The Penality of Progress.

Is it anybody's business to keep count of the number of persons who are killed by accidents from day to day in this country? The number must be enormous, and most of the victims die of modern improvements of one kind and another, says Life. Fatal trolley car accidents are more common and comprehensive this year than ever before; railroads kill and maim about as usual, automobiles do their share, and mines, factories, fires, drowning accidents, gas accidents, explosions and the like contribute with extraordinary readiness to our mortuary statistics. In the industrial world especially the sacrifice of human life seems prodigious. Human life is cheap, but, cheap as it is, American civilization seems unduly lavish in expending it.

An Attentive Daughter.

He (after marriage)—I don't see why you are not as considerate of my comfort as you used to be of your father's.

She—Why, my dear, I am.

He—How do you make that out? When I come into the house, I have to hunt around for my slippers and everything else I happen to want, but when I used to court you and your father would come in from town you would rush about gathering up his things, wheel his easy chair up to the fire, warm his slippers and get him both a head rest and a foot rest, so that all he had to do was to drop right down and be comfortable.

She—Oh, that was only so he'd go to sleep sooner.

A Delicate Compliment.

To be able to compliment without seeming to flatter is a rare gift, and probably no race of men is endowed with that gift more extensively than the French.

An example of the Frenchman's rare tact in matters of this sort is shown in that sweet little story of a man who had ventured to compliment a white haired old lady upon her beauty.

"Ah," said she, "I fear you flatter me. You call me pretty? Why, I am an old woman, my hair is white, and see here is a wrinkle."

"A wrinkle?" he replied. "Never, madame; that is not a wrinkle. It is but a smile that has drifted from its moorings."

"I have been troubled for some time with indigestion and sour stomach," says Mrs. Sarah W. Curtis, of Lee, Mass., "and have been taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets which have helped me very much so that now I can eat many things that before I could not. If you have any trouble with your stomach why not take them Tablets and get well? For sale by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Coston, Greenwood.

Growth of Republicanism In Spain.

The student of old world politics will do well to keep an eye upon current events in Spain. In a letter to the London Times an evidently well informed writer directs attention to the rapid development of an independent public opinion in that country which has already deprived the government of the power of manipulating elections to suit its own purpose.

The recent elections, when Madrid was swept by the Republicans and thirty-four deputies were elected in the country districts, who are frankly hostile not only to the government and the Opposition, but to the monarchy itself have caused something like a panic among the responsible ministers. Ever since the death of Sagasta the Liberals have been hopelessly disorganized by internal jealousies and are therefore incapable of deciding upon a programme or giving it effective support.

Meanwhile the government, headed by Senor Silvela, seems to have decided upon a violent reactionary and repressive policy. The Official Gazette recently published a circular which has caused no small amount of public agitation. It forbids in the name of "public tranquillity, which cannot be troubled with impunity by cries and provocations," the cry of "Viva la republica!" or the exhibition of republican emblems or flags under pain of severe punishment.

On the theory that "the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church" such repressive and oppressive measures as those adopted by the Spanish government are likely to accelerate rather than retard the growing republican movement. The spirit of liberty when it once finds lodgment cannot thus be crushed out.

Science of Forestry Made Easy.

A unique law of dealing with forest problems is to illustrate and solve them by means of diagrams, as has been done by Henry S. Graves and R. T. Fisher in a bulletin entitled "The Woodlot," issued by the bureau of forestry of the department of agriculture. The bulletin is intended for the guidance of farmers and owners of small timber holdings in southern New England who desire to improve the condition of their timber, but is of interest and value to other sections of the country.

In this bulletin forestry has been reduced to a series of pictures—outline drawings of trees of various sorts in different relations to one another. The simplicity of the idea is such that the reader, even without any technical knowledge of forestry, can get from the pictures just the information he needs in order to practice forestry on his lands.

Naturally this bulletin cannot make offhand an expert forester out of a farmer, but it does give him specific information, that he will know how to go about the task of handling his own forest problem, and that is just the sort of information the farmer has been asking for. "The Woodlot" was prepared in order to supply such men with the information of which they were most in need.

The bulletin contains also suggestions for pruning, protection of the woods from fire, grazing, insects and wind, and a general discussion of the character of woodlands of southern New England and of the practicability of forestry.

The department of agriculture wants no agrostologist. The name has an abstruse sound, but it means a person who has forgotten more than a cow ever knew about grass.

Last Concert of the Saengerfest.

Baltimore, June 17.—The last concert of the triennial saengerfest of the Northeastern Saengerbund of America was given last night at Armory hall in the presence of an audience which compared favorably with that of Monday night when President Roosevelt made a speech. All of the 9,000 seats were taken and the passageways and corners of the hall were occupied as standing room. Six thousand singers were on the stage and the vocal and instrumental numbers were rendered with a high degree of artistic finish. The audience was enthusiastic from beginning to end, especially over the singing of the "Kaiser Prize Song." This song was sung by all the societie contesting for the kaiser prize.

Money For Plus Fund Award.

Washington, June 17.—Ambassador Clayton cabled the state department that the Mexican government has deposited to his credit $1,420,682 on account of the Plus Fund award. This promptness on the part of the Mexican government in meeting its obligations has broken all records in arbitrations. The money will be remitted to Arcobishop Riordan of San Francisco, the titular claimant, as there have been no assignments or attorneys in interest.

Building Work Again Tied Up.

New York, June 17.—The Building Trades Employers' association has ordered all hoisting engineers in the employ of association members not to resume work today. The board of governors had already given permission to the hoisting association to employ its men on three jobs known as "emergency cases." This new move stops all work except on the favored jobs.

Many Injured by Fall of Bridge.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 17.—A section of the Madison street bridge approach went down under the weight of a large crowd of people last night. Six persons were seriously, perhaps fatally, injured and 25 or 30 others were less seriously hurt.

Weather Indications.

Partly cloudy Wednesday, probably showers; Thursday, fair and warmer; light to fresh west winds, becoming variable.

No Further Delay.

A couple had been engaged to be married for about fourteen years, and still the swain had not mustered up courage enough to ask her to name the happy day. The other evening he called in a peculiar frame of mind and asked her to sing something tender and touching. Imagine his surprise when she sat down at the piano and sang, "Darling, I am growing old." There was no further delay.—Scottish American.

A novel house cleaning machine in operation in England is attracting much attention and approval from the London Lancet and other medical journals. Consul Mahin of Nottingham describes it in a report to the state department. The apparatus consists of a two or four horse power motor—oil or electric—and an air pump, and is portable. A small tightly closed metallic vessel with hose attached is another part of the apparatus. At the end of the hose is the renovator, which is rubbed over the carpet, curtains, upholstered furniture, etc., extracting all dust and dirt, which is deposited in the metallic vessel. No dust is raised, and the cleaning is said to be perfect. This machine will rob the "annual cleaning day" of its disagreeable features. Hose 700 feet long can be used to reach different floors. It looks as though it might be a very desirable article for large houses and hotels. Anything that does away with the annoyance of dust would be a blessing to mankind.

A blessing alike to young and old; Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry; a sure cure for diarrhœa, diarrhœa and summer complaint.

No one would ever be bothered with constipation if every one knew how naturally and quickly Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the stomach and bowels.

Grip

Shattered My Nervous System.

Stomach Deranged, Liver Dormant.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Me Completely.

A slightcold in the winter with fever, headache, backache; when the nose runs and the eyes water and a soreness seems to permeate the marrow of the bones; this is the beginning of Grip's deadly grasp. The danger follows in the shattered nervous system and the derangement of the heart or the digestive organs as in the following case:

"The last week in January I contracted La Grippe and was confined to my bed for five weeks. My nervous system was completely shattered, stomach badly deranged and liver in an almost dormant condition. I took treatment daily from my family physician, but could get no relief. My condition continued to grow worse and as I had often heard of Dr. Miles' medicines I decided to try them. I purchased a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. When I began taking the medicine I had no appetite, couldn't sleep and was scarcely able to get around. My weight at this time was one hundred and twenty-four pounds. At the end of the second week I was a changed man, my appetite was beyond control, my sleep was refreshing, my strength renewed and my weight was one hundred and forty-two pounds. I never felt better in my life than I do at this writing. I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Remedies to the afflicted. If anyone doubts the above statement I am ready to confirm it."—D. C. WALKER, U. S. Treasury Dep't, Washington, D. C.

SUDDEN CONVERSION

Servian Editor Laid Aside Predilection For a Republic

IN ORDER TO SAVE HIS HEAD.

Was then Made Minister of Justice. Thought that the New Government Will be a Military Dictatorship and that King Peter Will be Only a Royal Captive.

Belgrade, June 17.—The position of King Peter I promises to be little more than that of a royal captive. The real government of the country will be a military dictatorship under the leaders of the revolution, Colonel Maschin and Colonel Mitschitsch. The new king is almost without any personal adherents, and the ruling spirits of the army, it is thought probable, would just as readily murder him as they did his predecessor, should he oppose their aims.

At the present moment the whole country is under military rule and although no prefects in the country districts have been removed, each is accompanied by an army officer who attends the prefect wherever he goes. There has been no disorder however.

Extremely forcible arguments were found necessary to suppress the Radical aspirations for a republic. The foremost advocate of a republican form of government was Ljubomir Schlokovics, editor of the Belgrade Odjek. Finding him impervious to arguments, the conspirators invited him to a dinner at the Officers' club. His hosts told him that unless he agreed to support King Peter there would be one head less in Belgrade. The editor yielded to the force of this reasoning and accepted the situation. He is now minister of justice in the new government.

The deliberations of the members of the senate and skupshtina on the question of a republic were materially hastened by the attendance of Colonel Mitschitsch. He took no part in the proceedings, but his presence was significant enough to induce the members to accept the army's choice.

Premier Avakumovics told the deputies that it was useless to talk of a republic, as neither Russia nor Austria would permit it. He further urged that the proposed new constitution would give King Peter far less power than that enjoyed by the president of the United States.

In spite of the semi-official statements that the delegations of the national assembly, elected to submit the crown to the newly chosen king, had already started, the delegates are still here. The government declares that the number of its members, 24, would entail too great a cost on the country in the way of traveling expenses, but the real reason of the delay in its departure is that the government found some of its members to be adverse to King Peter.

These members sought the opportunity to become reconciled to him at the expense of the country. Now that the ministry has cut off their traveling expenses their desire to take the journey will be greatly diminished and the delegation will probably consist of a dozen members at the most.

Inquiries in official circles everywhere elicit the assurance that the people are delighted with the action of the government, but conversations overheard in public places indicate that the people, especially those living outside of the capital, know little and care little about the trend of national politics.

It is believed that the army will try to make secret terms with the new king by which it will retain the supremacy gained by the tragedy, but whether the king will agree to the conditions is uncertain.

One of the highest officials of the present government asked a number of foreign journalists what Europe thought of the way in which the Servian revolution was carried out. He was told bluntly that it was considered a brutal act. He thereupon explained that from his point of view the assassinations of the king and queen were an act of mercy, as by utterly destroying the dynasty instead of deporting the sovereigns, the likelihood of a civil war was precluded.

Czar's Congratulations.

Geneva, June 17.—The czar has telegraphed to King Peter as follows:

"Learning that the senate and the skupshtina had formally proclaimed you King of Servia I venture to express to your majesty sincere wishes for the prosperity of your country and the hope that God may come to your assistance in the enterprise you have undertaken for the happiness of your people. "NICHOLAS."

A Clerical Conundrum.

Archbishop Whately once asked the question: "Why can a man never starve in the great desert?" and answered it himself as follows: "Because he can eat the sand which is there. But what brought the sandwiches there? Why, Noah sent Ham, and his descendants mustered and bred."

Approves Chamberlains Policy.

Cape Town, June 17. — Premier Sprigg, in the course of a debate in parliament on the South African customs convention, took occasion to refer in terms of warm approval to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's preferential tariff proposals. He said that though he himself had always been an ardent free trader he was bound to admit that there was something greater than free trade, namely, the consolidation of the empire. The premier's remarks were cheered on both sides of the house.

Civil Service Commissioner Dead.

St. Louis, June 17.—John B. Harlow, formerly postmaster of St. Louis, and a veteran of the civil war, died at his home here after an illness of two weeks. His death was due to a stroke of paralysis last Sunday afternoon. This stroke was the second, the first having occurred while he was in Washington in March, 1901, serving on the civil service commission. Major Harlow was born in Sackett's Harbor, Jefferson county, N. Y., in April, 1844.

Direct Primaries In Wisconsin.

After a vigorous campaign begun several years before his first election as governor of Wisconsin in 1900 Governor La Follette has at last the satisfaction of signing a direct primary law acceptable to believers in popular control of party machinery. From the beginning of the present legislative session a majority of the house of representatives has been in favor of accepting the governor's programme, so specifically indorsed by the Republican state convention, but in the senate the opposition remained in control, and a deadlock for a long time ensued. It was clear, however, that the governor had a majority of his party with him, and his opponents, rather than risk another conflict on this issue, finally accepted the governor's bill, coupled only with the provision that it should not go into effect unless approved by the voters at the general election in 1904, when the opposition hopes to kill it.

The bill to be submitted to the voters not only provides for the nomination of state, congressional, county, city and town officers by direct primaries, at which all the voters of the party have an equal voice, but also for the nomination of United States senators by the same method. In Wisconsin, as in South Carolina, it the bill is ratified, United States senators will be really elected by the people, the action of the legislature becoming as purely formal as the action of electors in choosing the president.

The reports from Odessa that Jews in southern Russia are buying arms suggests interesting possibilities. The Jews are so numerous and so well concentrated in some parts of Russia that if they organize to fight for their rights they might at least compel the Russian government to treat them with respect. At all events their condition could not be much worse than it is at present.

It may be that the recent financial disturbance in Toronto and the stock panic in Montreal will cause Canadians to revise their opinion of Andrew Carnegie's comment on the Dominion steel industry. Possibly, too, the people of Sydney, N. S., will reconsider their refusal and take that library which they turned down because Mr. Carnegie spoke disrespectfully of their iron industry.

And now wireless telegraphy is to be used on the stage. When the reprieve comes from the wireless station fully twenty feet away the audience is expected to be just as delighted over the hero's remarkably good luck as if he had been saved from a pasteboard railway train or a papier mache pile driver.

While refusing to discuss the situation, President Baer leaves the impression that if there is not another coal strike this season it will not be his fault.

AMENDMENT BEATEN

Deadlock In Commons Over Irish Land Bill.

MINIMUM PRICE NOT ABOLISHED

Wyndham Refused to Strike It Out and the Nationalists Voted Against the Government, Reducing their Majority to 41.

London, June 17.—The deadlock which has arisen between Chief Irish Secretary Wyndham and the Irish leader, John Redmond, as a result of debate in the house of commons, in which John Redmond's amendment to the land bill abolishing the minimum price at which the landlord may sell was opposed by Mr. Wyndham and rejected by the house, threatens to imperil not only the Irish land bill but the existence of the government.

During the present session the ministry has more than once escaped defeat because of support of the Nationalists, and while Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal policy renders the governments position precarious, the support of the Irish members is more than ever necessary to the ministers.

Several Unionists supported John Redmond in the division lobby, after having in the course of the debate vainly advised Mr. Wyndham to agree to a compromise.

As a matter of fact had the Irish leader challenged a division earlier in the evening the government would then have been defeated, and Mr. Redmond's omission to thus snatch an advantage from the absence of many Unionist members seems to indicate his desire to do everything possible to ensure the passage of the bill and endeavor to induce the government to reconsider its position.

The whole body of Nationalists voted in support of John Redmond's amendment with the result that the government's majority was reduced to 41 votes.

The Liberal leaders at a meeting resolved not to challenge Mr. Chamberlain's coliversin proposals by a formal resolution in the house of commons, but to confine themselves to attacking his policy whenever an opportunity offers.

No Cases of Foot and Mouth Disease.

Washington, June 17.—The secretary of agriculture has completed an investigation of the states now in quarantine for foot and mouth disease and finds no cases of the disease. He has issued notice of a reward of $230 to be paid to any person who shall before June 30, 1903, first notify the chief of the bureau of animal industry at Washington the existence of any specified case or cases of foot and mouth disease in any animal or animals in either Massachusetts or New Hampshire. The nature of the disease must be confirmed by the inspectors of the agricultural department. If no cases are reported by July the quarantine will be removed and foreign countries asked to receive livestock from New England ports as it is believed the disease has been eradicated.

Raid on Alleged Pool Room.

New York, June 17. — Fifty-seven prisoners were captured in a raid on an alleged poolroom in the Bowery. Only two were held, the rest being allowed to go after giving their names. Among those let off is said to have been a well known assemblyman. The room, it is said, was conducted by a member of a wellknown family of East side politicians. The proprietor and other principals, it is believed, were warned of the approach of the police by a buzzer and made their escape by a sort of trolley arrangement consisting of a rope, down which they slid to an extension, thence down a ladder into a yard and out into the street.
