HURRAH!

A TOWN HALL IN SIGHT.

A Proposition to Buy the Dr. Stillman Building for a Town Hall.

After a great amount of talk and agitation on the part of those interested in the welfare of our town and maintenance of our splendid fire department, a movement has been started to purchase the building and lot on North Main street, formerly owned by the late Dr. E. M. Stillman, and occupied by him as a drug store and office, and fit it up for a town building. We cannot see what fault the most conservative tax payer in our village could possibly find with the proposition. Surely the village is losing money every year by neglecting to procure a suitable place for our hose and the firemen's cart.

We are all proud of our unsurpassed water supply owned and controlled by the village, and all have a feeling of perfect safety with regard to our ample means of combatting fires, when they break out, but if things go on as they have for the past few years, our fire protection will be of no avail without new hose, and our firemen will become discouraged and disheartened with their efforts to sustain an organization with which the citizens do not care enough to supply them with a decent place to store their cart and utensils.

The Stillman building will make a good place for a Town Hall, and can be, with little expense, converted into a typical Hall with parlors, kitchen and hose rooms, all in a handy and convenient location. A petition has been circulated to call a special meeting to vote upon the proposition at an early date. Over fifty of the best of our citizens have already affixed their names thereto, and a large number will yet be added. Is your name there? If not, better help the matter along by placing it there immediately.

We have been the laughing stock of surrounding towns long enough, in buying expensive hose and nice pharaphernalia, and then throw them around to rot in any old barn and barn yard that may come handy. Even some of our own citizens have jolleyed each other about the matter, and refused to support other needed measures of improvement until a suitable place was provided for things we already have.

Andover's Water System.

Alfred is advocating a water system for fire protection and domestic use, and to strengthen the project the Alfred Sun has the following to say about our water system:

"Andover's system of water works was constructed in the fall of 1893 at a cost of $20,000. It is one of the finest systems in Western New York. It not only furnishes absolute fire protection but the receipts from water rents pay the interest on the bonds, and all expenses of maintaining and improving the system and service, besides leaving a nice surplus.

"For the year ending March 1, 1900, the receipts from water rents were $1,323.99. The interest on bonds was $752. A 2,000 foot addition to the line in the village is being put in this year at a cost of about $1,000 but at no expense to the village, as the revenue from the water rents pay for it. Fire insurance rates in the village of Andover have been reduced one-fourth, and in some cases one-third."

Important Notice to Farmers.

Besides the ordinary exhibits at the fair, there will be special exhibits designed especially to aid and instruct the farmer. Among them is an exhibit of injurious and beneficial insects from the New York State Department of Entomology. Every farmer, fruit grower and gardner has more or less trouble from insects, which infest and destroy his crops. This exhibit is arranged so that every one can see specimens of the "bugs" which ruin his crops. Not only can he see them but the State Entomologist or his assistant will be present to answer questions and tell how to protect the crops and destroy the "bugs."

Free catalogues will be distributed containing a large amount of useful information relative to insects and insecticides.

Do not fail to see this exhibit when you attend the Hornellsville Fair.

Letter from Father Murray.

To the Editors of the ANDOVER NEWS:

We saw you last aboard the steamship La Champagne. We arrived safely at the French Capital after having remained over night at Roula, whose old cathedral we briefly visited. We also took the electric car and ascended a hill, on which is situate the beautiful modern church of Our Lady of "bon succour," and from this elevation had a splendid view of the city and river Seine.

We arrived at Paris Saturday, June 30th, where we remain just one week. We did the Exposition very hurriedly, you know, of course. The biggest show at the Exposition is that of the vast number of empty restaurants, many of which we were told were losing money every day. Much of the Exposition impressed us favorably. The buildings, I think, are as beautiful in finish, but not as vast as those of Chicago in 1893. The Italian building had a particularly beautiful and rich display, and the Spanish building was itself of very pretty design.

I had a very convincing proof of how very little I am, as well as how utterly small is much we all esteem, when we were at the top of the Eiffel Tower, over 1,100 feet in height. The city with its magnificence, wealth, luxury, people and pride lay beneath or if not before our eyes. We thought Mark Houghtling looked very small when he sat on the arm of the cross surmounting our church spire at Andover, 150 feet high. Paris and the world thought nothing of me 1,100 feet high on the pinnacle of this great tower!

Paris was not in our mind even as one of the chiefest attractions of our trip. So on Saturday, July 7th, we find ourselves aboard the train "de Luxe" wending our way with lightning speed (about 55 miles an hour), via Bordeaux and Dax, towards Lourdes, now of worldwide fame. We stay over night, and rest at Dax. Next morning after mass, leaving on the 10 o'clock train, we arrive at Lourdes at 12:30 p. m.

I will not attempt to describe Lourdes but refer my readers to the many books written, "ex-professo," about the place, its famous shrine, the grotto of apparition, the grand basilica with its 50 altars, the favored Bernadette, to whom the Blessed Virgin appeared about the middle of the present century, etc., etc. We had the great pleasure of saying mass three times at Lourdes, at which masses we remembered all our friends, and we wish you to know that Andover and the NEWS were not last nor least to our recollection in prayer while visiting those spots so sacred to religion. We also assisted at two torch-light processions in honor of our Lady of Lourdes. Upwards of 2,000 persons, each carrying a lighted candle, took part in these out-door processions. At the processions on the Feast of the Assumption, Aug. 15th, 15,000 and more townspeople and pilgrims from distant places take part in these public processions, singing hymns the while as they march. At Lourdes, besides several American priests, we met Bishop McDonald of Brooklyn and Archbishop Corrigan of New York came at noon the day we left.

July 11th, 12:59 p. m. finds us on our way to Geneva, Switzerland. We break our journey the first night at Toulouse, second at Cette on the Mediterranean, the third at Lyon on the Rhone. We tarry not long at the city of Lyon July 14th; Francis, 4th of July Feast or Holiday, for it takes us from 10:30 a. m. till about 6 p. m. to make the journey to Geneva; yet in the early morning of the 14th we hear the boom of cannon and the tread of soldier and civilian as they prepare for the festivities of the day. As we drive to the railway station the streets are thronged with soldiers in uniform ready for parade, and gazed at with pride by thousands of citizens in holiday attire. It is a beautiful ride on the train from Lyon to Geneva, as we follow the Rhone valley, and are in sight of the river most of the way.

It is getting late. I have intruded on your space and perhaps your patience, but I shall now say Good night! at the same time informing you that to-morrow, Sunday, July 15, after attending mass we shall spend most of the day enjoying a ride in a steamer, bearing 1,000 people, feasting our eyes and imagination on the beautiful scenery of Lake Geneva, and the memories thus revived.

Au revoir. T. A. MURRAY.
