Two Dinners, One Meal.

"I have a lawyer friend whose name is not Henry Peck, but it might be," said a city official.

"Last week my wife and I were invited to his house for dinner, and you never saw finer silver and china on a table, but food was at extreme low tide. My wife gave me a significant glance, and I saw the color rise to the cheeks of our host, but he played the agreeable without a word or look of disapproval.

"Both my wife and I were awfully hungry when we started for home, and she at once accepted my invitation to enter the first restaurant we saw for a good square meal. We were no sooner seated than we saw our dinner host come sneaking in and take a seat in an obscure corner.

"Make believe that we don't see him," said my wife, with a woman's tact. We did make believe, and, the funny part is, so did our late host. By the friendly aid of a mirror I saw when he first observed us the color come to his cheeks, as it had at his own table. He turned as far from us as possible and ate as though he were not enjoying his meal very much."—New York Herald.

Bronchitis

"I have kept Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my house for a great many years. It is the best medicine in the world for coughs and colds."
J. C. Williams, Attica, N. Y.

DISMISSAL OF GOVERNOR.

Jews Haw Warned Him of Intended Riots and Asked Protection.

London, May 20. — The Times' St. Petersburg correspondent in a dispatch dealing with the dismissal of Governor Raaben of Kischineff says the conduct of the governor in allowing by his inaction the anti-Jewish riots to develop into a massacre is all the more incomprehensible because he had assured the Jews, who warned him and appealed for protection, that every precaution had been taken to suppress disorder. Yet the work of murder, outrage and devastation was allowed to proceed without hindrance and the Jews were told that nothing could be done for them.

The Kishineff massacre, continues the correspondent, has shown that the local authorities cannot always be trusted to protect the Jews, yet in a recent circular Interior Minister Von Plehve laid down that Jewish clubs of self-defense could not be tolerated.

Many Russian papers have done everything in their power to excite hatred against the Jews and even now are allowed to say that the Kishineff massacre served the Jews right and to urge still further repressive measures against them. No corresponding freedom of speech is allowed to defenders of the Jews.

The Pravo, the leading legal review, has been warned for an article mildly reprehensive of the anti-Semite attacks and the laxity of the administration where Jews are concerned, while the author of the article was censured personally by the minister of justice.

In justice to the Russian people, however, says the correspondent, it should be pointed out that there is no sympathy on their part with the riots. The whole liberal press has expressed horror thereat and many clergy, including Father John of Kronstadt and Bishop Jitomir, have denounced them from the pulpit.

Help For Kisheneff.

Berlin, May 20.—The Russian government's reply to Ambassador McCormick regarding the latter's inquiry about the acceptability of American relief for the suffering Jews at Kishineff was read by the Jewish committee here with interest, as being the only official utterance yet made on the question of foreign contributions.

The German foreign office has not acted in the matter, nor has the Russian administration raised any obstacle to the transmission of funds collected in Germany.

The Commercial Disconto bank, one of the forwarding agencies, has been informed that its collections are now being distributed at Kishineff, through a business firm there, without hindrance. In all about $50,000 has been raised in Germany for the Kisheneff relief work.

The year's output of gold from Alaska and the British Yukon is estimated at $25,000,000. This is a tidy sum and shows the immense value of the Northwestern Territory, being partly within the Dominion of Canada, but belonging mainly to the United States. It is highly essential that the disputed boundary line between the two countries should be speedily and finally settled in order that this rich country may be successfully developed.

Mr. Joseph Pominville, of Stillwater, Minn., after having spent over $2,000 with the best doctors for stomach trouble, without relief, was advised by his druggist, Mr. Alex. Richard, to try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. He did so and is a well man today. If troubled with indigestion, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite or constipation, give these tablets a trial, and you are sure to be more than pleased with the result. For sale by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Coston Greenwood.

From Bradstreet's it is learned that the First National bank of Chicago has devised a scheme of encouragement to its employees to become stockholders in the institution. One hundred shares of stock have been purchased, and, though its market value is about 103, it will be sold to employees at 100. The amount any one employee can acquire is limited to five shares. The stock can be paid for on the installment plan, $10 cash down and $5 per month thereafter until it is all paid for. The profit sharing idea seems to be growing in various quarters, though it does not usually take root in purely fiscal concerns. There is no reason, however, why faithful employees should not have an opportunity to share more generously in the wealth they help to produce and conserve.

Aroused His Curiosity.

The agitated young man began:

"Mr. Brockman, you may have noticed that I have been a frequent caller at your house for the last year or more."

"Yes," replied the busy merchant, "I have seen you there now and then, I remember."

"You will not be surprised therefore when I tell you that I want to marry your daughter."

"But"—

"Let me anticipate any objections you might have, Mr. Brockman. I am of good family, I am not dissipated, I have a good business and am abundantly able to support a wife. All I ask is"—

"But, young man"—

"I can bring testimonials to prove all I say. I have never wanted any other girl, and"—

"But"—

"And never shall want any other girl. From the first it has been a case of"—

"Look here, young man, let me get in a word. Which one of my four daughters is it you want?"—Chicago Tribune.

Duties of the "Pet" Sheep.

Out at the abattoir the "pets" among the sheep may be distinguished by their superior height and shapeliness and by the intelligence of their expression. The pets are murderers. In the other pens sheep come and go by thousands to the slaughter, but the pets remain. They are trained to lead their fellows to death, and they do this work well, for they have by reason of their strength, intelligence and beauty a great influence. When the butchers of the abattoir wish to slaughter a flock of sheep word is passed to the pets, and they indifferently, calmly, saunter in among the flock, gain their confidence and esteem and then take their places at their head and lead them to the slaughter house.—Philadelphia Record.

The Dwarf Palm of Algeria.

The dwarf palm, which furnishes considerable quantities of fiber, grows in great profusion in Algeria and is one of the principal obstacles to the clearing of the land, so thickly does it grow and so difficult to pull up. Its roots, in shape resembling carrots, penetrate into the ground to the depth of a yard or more, and when its stem only is cut it sprouts again almost immediately. As its name indicates, this palm is very small and can only attain a certain height when protected, as in the Arab cemeteries, for example.

Palmistry.

"I see financial troubles ahead of you," said the gypsy as she scrutinized the lines in Softleigh's palm.

"What is the cause thereof?" asked the innocent youth.

"I see a dark woman," continued the dealer in futures, "who is destined to cause you trouble in money matters."

"As I expected," groaned the callow youth. "That washerwoman is going to hold my laundry for ransom again. Oh, woe is me!"—Chicago News.

All the healing, balsamic virtues of the Norway pine are concentrated in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, nature's own remedy for coughs and colds.

Severe

Nervous Trouble and Dyspepsia.

No Sleep for Weeks Because of Pain.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Back My Health.

Dyspepsia nearly always arises from a derangement of the nerves. When the stomach is not well the entire system suffers. Constipation, bad breath, sour stomach, frequent headaches, biliousness, etc., will lead to terrible consequences if not treated in time. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for nervous dyspepsia and all nervous diseases.

"My health was miserable for years, due to severe nervous trouble and dyspepsia. I had not been able to sleep for weeks at a time without being awakened with pains in my chest and stomach. My limbs felt tired. I was unable to do my house work without feeling completely worn out. The doctors failed to relieve me, and after taking an endless amount of their medicines I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. I obtained relief from the first bottle of Nervine, was able to sleep better than I had in years. My stomach began to gain strength and I felt better in many ways. I have taken twelve bottles of Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills in the past three years but have not taken any of late as I have not felt the need of it. I go about my work an entirely different woman and have recommended them to ever so many people. I am a great believer in Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills, I have them on hand all the time. I feel very grateful for the Dr. Miles Remedies."—MRS. J. W. WHITMAN, Mechanic Falls, Me.

MY BABY WAS SICK

"My baby is 4 months old and is teething. He was sick and I tried a good many things, but nothing seemed to relieve him.

I had a doctor, who said it was inflammation of the bowels, and that I would never pull him through—perhaps, if he was under his care. When I saw he was getting worse I stopped giving him his medicine, as he could keep nothing on his stomach. He was troubled with colic very much, and used to scream when he had a touch of it. I did not know what it was to close my eyes, day or night. I gave him a few drops of LAXAKOLA and it relieved him. I gave it to him a few times and it worked like a charm, and he now rests pretty fair all night. He is a great deal better looking baby since I gave him LAXAKOLA, and I think if all mothers knew how good it was they would use nothing else."—MRS. MARY DALEY. New York's Automobile Law.

The automobile bill passed by the New York legislature at its recent session has received the signature of Governor Odell and is now a law. While most of the owners of racing machines inveigh against the new law, the majority of those who use the automobile for pleasure or business purposes agree that it is a good and necessary measure.

Perhaps some of the provisions of the law are stringent, but it is necessary that the safety of the public on public highways shall be guarded, no matter how stringent the needed law. There is an especially emphatic protest from the drivers of "red devils" and "white terrors" against the section which provides that machines must not traverse a dam or causeway less than twenty feet wide at a faster rate than four miles an hour. These gentlemen must certainly have noticed signs on bridges throughout the country forbidding the driving of horses at a pace faster than a walk. How, then, in reason can they expect to be permitted to dash across these structures at high speed on heavy, pounding machines?

Other parts of the law are vigorously objected to by the racers among automobilists, but their protests will go for naught, as the public will back up a law which recognizes the rights of the millions as against the wild pleasures of a very few. There are exclamations of horror at the thought of imprisonment for repeated violations of the law. The way for the fashionable young men who fear such shocking treatment at the hands of the authorities is to obey the law.

Other commonwealths where reckless automobile speeding has become a menace to public safety would do well to follow the example of New York's legislature and governor.

The Immigration Problem.

At the coming session of congress it is practically certain that an effort will be made to get through a bill limiting undesirable immigration into the United States. It is promised that the measure will have strong backing in the senate as well as in the house. It is generally recognized that something must be done to prevent the influx of undesirable immigrants. It has reached such alarming proportions as to give rise to serious apprehensions for the future of the country.

The immigration officials declare that the present law is good so far as it goes, but that it does not go far enough. They also declare that the immigrants now coming over are inclined to stick to the cities of the east, joining the little colonies of their countrymen, retaining the manners and vices of their old homes and learning nothing of our mode of life. Farmers are wanted, they say, and especially farmers from the north of Europe, including Germany, England, Ireland, France, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

Professor Simon Newcomb's article in McClure's Monthly upon "The End of the World," which is to be brought about by combustion caused by the falling of a dark star into the sun, multiplying many times the latter's heat radiation, is well worked up, but the illustrator, remarks the Boston Evening Transcript, has not used his imagination to as good purpose. The final catastrophe is to take place some thousands of years hence, but the men are wearing the 1903 styles of plug hat, the women the familiar short coat with flare collar, and the fire engines are of the model of today with three horse hitch attachments. This must be especially discouraging to the automobile movement.

The young republic of Cuba has traveled alone along the highway of the nations for a year and hasn't wabbled the least bit during the whole time President Palma has been tending the infant to walk. The youngster has a surplus of $2,699,000 in his little bank, and his first successful year would seem to indicate there was something wrong about the oft repeated prediction that the "Cubans are incapable of self government."

Though much has been said of late about a two cent postage rate between the United States and Great Britain, it is hardly probable that the proposition will be adopted at present. Certainly nothing will be done until after the meeting of the universal postal congress in Rome next year.

In view of the latest anti-Semite outrage in Bessarabia, the European powers might give the unspeakable Turk a brief intermission and read the riot act to the Russian bear.

The rapacity of the packers seems likely to make the lump of pork in the poor man's greens look like the oyster in the boarding house soup.

If General O. O. Howard insists upon stopping Kentucky feuds he will be wise in he does his insisting at long range.

Czar Nicholas' "religious toleration" rescript appears to bear bloody fruit in Bessarabia.

The Problem of Success.

There is no word in the English language with more shades of meaning in the definitions of it, pronounced and implied, than the word success. Only through understanding this truth can we account for much that is said and written upon the subject of success in life. The results of a life's work measured in money may mean to one man comfort, freedom from debt and peace of mind. To another man anything short of the accumulation of millions of dollars is failure. An excellent way to measure the results is to consider how close one comes to realizing his ambition. If one aims at a star and reaches no higher than the moon, he may by this rule be said to have fallen short, and to that extent he is a failure, though the height he has attained may be counted as considerable. To become famous, rich, great, powerful—these are the evidences of success which the world recognizes. In the world's view contentment and happiness are not necessary accompaniments to achievements in chosen fields to make a successful life.

While this disparity of opinion as to what constitutes success exists and will probably always exist, much that is written and spoken about the means of achieving success will impress the thoughtful as exceedingly foolish. A certain New York newspaper has been for a long time conducting a symposium on the problem of success and how to solve it. All sorts and conditions of men, presumably all successful in their respective fields, have contributed to this symposium. It is noticeable that the writers, in some cases without intention, have depended wholly upon their own lives for their lessons. In effect they say: "I succeeded by this plan. Try it." They forget that the environment of all young men is not the same; that similar opportunities do not come to all. This is not said in a spirit of pessimism; it is a simple statement of a truth.

Again, we are prone to overlook the fact that he who is counted successful today may be classed with the failures tomorrow. This latter thought is particularly applicable to those who come under the general classification of business men. It has been asserted that more than three-fourths of the men who engage in business fail sooner or later. What proportion of these reach what may be called success before they fail statistics do not show.

In the final analysis the method of solving the problem of success is not any man's or any set of men's to promulgate. He who does the best he can with the talents he possesses and in the environment which surrounds him will win what is worth more than the acclamation the world gives to the supposedly successful man—his own approval. He who tries to succeed by some ready made, copyrighted plan is likely to grasp only a handful of ashes at the end of a life of imitation that has destroyed the self in him. This is not success.

An International interest is given to the St. Louis boodle cases by the decision of Circuit Attorney Folk to ask for the extradition from France of Ellis Wainwright, a rich brewer, who has been indicted. Wainwright was a director of the Suburban Electric Railway company, accused of bribing the St. Louis municipal council. The policy of Attorney Folk in going after the rich bribe givers as well as the poorer bribe takers is an especially commendable feature of his prosecution in the St. Louis scandals.

The Philadelphia North American shows its contempt of Pennsylvania's new libel law by publishing two cartoons designed to cause a good deal of mental suffering on the part of Governor Pennypacker if he is as sensitive as his executive statement explaining why he signed the bill would indicate. If the Pennsylvania governor has the courage of his convictions this would furnish an opportunity for testing his new law.

The Chicago board of trade has barred the shirt waist man from the privileges of the floor, and the fat Chicago broker is now a sadder and hotter man. When it comes to fine points of etiquette Chicago proudly declares that she "gets there with both feet."

It is settled that Sydney, C. B., will not take a gift of $15,000 from Andrew Carnegie because he spoke disparagingly of the local iron making industry. This would appear to be a case of biting off the nose to spite the face.

Now that automobile tires are to be made of the skin of the great American hog, "chasing the pigskin" will doubtless be a popular sport for mounted policemen all the year round.

A woman has been appointed assistant attorney general for the Philippines. Now look for an exodus of the Portias to our insular possessions in the orient.

The late Richard Henry Stoddard began his career as a molder of iron, but the world will best remember him as a molder of sweet verse.

Love of the Home Town.

It is generally conceded that the children who entertain the deepest love for the home town grow up into the most useful members of society. But no child can have much love for "the old town" if he or she is unacquainted with its history. It has come to be accepted as a reproach that while the average bright child of a dozen years is able to reel off glibly everything worth knowing and a great deal not worth knowing about every country under the sun he is apt to find himself beyond his depth when he is asked the simplest question about the history of his own township or village or city, as the case may be.

A plan which makes for familiarity with the history of one's home and which may be easily adapted with the necessary modifications to this or to any other progressive community is being tried with great success by the New York Times to commemorate the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of New York's incorporation as a city. The Times has offered a large number of prizes and medals to pupils of the public schools. The pupils are required to write essays based upon a series of seven articles printed by the Times from the pen of an authority on the subject treated. Teachers of the classes from which the successful pupils come are also to be awarded premiums.

It will be readily seen how easily this plan might be adapted to the schools of any locality. Public spirited citizens will certainly see that the rewards in any such competition inaugurated by the teachers shall be commensurate with the effort put forth.

Hindoos For Servants.

An old Anglo-Indian living in Clapham, one of London's suburbs, has offered a novel suggestion to solve the domestic servant problem, which appears to be growing worse and worse in the British metropolis. "Why not offer inducements to servants from India to come to London?" he asks.

At first blush the sight of white turbaned decan-walas and red puggreed surtees and maharattas on "dear old Lunnon's" streets would be a picturesque and attractive feature, but the question of caste and climate would figure largely in this matter. The Hindoo servant to keep his caste cannot work, eat and live like English and American domestics do. However, the Indian's faithful devotion to his employers as well as that of the ayahs or native women nurses to children, even at the risk of their own lives, is well known.

Whether the East Indians could be brought to this country for the same purposes as that suggested for London may be doubted. But the experiment might be tried as a possible solution of the long standing and vexatious domestic servant problem.

Now that the Cape to Cairo railroad, the dream of the late Cecil Rhodes, is nearing the Zambesi river, tourists will soon hear the cry, "All aboard for Victoria falls!" These falls, which were discovered and named by David Livingstone in 1855, are 600 miles from the Indian ocean and 1,500 miles from the Cape of Good Hope and are the only ones that exceed Niagara in height and majesty. The gorge through which the waters boil after their drop of 400 feet will be bridged so that the globe trotter will be able to gaze upon the big cataract's beauty from a car window. It is said the roar of Victoria falls can be heard four miles. The world moves so fast that in a few years there will be no more "darkest Africa."

Japan is getting civilized so fast that she is already spending $5,000,000 a year on her navy. There is a strong suspicion current that she is out "gunning for bear" of the Russian variety.
