Some of the most inhuman murders have been perpetrated lately. A wave of fiendish crime is passing over the land.

"The tar and feathering scrape at Alfred was one of the lowest criminal acts in the history of Allegany County. The subjecting of a fellow student to the indignity of apunishment that is visited hardly ever except upon those whose crims are so low that the law will not adequately punish them and all this for no offense at all, should subject the perpetrators to the severest penalty that can be meted out to them by law.

A. E. Lerche of Springfield Gives a Recipe For Getting Over the Blues

A. E. LERCHE

"If you ever get the blues," he said, "it is well to know the simplest and best way to get rid of them. Crankiness, nervousness and general upset condition preceding the blues usually are due to the relentless grip of constipation on the nervous system. The simplest way to meet this condition is to have a box of Rexall Orderlies in your pocket and the best way is to take one when you feel the attack coming on. It is the finest laxative for men, women and children I know of and is a regular antidote for the blues—the best ever."

We have the exclusive selling rights for this great laxative. Trial size, 10 cents.

J. D. CHEESMAN & CO., THE REXALL STORE

THE NEW SHOE STORE

The Kilbourne Shoe Co., Inc., have bought the stock, fixtures and lease of the former Hanrahan Shoe Store and it will be conducted in the same location with Mr. F. W. Kilbourne as manager, just as soon as the new owners can get the stock reduced enough to allow alterations, the store will be re-modeled, new shelving, fixtures, windows, etc., making it a model, modern shoe parlor. Mr. Kilbourne has been with the Hanrahan Shoe Store for the past five years, and beside this training, has availed himself of a special course in the new scientific shoe fitting and will specialize along these lines, that is, the proper and correct fitting of shoes. It will certainly be pleasing news to the people of Wellsville and vicinity to know that in the future they will be able to get the same good makes of shoes that the Hanrahan Store carried and in addition to this absolutely certain that when they come a shoe from the Kilbourne Shoe Store they will be properly and correctly fit. We predict a large volume of business for the new Shoe Store for we need just such a store here in Wellsville.

The protracted meetings closed Sunday evening. The meetings throughout were largely attended. A few souls made peace with God through the blood of the cross. Many renewed their covenant, and many, very many, assured the pastor of help received, of new light upon the path of new inspiration and purpose in service. Yes the special meetings were worth while. We are abundantly repaid. Mr. and Mrs. Scott left Andover Monday morning. Their singing was much enjoyed and they left many friends in this place. We much to have them with us again some time in the future.

The Brotherhood are planning a free social for members and their families and friends on Friday evening, Feb. 18th. A good time is assured.

ON BOARD THE OSCAR II.

Descriptive Story by J. E. Jones, Special Correspondent of the Andover News with the Ford Peace Party.

Oscar II.—As I write we are nearing the Shetland Islands, and I hope to achieve one-half of a boyhood ambition, for, I suppose that I was quite like other boys in feeling that there was a particular spot, represented on the map, which I would like to visit. That spot was the Shetland Islands, and I had it figured out that I might go there some day and get a pony and ride it back home. But I am told that the horses that have made these islands precious to childhood for ages, have nearly all been used, and are being destroyed in the countries at war.

We were about four hundred miles away from the British Isles when we were told that we had entered the war zone. The sun rose about nine o'clock in this far Northern latitude and by four o'clock it had set. At five our ship was suddenly halted and we all rushed on deck and discovered that a British cruiser was alongside. We were to have our first experiences and the first impressions of real war, and as a giant of the seas, sinister in the blackness, with only a few lights to indicate its nearness, talked to our wireless, I think that we all wondered what might be the reception of the British Navy to our Peace Ship. A sea boat soon pulled alongside, and while it was approaching I think the passengers were all greatly concerned in the appearance of our own ship, since they were all talking about the brilliant illumination, or lights, which showed the name and "neutrality" of the Oscar II. The red, white and blue and the field of stars may be an inspiration to us people of the United States, but the flag of Denmark, brilliant in the center of our powerful searchlights certainly looked good to us. There was a tense anxiety that is hard to describe, because we knew our ship had been "captured." People talked in subdued tones, and those who loved one another stood together. Soon Lieutenant Jenkins, an ensign and four marines came up over the side of our ship. It was noticed that the men carried side arms of a particularly threatening character, but when in reaching for his ladder we discovered that one of them wore a wrist watch we were thankful for this evidence of gentleness. A stack of rifles being raised to the deck of the Peace Ship looked incongruous. We were promptly reassured when we found that these Britons meant us no harm, and The Lieutenant, who was addressed as "Leftenant" was honized by every one on board when it was found that he was a "jolly old top" and a good fellow. But there was no applause of greeting to these men, and they came to us in silence, bespeaking the serious trend of thought which this first sight of the British Navy and the horror and uselessness of war had instinctively made upon us. There was nothing reassuring in what Lieutenant Jenkins told us, since he frankly stated that no ship could sail in these seas without being in danger. There are many mines and one of the reasons that neutral ships are taken in charge is to keep them out of the pathway of these mines. I suspect that that is the reason why we are going of the circuitous route by way of the Shetland Islands, before we are taken into Kirkwall. We know, too, that in these very waters the German submarines have operated within the past few months, and brought their wreckage to consciousness. At two o'clock this morning half of our company were still finding interesting things to talk about in the cabins and corridors, but no matter what anyone felt there was not a single expression of fear. In explanation, I have heard a definition that seems plausible, and one of my friends has said, that fear is largely a momentary sensation and does not exist until the critical period is at hand. For instance, men who are hanged maintain their courage until the last moment. Perchance this letter should find its way to the bottom of the sea instead of into the mails at Kirkwall or Christiania, it is certain that it has not been written when its author experienced any particularly unusual feeling. Only plain common sense makes us know that in the war zone we are likewise in the danger zone." I was given a practical demonstration of this a few hours before I left Washington, when I was notified by a company that had carried my accident insurance for several years that the same was suspended temporarily. The moon rose last night as customary, the waves dashed by as they have for ten days, we feel the throb and motion of our ship and life goes on regularly in the war zone the same as it did before we reached this perilous spot. Therefore we do not appreciate the danger which actually lurks in our pathway, because we know that the chances are greatly in our favor. But should we survive contact with a mine, or some other accident, the first thing that we would have to write about in telling the story would be "preparedness." We have quarreled about "preparedness" on this "Peace Ship," but while it may not fit the views of the pacifists as applied to nations, yet it seems to have been adopted by individuals, as life preservers are laying on the floors of the state rooms everywhere, while on deck the life boats have been made ready to drop instantly with human freight into the sea. I think most of us discovered the changed conditions of life boats at practically the same time we sighted the English cruiser; and we understood the reason why the canvas covering had been removed, the oars ready for the locks, the cranes prepared to be placed in action in a moment—and if there were any doubts about the matter the fact that each boat was provisioned for as large a party as it can carry seemed to settle the matter. And yet, notwithstanding all these things, we are unafraid. That is human nature asserting itself, and in this instance I am inclined to think that these good men and women all possess something of the spirit of adventure, and the love for a little of the actual danger of the situation. I am trying to describe the situation since for days we must live in this condition—a condition which on the one hand is serious and sinister, and can only be realized by sober, thoughtful contemplation of the actual condition. Moralizing it is a happy characteristic of humanity that industry, commerce and transportation is undisturbed, for as I am dictating this story I hear all about me laughter and happiness; the band is playing home songs on deck and we are apparently as free from anxiety as we could be in our own homes at our own firesides. The members of the party are writing letters which they confidently expect to mail at Kirkwall, although we are told that the censorship will delay the letters longer than as though they were mailed in Christiania. The optimism of humanity which I have described among the Peace Pilgrims, is further proven by the optimism of those letter writers and newspaper men who have such unbounded faith in human agencies, since they are flying in the face of all advice, firm in the belief that because Scotland is nearer than Christiania, that letters, even in the war zone and under the restrictions of the censor, must "of course" reach their destination ahead of those that might go undisturbed from a central port two days farther away.

WAR UPON PAIN!

Pain is a visitor to every home, but usually it comes quite unexpectedly. If you are prepared for every emergency you keep a small bottle of Sloan's Liniment handy. It is the greatest pain killer ever discovered. Simply apply it to the skin—no rubbing required—and the pain goes away. It is really wonderful.

Mervin H. Solster, Berkeley, Va., writes: "Last Saturday, after turning around the Panama Exposition with my feet, I came home with my ankle so lame that I couldn't turn. I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. When my ankle, next morning the swelling had almost disappeared, four hours later the second application I was as good as new."

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

CHILDREN TO TAKE CENSUS

Will Be Used by State Agricultural Department to Gather Data

Albany, Jan. 30.—A half-yearly agricultural census and an annual census to determine the state's agriculture production to be taken by rural children, is part of a plan to be started on February 1st by Charles S. Wilson, commissioner of agriculture, and the state department of education. The census to be taken next month will call for the enumeration of all live stock on New York state farms and the quantity of hay, grain, fruit and vegetables produced in 1915.

The commissioner said he believed that the census would be of great help to his department and that the 500,000 school children of the state would be able to reach every farm.

A second census will be taken next June and at that time the condition of the growing crops is to be reported. Six months later the annual census will be taken.

Commissioner Wilson said he believed that the plan would stimulate the interest of the school-children in agriculture and that they would soon become proficient enumerators.

The department of education is cooperating with the department of agriculture and with the February bulletin of the former department will go blanks upon which the children will take the census. District superintendents and teachers have been asked to explain them to their pupils.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the torture of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system.

To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general healthto purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's agent in blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and upbuild your strength.

Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

CHARMING SWEET PEAS, GEORGEOUS GLADIOLI.

Popular Garden Favorites, the Choicest Seed and Bulbs of Which Are Here Offered

No flower garden, however humble, is complete without a row of lovely Sweet Peas and a bed of magnificent Gladioli, two floral affinities which are concededly the leading favorites with all discriminating lovers of flowers, which are sure to be more popular the coming season than ever before. But it should be remembered that only with the choicest seeds and bulbs can satisfactory results be obtained; and it is precisely such as are here offered. Listen:

LOVELY SWEET PEAS—For 25 cents I will send, postpaid, to any address, eight liberal packets, each of separate name and color, to which I will add three packets of the most exquisite of the orchard-flowered or "Spencer" varieties, and also my usual premiums, a packet of early asters and double poppies.

For 50 cents I will send at least ten packets of the most beautiful "Spencer" kinds in a full range of color, the finest in the world. To encourage early orders I will send free in each collection up to March 15, a packet of superb California nasturtiums.

GEORGEOUS GLADIOLI.—TO all lovers of this charming Summer-flowering bulb I will send 20 very fine bulbs, including some of the most popular named kinds, for 50 cents. For One Dollar 45 splendid bulbs, including some rare premiums, will be mailed to any address. Send postal for handsome descriptive folder with several half-tone cuts, prices and cultural directions. It's FREE.

Coin remittance much preferred. Address:

SOUTH HILL

Remarkably "open" winter this, in which a South Hill farmer in short sleeves was observed plowing on Jan. 31st.

Horan Bros. drew their pressed hay to Andover the last of the week.

Wm. Dean has been having a tussle with grippe which has confined him to the house the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Appier were guests at the home of R. McAndrew over Sunday, going on Monday to Wellsville.

A large number of our residents attended the funeral of Dave Magner, held in Wellsville Friday. Mr. Magner was for many years a resident of Vorhees Hill, and was well and favorably known in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Mingus were doing business in Wellsville Monday.

The family of James Dean have been ill with the grippe.

Mrs. Edw. Horan and little daughter were guests of Wellsville relatives the first of the week.

A. M. Mingus is remodeling his cheese-factory into a tool and carriage house. Mr. Slocum of Andover is doing the work.

Substitute mail carrier, Floyd Clark of Independence, was over the route Tuesday.

News of the death of Stephen Keough in Wellsville Thursday morning came as a great shock to his many friends and former neighbors on our hill. In early childhood his parents removed to South Hill, where he grew to manhood, loved and respected by all, until eighteen years ago when he moved his family to Wellsville where he has since resided. His funeral in that city Saturday was very largely attended, our residents all paying their last tribute of respect to his memory. Universal sympathy is expressed for the family, who have been so suddenly deprived of a devoted and affectionate husband and father. Also his brother, John, who is now the only surviving member of the family. Surely God's ways are unfathomable, but though Steve, with his kindly cheery ways, is gone, his memory will live long among us.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Dean, Henry Horan and daughter Nellie, Mrs. Wm. Dean and Mrs. R. McAndrew were in Wellsville from Thursday evening until Saturday in attendance at the Magner and Keough funerals.
