Potent Pill Pleasure.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. N. Pall pot of Albany, Ga., says, "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than calomel, blue-mass or any other pill I ever took; and at the same time it effected me pleasantly. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover.

Sensible Treatment of Corns.

Light shoes, short shoes and clumsy shoes produce corns by compressing, cramping and rubbing against the joints. A great many of these pedal blemishes are hereditary. In any case it is a good plan to suppress them. Every medicine merchant has a variety of "cures," and nearly all give temporary relief. A poultice made of vinegar soaked breadcrumbs will cure a little corn in one night. It is not advisable to let a corn grow. Either rub down the formation with pumice stone or remove it with a knife. A little opposition will discourage it provided sensible shoes are worn. In pedicuring, as in manicuring, the feet should be soaked in hot water and as much of the waste material brushed and rubbed off as possible.

The Harm of Damp Houses.

It is dangerous to health and even to life in a damp, moldy house, or one built over a moldy cellar. Many years ago the London Lancet in an article on diphtheria traced the disease in certain cases to the presence of certain molds and fungoid growths which seemed to be breathed into the throat. Remember, one of the best disinfectants is lime. Moldy cloths, such as shoes and other articles that are unfit for use, should be destroyed at once.

Save the Children.

Ninety-five of every one hundred diseases that children have are due to disorders of the stomach, and these disorders are all caused by indigestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is just as good for children as it is for adults. Children thrive on it. It keeps their little stomachs sweet and encourages their growth and development. Mrs. Henry Carter, 705 Central St. Nashville, Tenn. says: "My little boy is now three years old and has been suffering from indigestion ever since he was born. I have had the best doctors in Nashville, but failed to do him any good. After using one bottle of Kodol he is a well boy. I recommend it to all sufferers." Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover.

Growth of the Churches in 1902.

Some very interesting facts are brought out by the annual statistical exhibit of the churches of the United States which has just been compiled by Rev. Dr. Henry L. Carroll, the recognized statistician of the ecclesiastical world. Dr. Carroll finds that during 1902 there was a net gain of 720 ministers, 1,261 churches and 403,743 communicants in all the denominations in this country, which is a considerable decrease over the year before, when the increase in the number of communicants was reported as 924,675. Dr. Carroll accounts for this disparity by the fact that in 1901 the Catholic bodies were credited with an increase of 473,083, while this year the increase is placed at 120,634. The increase for the various larger denominations, as far as communicants are concerned, are:

Catholics (8 bodies)	120,634
Methodists (17 bodies)	86,184
Lutherans (22 bodies)	49,320
Baptists (12 bodies)	48,664
Presbyterians (12 bodies)	30,001
Disciples of Christ	27,832
Protestant Episcopal (2 bodies)	16,355
Congregationalists	13,330
United Brethren (2 bodies)	10,345
Adventists (6 bodies)	9,782
Reformed (3 bodies)	8,498
German Evangelical Synod	5,572
Evangelical (4 bodies)	4,331

Several of the denominations show decreases in number of ministers, churches and communicants. The Dunkards appear to have lost 9,000 members, the German Evangelical Protestants are credited with 16,500 less than this year, the Latter Day Saints with a decrease of 400 ministers, 86 churches and 3,324 communicants, while the United Brethren, with a decrease of 158 ministers and 172 churches, appear to have made a gain of 10,345 communicants. Dr. Carroll notes that a new Lutheran synod, the Slovakian, has been organized in this country during the year. It is composed of Finns, whose emigration to the United States has been greatly accelerated by the Russification of Finland.

A Good Business Showing.

That is a very good showing made in the table given out by Dun's Commercial agency of business failures for the first quarter of 1903. It shows that there has been a decrease of 218 failures when compared with the figures for the first quarter of the previous year, though there has been an increase in the total liabilities of $612,675, while the average liabilities per failure have advanced $868. Of these failures, those of manufacturing industries account for 695, with liabilities of $13,692,718.

In running back through the first quarters of the last twenty-two years only seven are found that make a better showing for liabilities than does the current year, while only six make a better showing when measured by the average liability per failure. Comparing 1903 with the average for the first quarters of the previous twenty-one years shows that the failures were 128 under the average, while the average liability per failure was $1,348 less this year than the average of the preceding twenty-one years.

On the whole, the figures indicate gratifyingly wholesome conditions in the business world.

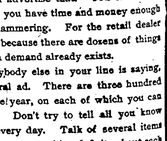
No. 6.

The best paper in a community always brings ample returns to its advertisers.

The best paper covers the cream of the trade in any section.

Mark Twain says: "Behold the fool saith: 'Put not all thine eggs in one basket,' which is but a manner of saying, 'Scatter your money and your attention;' but the wise man saith: 'Put all thine eggs in the one basket and—watch that basket.'"

"Which the same" applies equally to newspapers. Put your ad. in the best paper, and then watch the paper and the ad. Have a system of checking the returns received, and be very sure of this much: If the ad. doesn't pay, the fault is in the ad. or the goods, or the store—not in the paper.



It will do no good to advertise something that nobody wants. Find out what there is a demand for and advertise that. You can create a demand for an article if you have time and money enough to keep up a continual hammering. For the retail dealer this is a waste of energy, because there are dozens of things in every stock for which a demand already exists.

Don't say what everybody else in your line is saying, and never publish a general ad. There are three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, on each of which you can talk in the newspapers. Don't try to tell all you know about the whole store every day. Talk of several items each time if you like, but say something definite about each one. Don't say "Fine shoes for men, women and children," but talk about one shoe in each line and give prices. The newspaper will carry what you say right into the best homes in the community. It will give your words a thousand tongues. Out of one thousand people, probably fifteen need shoes every day. If you tell them about your stock, you will surely get your proportion of the trade. If you don't, you won't get it.

It's a simple proposition, and as true as it is simple.

INDORSE ROOSEVELT

Nebraska Republican Convention at Lincoln.

WANT J. L. WEBSTER FOR VICE.

Judge Barnes of Norfolk Nominated by Acclamation for Judge of the Supreme Court—Platform Declares for Protection and American Ships—Opposition to Trusts.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 19.—The Republican state convention was called to order in the Auditorium at 2.15. Temporary Chairman Sloan made a speech in which he said that fusion in Nebraska was dead and that the Republicans never had a better chance for victory. He urged the convention to indorse the administration of President Roosevelt.

Judge J. B. Barnes of Norfolk was nominated by acclamation for judge of the supreme court and John L. Webster was indorsed by the convention for vice president of the United States. Mr. Webster is a lawyer and leading Republican in the state. On national issues the Republican state convention declared as follows:

"We congratulate not only ourselves but the people at large that the administration of our national affairs and our negotiations with foreign nations are being conducted by the courageous Republican president who knows no fear, who courts no favor, but who loves peace crowned with honor, and in whose charge we have a feeling of perfect safety and security—a president whom the American people now desire to honor with a second term as the chief magistrate of the greatest and grandest nation of the earth—Theodore Roosevelt."

Protection is adhered to.

The resolution declares that the Republican party is unalterably opposed to all combinations of capital, under whatever name, having for their purpose the stifling of competition and arbitrarily controlling production or fixing prices. The convention also declared:

"It is the wish of the Republicans of Nebraska that every ship that carries American goods and American products into the harbors of foreign nations shall sail under the American flag."

The convention also declared against the policy of W. J. Bryan as follows:

"We congratulate the state that we have made it manifest that there is no permanent place in American politics for a political leader who bases his claims for popular support upon the failures or disappointments of the people."

The convention was ready to adjourn three hours after assembling.

Contracts For Ships Cancelled.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Acting Secretary Darling has received a telegram from the counsel for the United States Shipbuilding company, of which the Crescent Shipbuilding company is a part, stating that the company hopes eventually to be able to resume work on the cruiser Chattanooga and the torpedo boats Nicholson and O'Brien. The acting secretary has replied that the department will be interested to know whether the company finds itself in readiness to resume this work. The contracts for all three ships have been cancelled and a board of officers ordered to appraise the work done. It is believed that these vessels will be completed at government yards.

Deluge For Future Mobs.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 19.—Work began yesterday on the new standpipe at the county jail, and when it is finished the jail will be proof against mob violence. It is the idea of Superintendent Harrison that water is the best "persuader" ever used upon a mob. He does not believe in shooting into a mob. The standpipe will be erected between the front and rear entrances to the jail. The force of the stream will easily knock a man down, and played upon an entrance will keep out any number of men.

Private Bank Closed.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 19.—The private bank of Kinney & Co. at Angola has closed its doors. The immediate cause of the failure was attempt of County Treasurer George W. Williams to withdraw $17,000. The bank could only pay him about $5,000. The financial troubles of the bank have been caused by its attempt to finance a trolley line from Angola to James Lake, three miles distant. The deposits amount to about $80,000. Assets and liabilities not known.

Enticed Into Woods and Shot.

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Tony Bruno, an Italian, was enticed into the woods near Massena by an Italian woman and shot three times from ambush by an unknown man. It is believed the shots were fired by the woman's husband, Justino Ellis, to procure a considerable sum of money which Elis believed Bruno had in his possession. A posse is searching the woods for Elis. The victim will probably recover.

Importation of Tin Ore.

Importations of pig tin into the United States in the past year were larger than in any preceding year. The statistics of the year's imports as presented by the department of commerce and labor through its bureau of statistics show that the importations of tin were 88,000,000 pounds, valued at more than $23,000,000. In 1890 the importations were 35,000,000 pounds, valued at about $7,000,000.

These figures are especially interesting in view of the recent imposition of a duty on exportations of tin ore from the British colonies of the Malayan peninsula. The rapid growth in the use of tin in the United States and the fact that practically none of that article is produced in this country, suggested the importation of tin in the form of ore and the smelting of the ore and manufacture of the pig tin at home. A plant for the purpose has been erected in the United States, and the shipment of ore from the Malayan peninsula was about to begin when the department of commerce and labor received word through the reports of the United States consul at the Straits Settlements that an export duty of $30 per picul (133 pounds) had been levied on tin ore exported, the purpose of this export tax on the ore being to prevent its exportation in the natural state and to retain for the people of the Malayan states the profits of smelting.

Whether this will terminate the project of importing the ore into the United States for smelting cannot yet be told. The Malayan states now produce more than half of the tin ore entering into the commerce of the world, their total shipments in 1901 being 50,000 tons out of a total of 89,000 tons entering the markets of the world in that year. It is interesting to note that three-fourths of the world's tin comes from parts of the world not far distant from the Philippine Islands, and this fact, coupled with the growing demand for tin in the United States, may lead to careful examination as to the possibility of tin production in the Philippines.

Suppressing Train Rowdyism.

The Washington Post tells of a plan adopted by the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railroad to police its trains for the protection of patrons from drunken ruffians and hoodlums and from all persons whose conduct is annoying to the passengers. This determination of the officials of the railroad is most commendable and should be followed by similar action by other companies.

The rowdy is a nuisance everywhere and shows no partiality in his selection of the railroad he is to patronize. Passengers who can afford to patronize the sleeping cars and parlor cars are practically exempt from the annoyances of this kind, but the occupants of the day coaches on nearly every train in the country are daily subjected to annoyance, and frequently to insult and abuse, by the rowdy traveler. One drunken ruffian is sufficient to disturb the peace and comfort of a car load of women and children, and other passengers are usually powerless to protect themselves unless some overt act is committed. The average traveler will submit to a great deal of offensive and indecent language from a rowdy before he will take the matter of enjoining good behavior into his own hands.

The rowdy and the ruffian are in their element on excursion trains, where the crowds keep the train crews busy with duties other than looking after the comfort and protection of the passengers. The Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern proposes to detail competent police officers to accompany such trains to preserve order and protect peaceful passengers from insults of the hoodlums. The service will be extended as rapidly as possible to all passenger trains of the company.

It is unquestionably the duty of railroad companies to protect its passengers from annoyance and insult as well as personal injury, and it is somewhat surprising that action similar to that of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern was not taken long ago by the railroads generally.

Alfred Harmsworth of the London Daily Mail, William Hill of the Westminster Gazette and Maurice Ernst of the Vienna Tageblatt are announced as editors of a new international encyclopedia of journalism, to be published in London and in the English language, but to deal with the history of the newspaper in all days and its present development. It ought to be an interesting and valuable compilation.

Advance Step In Arbitration.

In a letter to M. Delcasse, the French minister of foreign affairs, Baron d'Estournelles gives an interesting account of his recent visit to London and conference with Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Chamberlain, whose distinct approval, it would appear, he secured to the suggestion of an arbitration treaty for the settlement of Anglo-French difficulties. In turn, these leading members of the British ministry proposed a plan for the general reduction of the naval forces of the two countries.

Baron d'Estournelles' letter records a significant step in the progress of civilization toward that not impossible goal which will transfer the settlement of international controversies "from the arena of arms to the arena of reason." The letter declares that during twenty years the fear of parliamentary opposition has alone prevented the adoption of the proposed conciliatory policy, and that all the British statesmen, without distinction of party, whom the baron saw, were unanimous in desiring it. M. Delcasse is urged to seize upon this favorable moment, and is assured that with equal good will on both sides three general agreements with Great Britain can be signed in a few months. These are:

First—The conclusion of a reasonable arbitration treaty similar to that negotiated between Great Britain and the United States and in accordance with clause 19 of The Hague International arbitration convention.

Second—A reduction in the overwhelming naval expenses in agreement with France and Russia, concerning which the baron claims to have received categorical verbal and written assurances.

Third—A friendly settlement of the outstanding differences which for twenty years have vainly exhausted the resources of diplomacy.

Baron d'Estournelles expects to extend his pacific efforts until there exists a similar basis of agreement throughout the countries of Europe and America. He will deliver an address on diplomacy before the international congress at St. Louis next year, and then hopes to make definite plans "for bringing to Europe a delegation of representative American officials and parliamentarians" in furtherance of his views.

As the United States is the first of the nations to apply the principle of arbitration to international disputes, we can well afford to look with satisfaction and give all possible encouragement to these efforts on behalf of universal peace.

No More Red Trousers.

The flaming red trousers of the French infantry, made familiar all over the world by paintings of famous artists, must go. The French minister of war has decided that they make too good a target for the enemy's sharpshooters and has issued an order changing this portion of the infantry uniform to a less conspicuous color.

The "pioupiou," as the French infantryman has been affectionately called, was as much a landmark of Paris in his blue jacket and baggy red trousers as the Arc de Triomphe or the Madeleine. The gay capital will be sadly changed when the legs of its defenders are incased in something more inconspicuous. La Presse of Paris mourns the loss of the gay plumage, saying: "In depriving our soldiers of their red trousers General Andre has deprived them almost of their excuse for existence. To deprive an army of its distinctive signs is to show that he wishes to attack it in its vital principle." Although the Presse in its excess of despair exaggerates the case when it argues that the change almost deprives the army of its reason for existence and certainly strikes a blow at its vital principle, yet one can understand that journal's grief. The French are a histrionic and artistic people, and the placing of a somber olive on her soldiers' legs will depress Paris for many hours. Yet such is the inexorable march of progress—the beautiful gives way to the expedient.

When King Edward travels in England, beyond the fact that his majesty usually has the use of a special train no particular pomp or circumstance attends the journeys of the sovereign. The kaiser's railway journeys in his own country are invested with much more ceremony, and the railroads are always well patrolled by guards. When the czar makes a railway journey in Russia the whole length of railroad over which his imperial majesty will travel is patrolled for days before the journey by armed guards, who have orders to challenge any stranger in the vicinity, and if he cannot satisfactorily account for his presence to shoot him in the spot.
