Letter to E. A. Cottrell.

ANDOVER, N. Y.

Dear Sir: There's a little bit of a state down east—a Rhode Island man was fined $100 the other day for selling potatoes—his bushel was like his state: short measure.

It isn't fair to punish a man for short-bushel potatoes, and not for short-gallon paint.

There is short-gallon paint in many stores in your section.

If you get sent to the legislature, will you get the law fixed?

Devoe lead and zinc don't measure short: and don't last short. It's full-measure both ways.

Yours truly,

President - Jason A. Hunt.
Trustee - Delaney K. Porter.
Treasurer - Arthur B. Burrows.
Collector - Milton J. Gray.

Furniture that is not plain to the eye is fit for nothing but a barn. Elegance is one thing and strength is another, but there is not the least reason in the world why the two should not go together in Furniture.

After No-License, What?

NUMBER II.

Under the name of clubs, drinkers sometimes provide for themselves a common resort where they can satisfy their appetites under the claim that they are complying with the law. The law of this state makes exceptions in favor of any "corporation or association, organized in good faith . . . . under any law which provided for the organization of societies or clubs for social, recreative or similar purposes, and which corporation or association was lawfully organized, and, if a corporation, its certificate of incorporation duly filed prior to March twenty-third, eighteen hundred and ninety-six." It has been ruled that the exceptions "do not apply" "to an organization, the sole object of which" is "to supply liquors to its members for the purpose of evading the provisions of the Liquor Tax Law." Such clubs are designated under the law as "Fake Clubs," and have no legal existence or rights. Persons maintaining them are liable to all of the penalties, involved in illegal liquor selling. The persons who would go into them are already topers, and they thus seek to make provisions to finish themselves off, which is not as bad a thing for society as it is to provide, as the open saloon does; for making topers out of men who have too much self-respect to attempt to maintain such a club by becoming members of it.

GETTING DRINKS IN OTHER TOWNS.

If the citizens of other towns had rattlesnakes in their dooryards and some of our citizens would persist in getting bitten, it would not follow that it would be wise to have the snakes in our own dooryards. He who would reason that we should would be laughed at by everybody. But his logic would be the same as the logic of the person who wants saloons at home because some of our citizens will patronize saloons away from home. All things considered, the final effect upon the person who is snakebitten is not as bad as the final effects of becoming a drunkard. The difference in the two ideas which appeals to the cupidity of some men is, that the saloon at home keeps the money at home. It is marvelous how a little cash will atone for the sacrifice of character in the estimation of some persons. The money of the persons who will go to other towns to get their drinks is not generally of much value to any persons besides the saloon keepers in their own towns. They want more beer than beef, and generally get the former for cash and the latter on credit. They want more grog than groceries, and are sure to pay the grog-seller, and apt to cheat the grocer. When calf day comes, if we have no saloons, the farmer will not spend his check for his calf for drink before he gets from the depot to the grocery, as has been done in Andover. S. D. PICKETT.

Lucy Stone Club.

The Lucy Stone Club will meet for business and study with Mrs. John M. Mosher, Tuesday afternoon, April 2d. A large attendance is desired as business of importance is to be transacted.

The Excelsior Band.

The Excelsior Band met in the new Town Hall last Saturday evening, where they had been given free quarters thru the kindness of the City Fathers, which is a great relief to them after paying rent ten years.

At the business meeting it was voted to give the popular Saturday evening out-door concerts for the summer.

They had not played since last fall, and the first few toots on the instruments brought a large crowd. We presume they thought there was to be a large salp of furniture, and the preliminary fitting of mouth-piece to lips was the scraping of said furniture across the bare floor. After they had settled down to business, there entered the kind-hearted owner of the big graphophone, who also incidentally deals in groceries, and wanted the Excelsior to indent their lasting impression on the wax of one of his cylinders. It was accomplished, and later, when, by invitation, the Band had dropped into his store to hear the result, it was touching; at least it touched said proprietor's pocket, whereby the treasury of the Band was enriched, as will appear later in new music for the concerts. Before the Band left, the proprietor of our popular department store entered and said that after such an effort, the Band needed refreshments, and proceeded to "set them up" after his own ready and graceful manner, and a freedom only acquired by one who has been instructed in the mysterious rites of the great and powerful order of Buffalo. J.

From Manila, P. I.

JAN. 28, 1901.

We are at anchor in the bay of Manila, after a voyage of nearly nineteen days. We left Honolulu Jan. 4th, and on the 23d, at 6:30 a. m., we dropped anchor in the harbor of Manila. We are lying about two and a half or three miles from shore, as the water is too shallow for our ship to get any nearer to it. The bay is about 30 miles wide. We are about five miles from Cavite, where Dewey met and sank the Spanish fleet. Before us on a low strip of country lies the city, back of which are hills and mountains. Everything is so different from anything I ever saw I hardly know what to think. The horses weigh only 300 or 350 pounds, and are hitched to little two wheeled carriages, drawing three or four men thru the streets, traveling not very slow either, and the water buffalo hitched to a cart, like an ox, with its long flat horns, make a very quaint sight. Then there are the large cathedrals that look so grand at a distance, but when you get to them you find they are built out of artificial stone, with an outside coating of stucco that gives them an appearance of smoothness. The large buildings resemble a fort, with a door every few feet, which open into a courtyard, and around the walls of the yard are little rooms without windows. The people do their cooking and washing in the courtyard with an earthen or stone floor. I have not seen a stove, chair, bench, nor a blanket in any of the houses. The bedsteads are of bamboo, and all they use on them is a cotton sheet and pillow. They have no windows, but they use bamboo curtains, and shutters to shut out the rain. It is as hot here now as it is in July and August in Andover, and it is winter. I fear it will be very much hotter in the summer. The women don't wear hats here. I have seen only three, and they were worn by the wives of the officers. Neither do men wear them; only once in a while you may see a man with a bamboo hat on. I could tell of some great things I see, not so beautiful but odd. This country is not as pleasant as Honolulu. JOHN JOHNSTON.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The Public Program given by the members of the Delta Theta was a decided success. The debate on the question of capital punishment was the leading feature of the program. This was opened by Edward Mosher, who gave a logical outline of the position taken by the affirmative. Floyd Brundage next gave a very clear, well prepared group of arguments that brought out many important points. He lacked no material, and for eight minutes he rapidly passed over enough points to firmly establish a strong negative. Clarence Cochrane followed for the affirmative by not only giving many valuable arguments, but he also refuted many of the opposing arguments. Leon Cook next gave an excellent group of points, bringing out his arguments with marked clearness and force. Raymond Hardy gave many strong points to weaken the affirmative, while Leo McTighe presented his points with such emphasis and based them on statistics that left but little room for argument. Floyd Brundage then made a summary of the strong points proven by the negative, and succeeded in refuting many of the opponents' arguments. When Edward Mosher, for the affirmative, began to sum up the debate, there was a very strong position held by the negative. In an off-hand manner, one after another of the strong points of the negative were broken, and, after briefly summing up the arguments of the affirmative, he closed the debate. His pleasing presentation and clearness of arguments so evened the debate that it was after considerable deliberation that a jury of five finally decided that the negative won by a very small margin. Other parts on the program was a well rendered declamation by Lee Baker. Charles Bassett gave a reading of a humorous sketch in a pleasing manner and Arthur Bullard gave a well written outline paper of the work of the society. A piano solo by Francis Cannon was much appreciated and a mixed quartet gave two or three selections. After the program a graphophone entertainment was given while refreshments were served. This is the first public program of the society and as no special drilling had taken place it is evident that these societies are coming to be not only a pleasant but a very valuable addition to the school. The Delta Theta is in a flourishing condition with eighteen active members, and has arranged to soon unite with the Theta Phi Fraternity, being the first High School society in this part of the state to join any High School Fraternity.
