REPORTORIAL.

Winter.

Good skating on the pond.

Time to make sauer kraut.

Getting ready for Christmas?

Politics is a skating pond full of big holes.

Any old maid will tell you she doesn't like men.

A promise is the only thing one can give and yet keep.

It is said November was six degrees colder than the average.

None are so content with what they know as they who know little.

Mrs. Jane Cunningham will live in the McTighe house on Elm street from now on.

The plumber should not be blamed for having pipe dreams this cold weather.

About time to be framing those New Years resolutions you don't intend to keep.

Don't be in a hurry to borrow trouble. You can always find it when you want it.

Frank Gilder has recently purchased a fine residence property on Main street, Hornellsville.

W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Bradley Friday Dec. 4th. Mrs. Bundy, Mrs. Hann, Directors.

L. C. Van Fleet and family will occupy a suit of rooms in the Ellis block. They moved Wednesday.

Dr. E. J. Loughlen is moving his family into their new home recently purchased of J. C. Dyer on East Center street.

J. C. Dyer has moved to rooms over the cold storage building until the completion of his new residence on Greenwood street.

The Inasmuch society of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. R. A. Pease Friday evening. Subject, "Customs of India."

The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well and doing well whatever you do without a thought of fame.

Look down the street leading to the depot if you want to see a building that indicates Andover's growth. It's the factory of the Andover Stamping Works.

Atty. and Mrs. C. L. Earley are rejoicing over the arrival of a new daughter Monday. Grandpa Supervisor Henry will live thru it, tho at first he was acting up like a boy with his first pair of new red-top boots.

Railroad Wants the Highway.

The B. & S. railroad, in its extension to Buffalo from Wellsville, wishes to use part of the highway between Scio and Belmont, and has asked the Town Board of Amity to give them that privilege. At a meeting of the board recently that privilege was granted provided the railroad were to at expense in the matter, building the new highway, and securing the right of way of the property owners living along the road.

A Costly Mistake.

Blunders are sometimes very expensive. Occasionally life itself is the price of a mistake, but you'll never be wrong if you take Dr. King's New Life Pills for dyspepsia, dizziness, headache liver or bowel troubles. They are gentle yet thorough. 25c. at O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Coston, Greenwood.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.

Public Lecture by Dr. D. H. Mann at the M. E. Church Wednesday Evening.

Dr. D. H. Mann, Grand Chief Templar of the Independent Order of Good Templars, will deliver a public lecture at the M. E. church, Wednesday evening, Dec. 9th. Dr. Mann is an eloquent and gifted speaker and is at the head of the Temperance orators. Andover people should not miss the opportunity to hear him. Other out-of-town speakers will be present and take part in the exercises. Appropriate music will be rendered.

Have You Ordered Your Magazines Yet?

The NEWS will get them as cheaply, if not at a lower price, than you can anywhere else if you are a paid-in-advance subscriber of this paper. We will fill any combination order published at the same rate.

County Lodge.

Allegany County Lodge, No. 13, meets with Andover Lodge, No. 320, I. O. G. T., at their rooms Tuesday and Wednesday night. Public meeting at the M. E. church Wednesday evening, a notice of which will be found in another column.

Horse Balked.

Up Water street the other day a horse balked with a lady, and she sat and stared at the animal for hours, when the animal concluded to go on. Evidently the horse had never before had any experience with women.

Six Holidays.

"November had six holidays and five Mondays."—Elmira Advertiser.

We knew some people considered Sunday a holiday, but did not suppose a reputable journal like the Advertiser would class it as such.

The NEWS is now in position to give its patrons the lowest price on almost any publication printed, in combination with the NEWS or GREENWOOD TIMES. Next week we will publish a list of the papers with which we can make you exceptionally low figures. Watch for our clubbing rates.

Ancient Child Burial.

There was an order in the Church of England up to the year 1552 that if a child died within a month of baptism he should be buried in his chrisom in lieu of a shroud. The chrisom was a white baptismal robe with which in mediæval times a child when christened was enveloped. A sixteenth century brass in Chesham Bois church in Buckinghamshire represents Benedict Lee, chrisom child, in his chrisom cloth. The inscription underneath the figure stands thus:

Of Rogr. Lee, gentilma, here lyeth the son, Benedict Lee, cryasom whos soule thu pdo.

—Westminster Gazette.

An Expensive Error.

The commuter started up from his seat, twisted about, frowned and sat down again as the train moved.

"Anything the matter?" asked the chap who had got on at the last station.

"Yes," replied the commuter gloomily—"yes, there is. For the second time this week the conductor has punched my meal instead of my railroad ticket. I must get glasses for him or for myself!"—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Politeness.

Little Elmer—Papa, what is politeness?

Professor Broadhead—Politeness, my son, is the art of not letting other people know what you really think of them.—Town Topics.

Liver Pills

That's what you need; something to cure your biliousness, and regulate your bowels. You need Ayer's Pills. Vegetable, gently laxative.

FOOTBALL.

The Old Fashioned School Game Wherein Everybody Played.

There is no such spirit in the school today as in old times. They have a football eleven, it is true, and it holds its head well up among its mates; a lit tle above 'em, too, most of the time—the old school's the old school yet, I tell 'em—but, after all, it isn't the old game nor the old spirit. I go out sometimes to watch them and think, "Well, it's a queer game they play now and call football!" They trot out in such astonishing toggery—padded and guarded from shin to crown, welted, belted, strapped and buckled beyond recognition. And there's no independence in the play; every move has to be told 'em. It's as if they weren't big enough to run alone, and so they hire a big stepmother of a university "coach," who stands round in a red sweater and yells and berates them. Not a man answers back; he doesn't dare to. They don't dare eat plain Christian food, but have a "training table" and diet like invalids. I've seen 'em at a game not dare take a plain drink of water. When they got thirsty they sucked at a wet sponge, like babes at the bottle!

It was not so in our day. No apron strings of a university coach were tied to us. We were free born men. When we wanted to play we got together and went down to the old pasture, to the big oak tree that stood near the middle of it, and there we would "choose up" and take off our coats and vests and neckgear and pile them round the oak and walk out on the field and go at it—everybody—not a pitiful dozen or so, while the rest stood with their hands in their pockets and looked on, but everybody! And it was football; no playing half an hour without seeing the ball in the air once. We kicked it all the time except when we missed it, and then we kicked the other fellow's shins. And when we got thirsty we went down to the spring and took an honest drink out of an honest tin cup.—G. H. Teeple in Atlantic.

THE DANDELION.

No More Successful Plant and None More Wonderful.

Perhaps none of our plants is more common or more familiar than the dandelion, and certainly none is more wonderful. First of all it is not a native, but was introduced from Europe, whence have come many of our worst weeds, fitted by centuries of struggle in cultivated fields to overcome the native plants of a continent where cultivation had previously been practically unknown and where natives had had no opportunity of adapting themselves to the conditions of civilized agriculture.

One of the dandelion's strongest points is the ability to obtain nourishment under strong competition and in unfavorable situations. A deep, strong, perennial taproot draws all available nourishment and moisture from surface and subsoil, stores nourishment during the winter and enables the plant to start far and away ahead of most of its competitors. This same taproot is exceedingly bitter, which very likely protects it from destruction by moles and other animals. At least I do not remember having seen a root that had been disturbed by animals of any kind.

But only a small portion of its food comes from the soil. Air and sunshine are just as necessary, for the air is food and the sunshine is digestion for our vegetable neighbors. Note the shape of the leaves. Narrow at the base and widening at the outer end, they form a dense rosette that not only gets for the dandelion all the air and sunshine coming its way, but smothers all but the most sturdy competitors. Here lies the secret of the dandelion's presence in lawns and walks and open waste places. In lawns the grass is kept low so that it cannot overtop and shade the dandelion, while its own leaves lie so low and close that they are little hurt by the mower and can smother the grass underneath.—Harper's Magazine.

THE OLD RELIABLE

Absolutely Pure

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

Family Dissensions.

Dissension in families often arises from a lack of mutual consideration among the members of the family. The "soft answer that turneth away wrath" is forgotten for the hasty reply, the unkind retort, that kindle the fire of ill feeling. Love does not linger in the home where rudeness shows its unlovely qualities. It chooses to dwell in the home where the spirit of unselfishness of self control, of thoughtfulness and of charitableness makes the atmosphere sweet. The woman who is quick to take offense is not like her of whom Holy Scripture says, "Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." Happy homes depend on happy hearts. Home is distinctively a woman's sphere, and she who sweetens it most makes earth nearer heaven

A Frightened Horse.

Running like mad down the street dumping the occupants, or a hundred other accidents, are every day occurrences. It behooves everybody to have a reliable salve handy and there's none as good as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Burns, cuts, sores, eczema and piles, disappear quickly under its soothing effect. 25c. at O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Coston, Greenwood, Drug Store.

Startled the Chaplain.

An English clergyman tells many quaint stories of his experiences as a prison chaplain. One of these relates how he took a reformed burglar out for a drive in the country after an enforced seclusion in one of his majesty's prisons. The burglar appeared to enjoy himself immensely, but when they passed a pretty house standing back from the road and bearing evidence of the taste and wealth of the owner the burglar fairly gloated over it and, turning to the canon, exclaimed, "What a lovely little crib that would be to crack, sir, wouldn't it?"

The Dominant Janitor.

Mrs. McCall—And what did you say your eldest boy's full name was?

Mrs. De Coursey—Michael Brannigan De Coursey.

Mrs. McCall—Well—er—that's rather odd.

Mrs. De Coursey—Yes; but, you see, when he was born we were living in a flat and we didn't want to move out. Mr. Michael Brannigan was the janitor.—Philadelphia Press.

The Same Brand.

"I really must send the cook away, George; she uses such dreadful language sometimes."

"What kind of language, dear?"

"Well—oh, the same as you use, you know!"—Brooklyn Life.

The Poet's Meals.

"I'm nearly famished," sighed the garret poet.

"But you told me you had two meals a day," said the friend.

"Yes; oatmeal and corn meal."—Philadelphia Record.

Sir Boyle Roche said, "Single misfortunes never come alone, and the greatest of all possible misfortunes is generally followed by a much greater."
