carry his luggage. Taverns were few and far apart, and a lunch was always acceptable. Cornmeal, forming so large a part of the dietary in those days, held a chief place in making up the lunch. Wet with water and a little salt added, it was baked in a shape that stored away in the saddlebags nicely and was called Journey cake. This is the origin of our modern, unconventional Johnycake.

Grounds For Divorce.

A Salem (Mass.) man who sought a divorce proved, according to a Boston paper, that his wife tore the sign from his store, put into his tea something that made him vomit, threw his clothes downstairs, filled his shoes with cold water, put swill in his overcoat pocket, threw water over him as he went downstairs, put pepper in his bed, made him sleep in an attic, wouldn't do his washing, wouldn't mend his clothes, made him darn his socks and sew buttons on his shirts, spat on his toast when he was getting his breakfast, rocked in a squeaky chair for hours at a time to annoy him, put grease on his Sunday clothes, wouldn't let him have a fire on the coldest evenings so that he often had to go to bed at 7 p. m. to keep warm, and finally "she rubbed a butcher knife over his neck and threatened to blow out his brains."

The Worm Turned.

He loved her devotedly. He was also bowlegged. Both facts gave him pain at times.

He passed it by with a rueful smile when she merrily said that his affliction gave him such an arch look and that, after all, he was a pretty good sort when you got on to his curves. He bore it patiently when she referred to his walk as parenthetical progress. But he rebelled and broke the engagement when, she said her fat ankle through the wicked fetter by his legs.

"I may not be so over ornamented," said he, "but I emphatically object to being hobbled by so unwieldy a lady early in the game."—Smart Set.

A Quick Witted Waiter.

During inopportune season a party of diners seated themselves at table in an outdoor restaurant, and a man of the party took the bill of fare and began to study it. A mosquito lighted upon it and instantly lost its life by a quick blow from the man. Its little carcass remaining on the bill. Pointing to it, the man said to the waiter:

"Do you serve those on toast?" And the waiter promptly replied:

"They're on the bill, sir."—New York Times.

Sails the Heights.

Miss Nuritch—Yes, indeed, he was real attentive to me, and he's a nobleman too.

Miss Ascum—May Outwit met Him, too, and she declares he's an actor.

Miss Nuritch—Not at all. He assured me he was a lord admiral of the Swiss navy.—Philadelphia Record.

Frank as a High Stepper Now.

Frank Young, usually of a genial and happy disposition, now wears a 36rd degree smile. In fact his smile is so broad that standing in front of him one can hardly see either corner of his mouth, and if he keeps on the aforesaid corners may lap by on the back of his head. Do you think he has fallen heir to Vanderbilt's millions? No, not that. Has he got a ton of coal? No, that is not the cause of his mirth. Has he been indulging in hop soda? No, he never does that. The cause of his great joy is the arrival of a nine pound boy at his home Thursday by the name of Paul Redman. Mr. Redman will be 21 years old Feb. 5, 1924. We congratulate you, Frank, and wish the lad a long and happy life.

Ex-Policeman Joseph Cowdry, of 28 Rock street, Jamestown, N. Y., says: While serving on the police force exposure to all sorts of weather left its mark on me. I suffered from kidney trouble for some time; I doctored and tried recommended specifics, but obtained no permanent relief. My greatest trouble was a difficulty with the kidney secretions, and reading of the efficacy of Doan's Kidney Pills in such complaints, I procured them at Clark Bros.' drug store.
