Fox-Nold.

From the Wayland Register, Sept. 25:

One of the prettiest weddings that has taken place in Wayland for some time was celebrated at St. Joseph's church Wednesday morning at 8 a. m. when Mr. John Fox led to the altar as his bride the handsome and accomplished daughter of our townsman, Geo. Nold, the charming Miss Ida. A large number of friends and relative of the contracting parties had congregated at the church at that hour to witness the ceremony.

The bride was dressed in white silk and mousclin de soie over taffeta with silk applica and pearl trimmings and white chiffon veil. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Fox, was dressed in white silk applica and carried a pink carnation, shower bouquet. Miss Madaline Nold was the maid of honor and was prettily gowned in white organdie trimmed with white silk and ribbon and carried a shower bouquet. Mr. Peter Engle was best man while Geo. Vogt and Frank Rauber acted as ushes.

The ceremony was performed by Fr. Stemmler and was beautiful and impressive. After the wedding the party and about seventy-five of the invited friends and relatives repaired to the home of the bride's father, Mr. George Nold, on East Naples street, where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. After a season of merry making and feasting the nowly wedded couple left over the Erie for Elmira and other points on an extended tour. They were accompanied to the depot by their young companions who serenaded them with song, and showered rice and old shoes after them. After their return they will remove to Andover where they will make their future home. They were the recipients of many beautiful and valuable presents.

The contracting parties are two of Wayland's best known and most popular young people, and their host of friends will join with the Register in the wish that the journey thru life so auspiciously begun may always be strewn with roses and only enough thorns to make the roses seem more sweet.

Relatives from out of town present were: Miss Katie Gunther, Mrs. Jacob Gunther and daughter of Perkinsville; Viola Robinson and Celia Fox of Penn Yan; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Beik of Dansville; Miss Clara Hoffman of Avon and Miss Weber of Indianapolis, Ind.

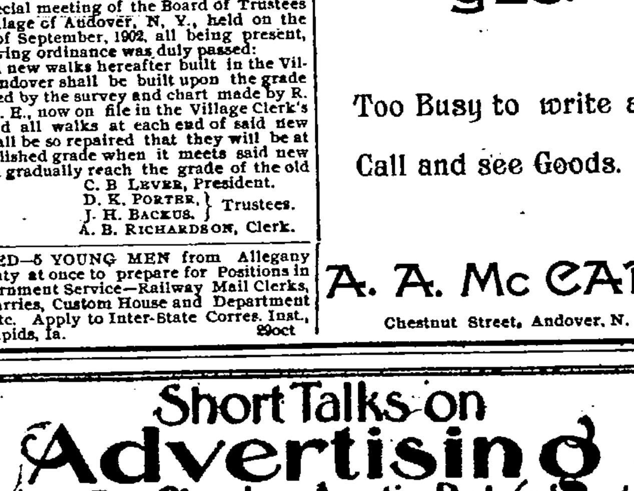
Chestnut Street, Andover, N. Y.



No. 9.

People used to say:

"Oh, I never pay any attention to advertisements; they never tell the truth."

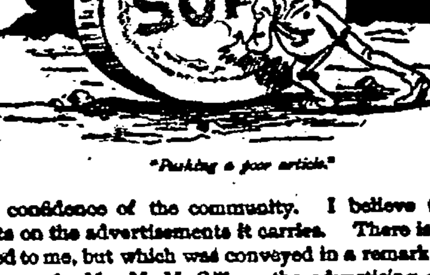
Now it's different; people do read advertisements and they believe them. Advertisers are becoming more careful and more scrupulously truthful every day.

I know a firm of advertising agents who also own a medicated soap. I said:

"Is it really such a wonderful thing, and do you take the care you say you do in making it?"

The answer was:

"Of course it is a good thing. We have seen too much of advertising to be fools enough to spend money pushing a poor article."

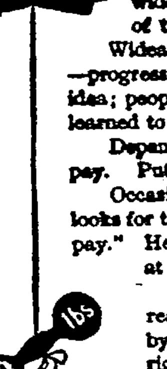


"Pushing a poor article."

Most all advertisers understand this nowadays, and that is why advertising pays better than it used to.

The best place to put an advertisement is in the paper that enjoys the confidence of the community. I believe that the standing of the paper reflects on the advertisements it carries. There is another thought which never occurred to me, but which was conveyed in a remark recently made to me by Mr. M. M. Gillam, the advertising manager at Wanamaker's. He said:

"A sleepy paper gathers a sleepy constituency. An alert, wideawake, progressive sheet gets readers who like that sort of thing—or lifts them to its level."



"If the editorials carry any weight."

Wideawake people are the ones most influenced by advertising—progressive people who are not afraid of a new thing or a new idea; people who believe in the paper they read because they have learned to rely on it.

Depend upon this. If the editorials carry weight, the ads. will pay. Put your trust and your money in that sort of a paper.

Occasionally an advertisement will fall flat. The wise man looks for the reason. He doesn't say blindly: "Advertising doesn't pay." He looks at the condition of general trade, at the weather, at the goods and the price and the way the ad. was worded.

This is certain: A readable ad. in a readable paper will be read. Probably not by all of the readers of the paper, but by a sufficient number to make the ad. pay, if the goods are right. No doubt about it whatever. It's as sure as sunshine. A cloudy day comes sometimes, but it doesn't stay long.

Security, profit and economy in the conduct of a Life Assurance Company illustrate the quality and success of its management. Strength and security are the most important conditions to be attained, and the company which, other things being equal, excels in these two, is the best.

There is the same need for care and intelligent discrimination in selecting a life insurance company that there is in selecting investments for a trust fund. The question of first importance in either case is the question of absolute security.

To the Editors of the ANDOVER NEWS:

The old reliable NEWS came to hand regularly, and its pages eagerly scanned for news from home, and we were not disappointed. What with boating, fishing and visiting the days pass all too swiftly. We just visited Plymouth, that Mecca of all New Englanders and their descendants, who, in ever increasing numbers, come each year from the most remote parts of the United States to visit this shrine of American liberty. There are many sights to interest the visitor, among them being Pilgrim's Hall, a large granite stone building, situated on Main street in the middle of the town. It was built in the first part of the 18th century and contains many articles of furniture, pictures and bric-a-brac brought over in the Mayflower, and articles used by the first colonists and their neighbors, the Italians. Miles Standish's old home contains many articles of furniture used by him, also his books, pictures, private papers, wearing apparel, guns, tools, etc. We also visited the site of the old church where the colonists first worshiped. It is now occupied by the third church erected upon this site. This is a large, commodious stone building. Back of it and on a hill overlooking the city and bay is situated the burial place of the Pilgrims and early colonists. This is the oldest cemetery or burial place in the United States.

"Beneath those tottering slabs of slate,
Whose tribute moss and mold efface,
Sleeps the calm dust that made us great,
The true substratum of our race."

The headstones are slate, are nicely marked, and in a quite a good state of preservation. They contain many quaint inscriptions such as "He died aged 60 yrs wanting 2 yrs." (Perhaps he wanted 25 years more, who knows?) The oldest grave we found was that of Wm. Bradford, the first Governor of the Colony, who held that office from 1621 to 1657 (wanting 5 years) In this cemetery is the oldest grave in America, with the Masonic emblem on the headstone, dated 1744. We also found many graves of men prominent in the early history of New England. Also on this hill, among the graves, was the site of the old fort, whose shape and outline could be easily traced, which building served the double purpose of a house and fort that first terrible winter, and in which log building tradition says, "Priscilla told John Alden he had better speak for himself." On the site of this fort is a short stone post surmounted by a round flat marble slab, and the guide told us that any single lady who sat upon this stone was sure to be married within a year. (The stone was kept warm most of the time) We drank from the spring the Pilgrims drank from, and which has always been used as a public drinking place. We thought it the finest water we had tasted since leaving home, and it was very cold. Looking north from the summit of the hill, and down to the bay, we saw the immortal Rock, and the first lines of Longfellow's "Landing of the Pilgrims" came to our lips:

"The stormy waves beat high
Upon a rough and rock bound coast,
And the woods against the stormy sky,
Their giant branches tossed,
And the heavy night hung dark,
The hills and waters o'er,
When a band of exiles moved their bark,
On a wild northeast shore."

Of course we had to stand upon this rock which has the date 1620 cut in deep figures. Looking northwest from this hill to the top of another hill a tall monument erected to the memory of Miles Stanish meets the eye, and to the southwest, on another eminence, the Government has erected a magnificent monument to the memory of the Pilgrims. The houses of Plymouth have the same old colonial style as rules in all old New England cities.

All New Englanders along the coast have been greatly interested in the mimic war or sham battles as they call them, carried on between the big battleships and the forts along the shore. It reminded us of the days of our civil war, to see soldiers being hurried from place to place to serve in the forts and on the big battleships of the "enemy." These soldiers were drawn from forts from the South and West. The object of the battleships was to surprise and capture the forts on shore. During the day these monsters of destruction would steam slowly along the shore in full view, making a grand display of power, but as night drew near they would steam away to sea, and during the night to reappear along the coast and see if any fort had relaxed its vigilance enough to allow them to get within firing distance, seven miles, but in this they were entirely unsuccessful with the exception of the fort on Block Island, which they caught napping twice, capturing the pickets and taking them on board the ships. There were six forts within a radius of a few miles, and the powerful searchlights from each of these forts were continually crossing each other and sweeping the seas during the nights, making a beautiful electrical display. During the day the heavy guns from these forts made the windows rattle and the dishes clatter in the houses on the main land at each discharge, as they were engaged in target practice. Every night from about midnight to 2 a. m., we were awakened by the booming of cannon from the guns at the forts and the big ships, as they were engaged in their sham battles at some fort which they had attacked. This was continued for five days. The sixth day we were treated to the sight of some target practice from the battleships Kearsarge, Indiana and the Brooklyn. They were firing at another vessel which was towed out to sea for this purpose. At every discharge from these big guns we could feel the earth tremble, altho ten miles away.

Special School Meeting.

To the duly qualified electors of Union Free School District Number One, of the town of Andover, N. Y:

Whereas, an order issued by the School Commissioner of the Second School Commissioner District of Allegany County, dated Sept. 26th, 1902, was served upon the Board of Education of said School District, condemning the school building, situate in said district, as being wholly unfit for use and not worth repairing, and ordering that said old building be done away with and a new building erected at an expense of $15,000 (fifteen thousand dollars).

Therefore, please take notice that a Special School Meeting of the qualified electors of said School District Number 1, will be held at the school building in said district in the village of Andover, N. Y., on the 5th day of November, 1902, at 8:15 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of considering the question of building a new school house as directed by said order, and for the purpose of determining the size of said school-house, the material to be used in its erection, and for voting a tax to pay therefor in an amount of Fifteen Thousand Dollars.

Notice is also given that, if a tax is so voted, that it shall be determined at said special meeting, whether said sum shall be levied in one sum or in installments.

Letter to H. P. Benton,

ANDOVER, N. Y.

Dear Sir: You give full weight of good coal.

So do we—231 inches to a gallon of paint that lasts twice as long as old-fashion painter's paint, lead and oil; and allow our agent to sell it on this guarantee:

"If you have any trouble with this paint, either now in putting it on, or hereafter in the wear, tell your dealer about it.

"We authorize him to do what is right at our expense."

We know a dealer in coal, who delivered his coal with a public weigher's ticket (full weight) invited complaints, and actually exchanged the coal when complaint was made. He had half the business; a dozen firms had the other half.

We are 146 years old, but not too old to sell paint as that dealer sold coal. We like to pay damage—when there are any.

Yours truly,
