Every day some wise man arises to show people with small purses how to live upon limited amounts. But what is really needed, observes the Chicago Tribune, is a philosopher who can teach one how to be economical in a graceful way. The man who wears his economical heart upon his sleeve, who is constantly reminding one not of how well he can do with a little but of how much he could accomplish with more, is one who makes poverty ugly. To live upon much and yet to be pining for mushrooms, to wear blue jeans and to be sighing for black broadcloth is to show the seamy side of economy. The wise economist will show how much more meritorious is mush than mushrooms and how much superior in the matter of durability is jeans than broadcloth Of course, when poverty pinches sufferers must scream, but so long as this dreaded enemy only ventures to nudge the victim he may be treated with dignified disdain, or, better still, with wholesome hospitality.

Graceful Economies.

A Bangor (Me.) paper would have us believe that this incident happened in a Bangor grammar school at an examination: One of the questions in physiology was: "What is the patella or knee pan?" The answer of one boy was as follows: "The patellas or knee pants is trousers, which extend from the waist to the knee, and were worn by grown-up men during George Washington's administration. They are not worn by men in the present time, except bicycle riders and men who play golf, but are only worn by small boys Every boy is glad when he is old enough to take off his patellas or knee pants and go into long pants, which extend from the waist to the ankle." Now, that was a pretty good composition, if the boy had not got hold of the wrong definition.

The New York harbor tug L. Luckenbach lately started on a voyage to San Francisco around the Horn. The tug is said to be one of the fastest and stanchest, is scheduled to make the passage in 45 days, record time for a tug. Much difficulty was had in finding 15 men who would make up the crew, as the dangers that the little vessel will encounter will be enormous, even for an ocean-going tug. Only three or four tugboats have made the trip around the Horn, the best record of 63 days having been made by the G. W. Pride, which successfully navigated the southern seas eight years ago

A Bostonian who died recently had a peculiar fad as a collector. He restricted himself to a search for relics of John Wilkes Booth in connection with the assassination of President Lincoln. He obtained all three playbills dated on the night of the tragedy. One was used at the theater, one was printed for use and canceled and the other was a counterfeit issued by an unscrupulous printer. Autograph letters of John Wilkes Booth are rare, but there are at least seven in Boston. One covering less than two sides of a page sold for $150.

Eighteen years ago the school taught by Thomas Treadway, four miles south of Shelbyville, Ind., concluded a successful term. The pupils passed resolutions agreeing to meet in the same building August 33, 1900. There were 30 of them; all but three are alive and all but five live in the same county. Every pupil is married, and great preparations are being made for the novel reunion. The exercises of 18 years ago will be repeated as nearly as possible, under the direction of Mr. Treadway.

According to Prof. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology at Washington, the honey industry has shown marked development in recent years, and there are to-day more than 300,000 persons engaged in it, the value of the product being $20,000,000. There are 110 apiarian societies and 80 journals devoted to the industry. Much of the honey is exported, England being the chief purchaser. Nor has the limit by any means been reached.

For some time Isaac Mulford, a farmer living near Bridgeton, N. J., has been missing chickens, so he set a man-trap without letting the family know. One night lately his son stayed out late, and while slipping into the house was caught in the trap. Fearing a dressing down from the father for staying out so late, the young man stayed there all night. His martyrdom was in vain, for the first person to see him next morning was his father.

Counsel for three men accused of larceny in a Canadian court asked the judge to protect his clients from a couple of amateur photographers who were trying to snapshot them during the hearing, but the court ruled that no person could be prevented from attempting to take a photograph.

The pastor of a Baptist church in Emporia, Kan., was attracted by a noise in the sacred edifice while passing the other afternoon. He entered quietly and found three sacrilegious youngsters using the baptismal font as a swimming hole.

EVENED UP WITH THE DOCTOR

How a Chicago Sandwich Man Brought His Contrary Employer to Terms.

For some months past an elderly man has succeeded in earning his livelihood by promenading the north side of Randolph street clad in a rubber rain coat on which was emblazoned in yellow letters the ability of Dr. Trueblade to remove corns, bunions and warts without pain. During the winter months the aged person found the job to his liking and kept the sidewalks clear of snow by his constant marching to and fro. But with the arrival of the summer hot spell the sandwich man tired of the task and spent most of his time in shady nooks along the line of his beat, says a Chicago exchange.

One day lately the heat became so oppressive that sign bearing grew irksome and the man resolved to strike. After invading the "doctor's" office and satisfying himself that he could not obtain an increase in wages the wearer of the rubber coat sought the outer air, and after turning the rubber coat inside out printed on it the following legend in chalk: "Dr. Trueblade will amputate no more corns until the sandwich man collects money enough to have his bunions eased by Dr. Callous."

Callous is the chiropodist across the street. After reading the inscription he agreed to supply the sandwich man with a linen duster for the warm weather and increase his wages.

RATS DECLARE CIVIL WAR.

Internecine Slaughter Relieves a Chicago Police Station of a Pest.

Another rat story comes from the Twenty-second street police station, reports a Chicago exchange. Not long ago the station was invaded by a colony of rats of various sizes and descriptions and no prisoners were kept in the cells for several days because of the viciousness of the rodents. A number of the officers were bitten while asleep in the dormitory and the pest was the cause of a great deal of trouble.

Lieut. Alcock advertised for cats and a few of the residents in the vicinity gave the services of their house pets to rid the place of the pest. One of the cats was killed and its carcass was found in the basement. The smaller members of the colony were routed, but a number of big gray fellows refused to take orders from the cats and until one day last week did all they could to make life miserable at the station.

Sergt. Carey says that they are all gone now. He declares that they divided themselves into two factions and declared civil war. The squadroom was their battleground and the sergeant says that he witnessed several engagements. After one battle he picked up the bodies of three warriors left dead on the field. The other night he saw five of them run out through the front door and since that time, he says, there has not been a rat in the station.

Four to One.

An English officer in Malta stopped, in riding, to ask a native the way. He was answered by a shrug of the shoulders, and a "No speak English."

"You're a fool, then," said the officer. But the man knew enough English to ask:

"Do you understand Maltese?"

"No."

"Do you know Arabic?"

"No."

"Do you know Italian?"

"No."

"Do you know Greek?"

"No."

"Then you four fools. I only one!"

A New York Tree.

A towering elm tree which used to stand in St. Paul's churchyard, New York, and which was said to be 300 years old, has been cut down. The tree used to stand on a line with Washington's pew, and was one of the picturesque landmarks of lower Broadway.

ENJOYS A GOOD CIGAR.

There Is No Means of Disconnecting the Girl Who Sits in Smokers' Seats.

Men who wish to enjoy a smoke when coming downtown after breakfast are often "put out" by the feminine patrons of the street cars who persist in getting in the seats reserved for smokers, even though the rest of the car may be empty. One sufferer from this propensity on the part of the fair sex declared the other day that the only way to cure them of the habit was to smoke them out, says the Chicago Chronicle. The young man took his place on one of the seats, cigar in mouth. At Loomis street a young woman and escort entered the car. Many vacant seats were ahead, but she calmly took a seat beside the aforesaid smoker. The escort clung to the strap and chatted in small talk. "Here is my chance," thought the smoker. Instantly there issued from his lips enough smoke to remind one of the power-house smokestack. The movement of the car blew it all in her face Looking up at her escort she said, sweetly:

"I'm in a smoker's seat, ain't I?" He agreed. The smoker was overjoyed. He felt that he was doing a kindness to all puffers of the weed.

"She's weakening," he thought, "and she'll move in a moment."

Still she sat. The smoker puffed and puffed till he was nearly black in the face.

"Do you know," she suddenly said to her escort, "I do love the odor of a good cigar?" with a cruel emphasis on the word "good."

The puffing ceased and the puffer kept his eyes on the floor as she left the car.

CURIOUS BILL FOR REPAIRS.

Belgian Mechanic Had a Singularly Worded Claim Against a Church.

The authorities of an old church in Belgium recently decided to make some repairs to its interior furnishings and employed an artist to touch up a very large painting, reports a foreign exchange. When the artist presented his bill the committee in charge refused to pay it unless the details were specified. The next day the bill was handed in itemized as follows:

	F. C.

POLITE IN FACE OF DANGER.

Extraordinary Coolness of a Gentleman During a Fire Astonished the Firemen.

"The coolest man I ever met," said a New York fireman, relates Collier's Weekly, "I met at a fire in a dwelling house on Fifth avenue. We found him in an upstairs front room, dressing to go out. The fire by this time was surging up through the house at a great rate.

"'Hellos, there!' we hollered at him when we looked in at the door, 'the house is afire!'

"'Would it disturb you if I should remain while you are putting it out?' he said, lifting the comb from his hair and looking round at us. He had on a white evening waistcoat, and his dresscoat lay across a chair.

"Seeing us staring at him, he dropped his comb into his hair again and went on combing. But, as a matter of fact, he was about ready. He put down the comb, put on his coat and hat, and picked up his overcoat.

"'Now I'm ready, gentlemen,' he said.

"We started, but the stairway had now been closed up by fire. We turned to the windows. The boys had got a ladder up to the front of the house.

"'Now, then,' we said to him, when we came to the window.

"'After you, gentlemen,' he said, standing back. And I'm blessed if we didn't have to go down the ladder first."

The Lawson Pink.

It is reported in Boston from a foreign source that the famous pink which the Boston broker, Thomas W. Lawson, bought for $33,000 and named the "Mrs. Thomas W. Lawson pink," after his wife, has been sold again. The latest purchaser, the report says, is no less a personage than the khedive of Egypt, now sojourning in London, who made the purchase through an agent. The price he is supposed to have paid is not included in the story.

The Reporter says that the Wellsville fair was a financial failure, the management losing about $1,000.

Our readers will find it to their interests to patronize the business men who advertise in THE NEWS. The merchant who advertises wants your trade. He will do all he can to deserve it.

W. B. Bundy is afflicted with erysipelas, and was obliged to go to the Hornellsville Sanitarium Saturday for treatment.

Andover Lodge, No. 786, I. O. O. F., will resume working the degrees next Tuesday evening. Every member is expected to be present.

The Presbyterian congregation and Sunday school will have a picnic in the Village Park Saturday afternoon. Supper at from 4 to 5:30.

Miss Anna M. Sullivan has been secured to teach the primary department of the Graded School at Genesee, Pa., the coming year.

The Tracy Gas Co. have found another good gas producer, this time on the property of Mrs. Ira Kemp. Tracy says he now has gas to burn.

Peter Dudley, the well known colored porter of the Fassett House, Wellsville, was married Aug. 20th, to Miss Mary A. Huff of Friendship.

Geo. Barrett, the graduate undertaker and harness maker, is keeping store for John Trainer during his absence, and George is a hustler, too.

An enjoyable time was had at the residence of Miss Minnie A. Clair last Thursday evening, the occasion being a musicale by the pupils of Miss Clair.

The Citizens' Hose Co. didn't get an invitation to go to Hornellsville on Labor-day and entertain themselves this year. They feel like death about it.(?)

James McGinty, P. M. Swink, P. DeLaney and Charles Cheesman were the delegates from Andover to the County Democratic Convention at Cuba yesterday.

Jurors drawn from this section to serve at the County Court, Sept. 10th, are as follows: Andover, J. W. Richardson, J. M. Hartrum; Independence, B. H. Robbins.

P. M. Swink is the only Andover K. T. that is in attendance at the Annual Commandery Conclave at Rochester this week. John Snyder went along to see the fun.

The handsome rocker offered as a prize at the Wellsville Fair by the enterprising furniture dealers of Wellsville, Messrs. Gent & Buehring, was won by Ed. A. Potter of Belmont, he holding the lucky number 1678.

Miss Maude Chiney of Barville, sister of Rev. Father Casey of that place, died after an illness of about three hours, last Wednesday. The remains were taken to Cuba for burial.

If there were as many men who know how to pay the editor as well as they know how to run the paper, what a jolly time newspaper men would have.—Press and Priester.

Clayton Williams has been engaged by the popular Crescent Grocery as clerk, and his genial smile will illumine that place in the future. He commenced his labors Tuesday morning.

Late experiments with the motor bicycle prove that the machine is a sure comer. Fifty to a hundred miles can be made on one of the new machines at an expense of ten cents for gasoline.

The regular monthly meeting of the Allegany County Farmers' Club was held at Little Genesee yesterday. Good music and good speaking was enjoyed. We hope for a full report of it next week.

Our exchanges are saying that Editor Rice, of the Angelica Republican, has purchassd the Friendship Register, and will hereafter conduct that paper at Friendship and the Republican at Angelica.

An exchange remarks that it is too bad that loafers were not hatched as chickens instead of being born as humans. As old hens they would make good setters. As they are, they are no good on earth.

The Sun says that the prospects for an increased attendance at Alfred University the coming year are very encouraging. The applications received indicate that the freshman class will be very much larger than that of recent years.

Last Thursday, Trowbridge & Davis threshed for F. L. Green 716 bushels of oats in the afternoon without a stop. The oats were drawn from the field with three teams. Lee says when they beat that he will set Old Huldy up a peg higher.

At this time of year it will doubtless be of interest to many to know just what the dimensions of a standard apple barrel are. They are, 17½ inch head, 28½ inch stave and 64 inch bulge. The law says you must pack apples for market in no other.

Bolivar High School has a lady Principal, Miss Ella I. Crandall. She receives a salary of $900, $150 less than they have paid. Why is it if a lady does the same work as a man and does it equally as well as a man, she does not receive the same remuneration?

The following, uttered by an exchange, is applicable to us: "The editor has decided not to have a vacation this year. There are so many of our subscribers taking vacations with our money in their clothes that we find we must give up the pleasure to them."

Rev. V. L. Eggleston has been notified by the committee on graduate work of Shurtleff College that his application for Ph. D. has been accepted. Shurtleff is one of the leading colleges of the Baptist denomination, and one of the oldest and best in the United States.

There is to be a 25-mile bicycle race at Danville Sept. 12th. It will be a handicap road race, open to the world. There will be over $75 worth of prizes, the first being a Stearns wheel, the second being a Pacific, the third a diamond ring, etc. Outside starters and time keepers will be engaged, and everything will be run on the square as nearly as possible.

Charles M. Bowen and Miss Bessie M. Stillman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace G. Stillman, were married at Almond on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Bowen is well known in Andover, he having filled the place of Agent A. B. Richardson at the depot, in his absence. The bride is a niece of the late Dr. E. M. Stillman of this place, and is an estimable young lady.

Even the spirits have gone into the oil business now. Over in Belmont a company are drilling an oil well to the Trenton rock 3,500 feet in search of oil that Spiritualists assert can be found there in paying quantities. Operations will be watched closely there, and should the prophesied production be found, more faith would undoubtedly be had in the further predictions of the Spiritualists.

At the late National Encampment at Chicago, the following officers were elected: Commander-in-Chief, Major Leo Rassieur of St. Louis, Mo.; Senior Vice, E. C. Millieken, Portland, Me.; Junior Vice, Frank Seamond, Knoxville, Tenn.; Surgeon General, John R. Wilkins, Delta, Ohio; Chaplain, Rev. A. Drahms, San Quentien, Cal. Denver was unanimously chosen as the place for the next encampment.

G. W. Kemp and family of Buffalo were welcomed by their many friends in Andover for a few days visit this week. George was a pleasant caller on the NEWS force Friday, and tried to knock the bottom out of our money till by dropping two of Uncle Samuel's cart wheels therein. They returned home Sunday morning, taking with them his mother, who will stay at their home, George says, as long as he can get her to.

The following officers were elected by the ladies of the Women's Relief Corps at their recent National Convention at Chicago: President, Mrs. Mary L. Carr of Longmont, Cal.; Senior Vice, Mrs. B. M. Satterlee, St. Louis, Mo.; Junior Vice, Mrs. Abbie R. Flagg, Battle Creek, Mich.; Treasurer, Mrs. Sarah E. Phillips, Syracuse, N. Y. The Convention will meet next year at Denver in connection with the G. A. R. National Encampment.

The Akron Breeze says: A lady who is interesting herself in getting up an Indian exhibit for the Pan-American Exposition, claims she has discovered on the Tonawanda reservation an old Indian woman, who, if she lives until the Exposition opens, will have lived thru three centuries, and will be over one hundred years old. This remarkable woman is said to have been born in 1799 and she is described to be living in an old hut at Indian Falls. It is proposed to move her and her habitation to the Exposition grounds.

Maybe there is a nicer lot of fellows, and a better band than the Andover Excelsior Band, but you don't find them in Western New York. As they marched to the depot Monday morning to take train 6 for their Rochester trip, our citizens all felt a feeling of pride, not only because of their appearance but because the band boys are composed of the kind of gentlemen who behave themselves when away from home as well as at home. Andover has no fear of her band disgracing themselves or their town when away.

The Olean Common Council has passed a curfew ordinance which forbids all boys and girls under 16 years of age from being on the street after 9 o'clock in the evening unless accompanied by parent or guardian, or bearing a signed statement that it is necessary for the young one to be out. The parent or guardian of the child shall be punishable for the first offense by a fine of $1 and costs, the second offense $2 and costs, and each other offense $5 and costs, and the guilty one shall be placed in Little Valley jail until the fine is paid, unless paid forthwith.—Bolivar Breeze.

SHOE TALK.

Nearly all of the new styles in shoes for Fall and Winter are already in. Footwear of the serviceable sort is to be found here always, but this season finds our stock containing better shoes for the money than ever before. We would especially mention the "Shield" line of school shoes, which embody more worth than any children's shoes made.

John Kelly's for women and Walkovers for men are of course top-notchers in their respective lines. We have them both in large variety. In the medium grades, ranging from $1.50 to $2.50 we show the greatest values to be found anywhere.

We are selling men's Kip Grain and Calf Skin Boots at about to-day's wholesale prices, but these low prices cannot last longer than our present boot stock holds out. So buy now.
