Pepsin preparations often fail to relieve indigestion because they cau digest only albuminous foods. There is one preparation that digests all classes of food, and that is Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It cures the worst cases of indigestion and gives instant relief, for it digests what you eat. Benedict & Van Noy, Andover; E. Breeze, Elm Valley.

Curio Hunters in Rural England.

Nowadays there is scarcely a cottage, too remote to be visited by the furniture collectors. Most districts are scoured by the agents of the large furniture firms in London, and the rural folk are beginning to understand the value of their old oak chairs and grandfather clocks and their beloved china handed down from generation to generation. On genuine old willow pattern plates and dishes there is a great run nowadays, and many a cottage dresser has been shorn of its glory in consequence. Still, some of the poor people—all honor to them—cling to their old sticks and plates and refuse to be tempted by the offers of the old curio hunters.—N. Y. Sun.

Churches in War.

A church in war time is always apt to be put to warlike uses. Churches, as a rule, are very substantially built, and, when a town is attacked, the first impulse is to turn the church into a fort. There is hardly a cathedral in Europe that has not been at one time the scene of a bloody conflict, or occupied by troops. In the Philippines, the Tagalogs almost invariably are driven from churches, and in China the allied troops occupy the temples without scruple. As a missionary said recently: "They say the end justifies the means, but soldiers make it very difficult to preach the gospel of peace!"—Golden Days.

The Pope a Lover of Flowers.

The pope is a real lover of flowers. When he allows himself some recreation (and this is generally when his physician has ordered rest) he spends the time, if possible, in the vatican gardens. With gentle touch he will raise the blossoms for inspection, remove dead petals or leaves, almost caressing his favorite plants, before which he often stands in lengthy contemplation.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Reforming the Mexican Army.

An attempt is being made to reform the Mexican army, teaching the officers to stay by their men in an engagement, instead of seeking a secure place when danger is encountered, and the men to fire from the shoulder instead of the hip. President Diaz intends to leave his army provided with the best modern arms.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Careful Speaker.

"What did you expect to prove by that exceedingly long-winded argument of yours?" asked the friend.

"I didn't expect to prove anything," answered the orator. "All I hoped to do was to confuse the other fellow, so that he couldn't prove that I didn't prove anything."—London Answers.

In Keeping.

He—Since this is the anniversary of our wedding day, I s'pose I've got to do something to please you. What shall it be?

She—There's a lecture to-night on "Wild Beasts I Have Met."—Indianapolis Press.

For Form's Sake.

Tess—Jack tried to kiss me last night.

Jess—Indeed? Of course you resisted?

"Certainly. Every time."—Philadelphia Press.

For Safe Keeping.

Mr. Fijjit—Say, that's the rottenest obacco I ever smoked!

Mrs. Fijjit—Oh, George, you're smoking up my fancy silk! I put it in your obacco jar for safe keeping.—Ohio State Journal.

The Mark of a True Man.

Uniformly kind, courteous and polite treatment of all persons is one mark of the true man or woman.—Chicago Daily News.

Makes Two Friends.

He who takes a child by the hand makes a mother by the heart.—Danish proverb.

A Thoughtless Answer.

"Do you think of me as often as you did before we were married?" asked Mr. Meekton's wife.

"Much oftener," he answered, cheerily, but absent-mindedly. "You see Henrietta, you weren't in a position to then remind me of yourself as much as you can at present."—Washington Star.

Her Eloquent Look.

The plea of a man arrested for swearing at his mother-in-law was that he "commenced with him first."

"Did she swear at you?" asked the judge.

"No, your honor, but she looked it!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Narrow Escape.

Mr. Bifkins—I'm sorry this pie—

Mrs. Bifkins—Isn't like yours, mother's, eh? O, go on and say it; pray don't spare my feelings!

Mr. Bifkins—My love, I was going to say I'm sorry this pie isn't four times as big as it is.—Ohio State Journal.

Her Idea.

Mr. Justwed—How dare you ask me for fifty dollars? Only yesterday you asked me for ten!

Mrs. Justwed—And got one. I thought if I asked for fifty to-day I might get five.—Judge.

Wrecked Lives in Paris.

An American art student in Paris says: "There are more wrecks of young lives and young ambitions in Montmartre than in any other quarter of the globe. Fellows who fancy they are destined to become great artists have the illusion knocked out of them, but they refuse to leave. They are there from all parts of the world stranded, hopeless beggars. One case in particular caught my attention—that of an Englishman. His father is an evangelist, who came over to America several years ago. This fellow associates with nobody, and his only companion is a little black dog. He will live for days on bread and milk in order that he may buy meat for his dog. One night I was with a crowd of other students, and we passed him in the street. He turned, glared at us and hissed: 'I hate them! I hate them! Then he sat down on the curb, with his dog in his arms, and buried his face in its shaggy coat!"—N. Y. Times.

When Arab Widows Remarry.

The widow of an Arab who intends to take to herself a second spouse naturally thinks that her late lamented husband would not approve, so the night before the wedding she goes to pay him a visit at his grave. There she humbly kneels and prays him not to be jealous or offended. Probably she believes that he will be both and that she must make a definite act to appease his wrath. Accordingly she takes with her an ass bearing two goats' skins of water. When her prayers are ended she takes the water skins and proceeds to saturate her husband's grave. Whether a plentiful libation of cold water has a soothing effect on the spirit of the departed or not may be a matter of conjecture, but, having made it, the widow feels that she has done all that can be required of her and enters wedlock again without misgiving.—N. Y. Times.

AMONG FRIENDS.

Alma—I made the acquaintance of my husband at a charity bazar.

Ella—I suppose he married you for charity's sake!—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

A Frost.

Though he receives as much applause
As any player in the land,
He played two hours at poker, once,
And failed to get a single hand.
—Puck.

Well Held Down.

Penelope—She says she's only 40.

Patrice—She certainly holds her age well.

"You mean she holds it down well, I suppose."—Yonkers Statesman.

Wanted to Know. You Know.

Miss Rocksey—A friend told papa he couldn't see how you could afford to marry.

Impecune—Why, isn't your father as rich as reported?—Town Topics.

The Faithful Cat.

Mrs. Bacon—Do you keep a cat?

Mrs. Egbert—Yes; we don't seem to be able to get rid of it.—Yonkers Statesman.

Revenge in Sight.

Mrs. Jones—The Joolksons are highly elated because their baby weighs ten pounds and ours only eight.

Jones—Wait till they have to walk the floor all night with it, and they will want to swap with us.—Tit-Bits.

He Failed to Guess It.

Mrs. Hix—Why is a husband like dough?

Mr. Hix—Because a woman needs them both, I suppose.

Mrs. Hix—No; it's difficult for a woman to get either off her hands.—Chicago Daily News.

An Important Distinction.

Old Doctor—If you can manage it, get your name in the papers.

Young Doctor—But etiquette forbids a physician to advertise.

Old Doctor—Yes; but not to be advertised.—Puck.

Persons who suffer from indigestion cannot expect to live long because they cannot eat the food required to nourish the body and the products of the indigested foods they do eat poison the blood. It is important to cure indigestion as soon as possible, and the best method of doing this is to use the preparation known as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat and restores all the digestive organs to perfect health. Benedict & Van Noy, Andover; E. Breeze, Elm Valley.

THAT "BARGAIN" WATCH!

Perhaps you'd like to take back that watch you bought at a "bargain." It hasn't turned out to be what you paid your money for. But the dealer didn't give you a guarantee, and he has gone out of business. Your money is gone, the dealer is gone, but the watch won't go. If you had one of my watches 10 years ago with my guarantee, it would be good to-day. It is the same with all my goods. If they are warranted, rest assure that guarantee is good.

RETIRING POSTMASTER, JOHN C. CANNON.

The subject of the above illustration is a familiar face to every one. He has been Andover's efficient postmaster for almost eight years past, having in that time held three commissions, the first one bearing date of April 4th, 1894, and was issued by the Postmaster General, and was good only during his pleasure. The second commission was issued to him when the post-office was changed from a fourth-class to a third-class office, and was issued by Grover Cleveland. It was good only until the convening of the next session of the United States Senate. The third one was also issued by Grover Cleveland and confirmed by the Senate of the United States, and was good for four years, the time limit of which expired on the 22d day of December last. Since Mr. Cannon has had his swing in post-office matters many changes and improvements have been made. The salary has been increased from a little above $800 a year to $1,100, and it is expected it will now be raised at the next adjustment to $1,200. The daily service of the delivery of mail to the office is much better than then, as thru his efforts a thru mail is brought here from Hornellsville on train 1, and train 14 now contributes her daily grist of mail. The location of the post-office has been changed twice during his administration, from the old Prest block to the Ellis block, and from the Ellis block to its present quarters. Mr. Cannon made one of the very best of postmasters, and his friends are proud of his gilt edge service to the public.

Writing an Ad.

Did you ever stop to think, you who read the advertisement in the newspapers, just what it means to get up the ad every day for a big department store? The man in charge usually has a staff of assistants, who are assigned to certain departments of the store each day. They must familiarize themselves with the stock of these departments, while the manager of the advertising department himself is supposed to keep thoroly in touch with the entire stock of the store. He writes the general introduction to the advertisement each day, and edits the copy turned in to him by his assistants, just as an editor handles the copy of his reporters. "Just as much care is taken with this matter as the it were so much imperishable literature," said the advertising manager of a big department store. "You sometimes hear of a famous author spending hours over one paragraph, writing it and re-writing it to get the best and strongest effect. You wouldn't think that would be necessary in writing an advertisement, but it is. My assistants sometimes spend an hour over one sentenee. There is more science in writing an advertisement that will bring results than perhaps in any other form of composition."—Philadelphia Record.

Andover's New Post-Office.

It is now generally understood that our new post-office is to be located in the Harman drug store building on North Main street, but few of our readers are aware of the splendid outfit which will be placed in that building. We are credibly informed that the new cabinet is to be one of Yale & Towne's very best outfits, made of quartered oak, and finished to perfection. The outfit is their regular $600 case. The space between the case and ceiling will be filled in with glass transoms, thus making the office part entirely shut off from the lobby outside. The case will be a "U" or center style, and will contain four hundred boxes. The locked boxes will be on the right side and the call boxes on the left, the general delivery and stamp windows being directly in front. The money order office will be on the left hand side way in the rear. With this outfit Andover will have as good, if not the best post-office in Allegany county.

OUR NEW POSTMASTER, W. B. BUNDY.

Everybody knows a hustler when they see him, and all that is necessary to convince one that the subject of the above illustration is a hustler from Hustletown is to look at it. Every feature of the face and every movement of his body has in it that which denotes enthusiasm and "get there." Yes, and he has got there now, too, even tho it did take some hard tugging. Mr. Bundy is not a born New Yorker—being born in Michigan—but he has been a resident of New York state that long that he has become a typical New Yorker. At the age of 15 years he went to work in the First National Bank of Wellsville for Hoyt & Lewis, and was in their employ for three years. On the first of May, 1885, he entered the employ of Burrows & Miller at Andover, as book-keeper, and in October, 1890, became cashier of the A. M. Burrows Banking House, which position has been well and faithfully filled by him since. Mr. Bundy is an ardent Republican, and his earnestness and zest for that party's supremacy in the late political struggle is without doubt one of the reasons why his party has given him the postmastership of Andover. No one can doubt Mr. Bundy's ability to take care of the office, and we are all satisfied that no effort will be too great for him to make in bettering the mail service of our village. Success to Postmaster Bundy.
