Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

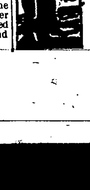
We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.



We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

STATE LEGISLATURE

Members Are Getting Down to Business.

Mortgage Tax Bill Has Not Yet Made Its Appearance — Other Tax Measures—Independents — Hearings — Important Measures Held This Week in Both Houses.

Albany, Feb. 4.

Matters are getting lively in the legislature and legislation is now going on with great dispatch. This week became particularly lively and bids fair to continue so. A lively debate took place on Monday night on the Elmira ward bill and another on the woman suffrage measure.

The $82,000,000 canal bill was considered by the joint canal committee of both houses Tuesday afternoon and the assembly committee on labor and industries had a hearing Tuesday on the bill compelling steam railroads to pay their employes semi-monthly.

The Green notarial tax measure will be discussed this afternoon and the discussion bids fair to be pretty lively. There is a good deal of opposition to this bill and opposition of course always makes lively discussions. To-morrow afternoon the assembly general laws committee will give a hearing on the Finch bill which provides for the inspection of barber shops and compels the use of sanitary appliances by barbers. All those who are obliged to have recourse to barber shops take a deep interest in this bill.

The mortgage tax bill may be introduced this week and then again it may not. Attorneys are busy scrutinizing this measure and the bill cannot be completed until their decisions are made known.

The Canals.

After consultations and conferences discussions and debates the canal bill has been introduced in the senate. This bill provides for the construction of the 1,000-ton barge canal along the alignment of the Erie, Oswego and Champlain canals. The Bostwick bill in the assembly has been amended to match the Davis bill in the senate. These bills provide for the improvement of the Erie, Oswego and Champlain canals about on the lines given in these columns heretofore. The Buffalo and New York canal men made a concession to the Champlain people by granting an additional appropriation of about $1,000,000 for barge canal locks on the canalized Hudson river from Troy to Fort Edward. This improvement will give slack water navigation between those points, thereby providing an outlet to that region for its lumber, wood pulp and other products.

It is also specified in the bill that the only way the boats can reach Buffalo after they leave the canal is by way of the river to Black Rock harbor to Buffalo. The old Erie canal now running between Buffalo and Tonawanda will be retained as a sort of auxiliary harbor. Not all the canal improvement men think alike. There is a portion of them who call themselves conservatives and they will put in a proposition to bond the state for $25,000,000 for deepening the canals throughout the nine feet, as contemplated by the nine million dollar act.

These conservatives ask some pertinent questions as for instance: Would not an improved canal, under the original nine million dollar act, be all that is required to equalize freight rates as between the waterways and railroads? Will the tonnage of the barge canal be increased to an extent that will warrant an additional expenditure of $82,000,000? Is there enough business to justify the additional expense? The conservatives also say that the barge canal plan provides for $82,000,000 in bonds. At 3 per cent the annual interest charges would be $2,460,000. The cost of maintaining the barge canal would be $2,000,000. Adding to this the amount that will have to be raised for the sinking fund for retiring the bonds, the total annual charge the state will be found to be over $4,500,000.

The conservatives have a plan which they think well of which makes the people directly benefited by the improvement pay all the expense. They propose a toll of 25 cents for every ton of goods transported. The capacity of a nine-foot canal they fix at 10,000,000 tons. Thus the revenue from tolls would be $2,500,000 a year, which would not only meet the interest of the canal bonds and the maintenance of cost, but also the installments on account of the sinking fund.

Senator Hill of Buffalo has charge of the constitutional amendments necessary to carry out the barge canal proposition and he may offer a resolution amending the constitution to permit the assessment of tolls. There will be a number of hearings on the canal bills. The first one took place yesterday. It is proposed to allow the opposition ample time to prepare and put in its arguments.

The Independent Senators.

Senators Brackett, Brown and Elsberg made their independence felt during the past week when they lined up with the Democrats against the Elmira ward bill. A vote in the senate on the motion to substitute the assembly for the senate bill found the three senators with the Democrats. The Democrats claim that the effect of substituting the house bill for the senate bill would have been to hurry it along to final passage and they aver that if there was ever a bill which, instead of being hurried, ought to be fully and deliberately considered, it is the bill amending the Elmira charter. The independent senators will prevent the passage of the bill in the senate.

Several bills have been introduced which will affect the state prisons if they become laws. Assemblyman Treat introduced two bills which, if they become laws, will be eminently satisfactory to some of the employes of the prisons, while others may perhaps look upon them with disfavor. One of these bills proposes to graduate the salaries of prison guards and abolish all distinction as between guards and keepers. The salaries of guards have been therefore $750 a year and keepers $960. The bill makes the compensation of all guards $660 for the first year, $740 the second, $820 the third and $900 thereafter.

Another bill of Assemblyman Treat increases the salaries of assistant matrons in the women's prison at Auburn from the uniform rate now paid of $300 a year and maintenance to $350 for the first year, $360 the second and $420 thereafter.

Senator Barnes has put in a bill to amend the prison law by extending the jurisdiction of the parole board over all first term prisoners in the state prisons and Eastern New York reformatory except life term convicts. The senator has also introduced a bill defining the application of the commutation law, making the term definite sentence mean one having a definite or fixed period imposed by the court, and an indeterminate sentence one having a minimum and maximum limits fixed by the court, and making clear that convicts of the latter class are not entitled to commutation.

Shall Women Vote?

This session as every other brings to the front the question of women's voting. The subject always comes up in some form or other. This year's bill is that of Assemblyman G. H. Smith which permits women in cities of the third class to vote on tax propositions. The bill provides that every resident of a city of the third class, of the age of 21 years, whose name shall be in the assessment roll of such city preceding a special election therein to raise a tax, or at which there is to be submitted a proposition involving the raising of a tax, and upon whose property or upon whom as the owner or possessor of property a tax shall be assessed or imposed in and by such roll, and no other person, shall be entitled to vote at such special election.

Every trustee, guardian or other persons representing property mentioned or named in such roll as the possessor or representative of property assessed therein, shall, if a resident of such city and 21 years of age, be considered a qualified voter as aforesaid, in respect to the property so represented. An assessment for a dog tax alone shall not be construed to allow any person to vote at such election.

Tax Measures.

Tax bills are beginning to come to the front and in a short time the attack will be full of them. Assemblyman Ellis has introduced a measure to repeal the present law which levies a tax of 1 per cent upon the surplus and undivided earnings of savings banks. Governor Odell suggested at the session of 1901 this measure with a view to increasing the revenue from indirect taxation. Assemblyman Ellis' bill seeks to repeal this measure and it is in the hands of the assembly committee on taxation and retrenchment.

Governor Odell's bill provided that every savings bank shall pay annually a tax upon its franchise equal to 1 per cent upon the par value of the surplus and undivided earnings. The law further requires every savings bank to report to the state comptroller on or before Aug. 1 of each year the condition of these items at the close of business on the 30th of June preceding, together with any other information which the comptroller may require.

The difference of opinion on taxing mortgages is illustrated by the introduction of a bill by Assemblyman Metcalf which provides that all mortgages on New York state real estate shall be exempt from any taxation whatever.

A bill to protect savings banks has been introduced by Senator Marshall. This is an amendment to the banking law which provides that no corporation, individual or firm not under the control of the banking department shall make representations that it is engaged in a business similar to those conducted under the supervision of the state, or shall advertise rules or regulations similar to those of savings banks or solicit the business of savings banks. If this amendment should become effective it will practically put out of business in that line trust companies and department stores. Superintendent of banks Kilburn favors the amendment.

Another tax bill that is causing much discussion, with both favorable and adverse comment of course, is the mortgage tax bill. This has been introduced by Senator Green and is an act to amend the tax law in relation to the taxation of certificates and conveyances. This measure is the first of those carrying out the governor's suggestions for maintaining the abolition of the direct state tax. It defines certificates as those made before a notary public or a commissioner of deeds. They are each taxed 10 cents. Conveyances are stated to mean deeds whereby property is transferred. On every conveyance a tax of 10 cents on each one hundred dollars or any remaining fraction of it is imposed.

It is estimated that the act will place $2,860,000 in the state treasury. Certificates and conveyances not stamped shall be of no legal force or effect and cannot be admitted or be recorded.

The state comptroller is to prepare the stamps and regulations concerning them. Stamps must be paid for when purchased and for quantities to be designated by the comptroller.

It is said that J. Pierpont Morgan made $42,000,000 during the year 1902. How disappointing it must be to him that he was unable to make it an even $45,000,000!

The Hague will doubtless refrain from calling in King Oscar as an expert witness in arbitration matters.

The Hornellsville Morning Times says "There is neither rhyme nor reason, benefit nor sense in the long name 'Hornellsville,' and it urges a shortening to "Hornell." The latter is shorter, and besides it is the name of the man after whom the town was named, Judge George Hornell.

Edward Blust, who for six years has been chief pharmacist at the hospital of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, has tendered his resignation to take effect Feb. 10th. Mr. Blust will remove to Utica, where he has secured a position with a wholesale drug firm. His position at the Home will be filled from the civil service list.

A fire in Hornellsville last week destroyed Thomas Ryan's clothing establishment on Broad street, the B. P. O. E. lodge rooms and the plumbing and bath fixtures of Fred Warren. Mr. Ryan's loss is between $4,000 and $5,000, with $2,500 insurance; the Elks' loss will reach several hundred dollars. Mr. Warren had no insurance. The loss on the building is about $1,500, covered by insurance. The fire started in the tailoring establishment.

The offer of Mr. Carnegie to give to Hornellsville $25,000 for a library building, the city to supply the site for the structure and to pay at least $2,500 a year for its maintenance, has been accepted by the common council. The Library Association, after considering the offer made by Mr. Carnegie, voted to proffer to the city absolutely free of charge all their real estate and books with all other property owned and in possession of the Association. This property is worth at least $20,000, so the city was made richer by at least a $45,000 library completed in every particular.

The Easy Pill.

DeWitt's Little Early Risers do not gripe or weaken the system. They cure biliousness, jaundice, constipation and inactive livers, by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectively, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach, liver and bowels that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely. These famous little pills exert a decided tonic effect upon the organs involved, and if their use is continued for a few days there will be no return of the trouble. L. A. Burrows, Andover.

Bath cor.: As Lackawanna train No. 15 was nearing this station Friday night the engineer espied a small boy walking ahead of the train between the rails. He blew the whistle and rang the bell, but as the child did not appear to heed the signals, the engineer applied the brakes. The train, however, was under too great headway to stop, and just as the pilot of the locomotive almost touched the boy, he turned his head, saw his danger and started to run, but did not leave the tracks. He stumbled and the train passed over him. When the cars reached a standstill, the train crew rushed back expecting to find the boy's mangled body but were surprised to find him sitting unharmed between the tracks. The entire train had passed over him. He was brought to this station, and Savona communicated with, where it was learned that the child's name is Hogancamp, and that he had run away. His parents were then looking for him, and he was returned home on the next train. He is five years old.

Eviction in the Coal Region.

That was a pathetic story told by John Colk a miner, before the coal strike arbitration commission at Scranton, Pa., the other day, and if it represents a condition prevailing to any extent it is an appalling revelation.

It appears that he had suffered from many accidents while pursuing his calling as a miner. He had lost an eye, his skull had been fractured and one of his legs had been rendered almost useless. His testimony was that he had received no aid from the mine owners until his fellow workmen made up a subscription for him. To this the mine owners added $50, but took the amount of his rent out of the collection. He joined the strike in common with his fellows and was refused work when the strike ended. His rent had gone into arrears during the strike, and because he could not pay on demand he was turned out on the bare mountain side on a cold, rainy day, with his sick wife, his wife's mother, who is blind and a hundred years old, and five children. After his eviction he had to take his family ten miles to a cold, damp, empty house. His wife, already sick, soon succumbed, leaving her little family helpless in the hands of her crippled husband. Her mother is dying and may be dead at this writing.

Perhaps this was an isolated case, but even so it represents a condition that ought not to exist in this country. In view of such revelations as this, it is well that the anthracite controversy should be sifted to the bottom and that there should be no "settlement out of court" until all the facts are brought to light.

DEATH OF G. D. WOODWARD.

One of Greenwood's Prominent Citizens Gone.

On Sunday evening the sad news was received that George Dexter Woodward was dead. The announcement cast a gloom over the entire community as he was widely and favorably known as a patriotic, upright and Christian citizen, a kind and obligin neighbor and devoted friend.

He had been in poor health for several years, and on Tuesday, Jan. 20th, he was taken violently ill, but partially recovered, but on Wednesday of last week he suffered a relapse and on the following day a serious surgical operation was performed, hoping thereby to spare his life, but extreme age, a broken constitution and the malignity of his malady baffled all that medical skill and loving friends could do, and Sunday evening, surrounded by family and friends, he sank peacefully to rest.

In his death his family suffer the loss of a kind husband and father; his neighbors a genial and true friend, and the community a distinguished and public spirited citizen. The funeral services were held at the M. E. church Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, Rev. W. H. Adams conducting the services, and interment at the Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Woodward was born at the foot of Lyneborough Mountains in the Old Granite State, Oct. 5th, 1823. He came from a locality that put the granite stamp upon the characters of its people who, inured to hardships in early life, were undaunted at obstacles that discourage those of a kinder clime. Mr. Woodward inherited much of this spirit and whenever he put his hand to the plow in any good work he never looked back. At the age of five years he came with his father to the adjoining town of Jasper, where the family settled in the Hampshire settlement. Here the family had to struggle with all the hardships that beset pioneer life; and after 15 years of toil Mr. Woodward's father who had become a cripple, moved back to New Hampshire, where he hoped to find successful medical treatment. On reaching their former home, the son, now grown to manhood's estate, hired out as a farm hand until he had saved enough money to again start operations on the Jasper farm, and Mr. Woodward has detailed to the writer how in winter he started on foot thru trackless snows to again take up the work of carving a farm out of the Jasper wilderness. Mr. Woodward persevered unflinchingly at his task, and when the family returned from New Hampshire they found everything necessary for comfort provided and waiting for them by his industry, altho yet in his teens. At the age of 27 years he united in marriage with Mary Prentice, and having purchased the farm that he had done so much to improve, they settled in what continued to be their home until they moved to Greenwood in 1873. Here he succeeded his brother-in-law, W. R. Prentice, in the mercantile business, which he successfully followed for 13 years. Retiring from this, he purchased the mills below the village, which he thoroly overhauled and conducted them profitably for several years, retiring from active life about four or five years ago.

Mr. Woodward always enjoyed the confidence of the communities in which he lived. In Jasper he held the offices of assessor, highway commissioner and supervisor for several terms, and has been elected twice as supervisor of Greenwood. He was self-educated and taught school, and in all his varied pursuits he has made a successful record.

In Jasper he united with the Presbyterian church, and was largely instrumental in building their church edifice there. Upon coming to Greenwood he united with the M. E. church and contributed largely of his time and means toward building their place of worship here. He leaves of his immediately family his widow, two sons, George M. and Arthur P. Woodward, a daughter, Mrs. David Parshall, a sister, Mrs. Eliza Hollenbeck, and their families. Mr. Woodward died trusting in Him who was reviled, who suffered and died on Calvary for mankind.

AMBASSADORS CONFER.

Unwilling to Leave Dispute to The Hague Except as Last Resort.

Washington, Feb. 4.—The question of referring the one question of preferential treatment to The Hague for settlement as suggested by Mr. Bowen in his note to the British ambassador came up at the conference of the representatives of the allies, and it was evident at once that the negotiators were one in their opposition to calling in The Hague tribunal except as a last resort.

The point was made at the conference that if the three allied governments would arrange for a compromise along the lines suggested by Mr. Bowen they would do much to prove their claim that the real basis of their preferential demand was one of honor and not of dollars.

The British ambassador, in a call on Mr. Bowen during the forenoon, asked him regarding his proposition to refer the matter to The Hague and it developed that Mr. Bowen was no less anxious than the allies' representatives that the whole controversy be settled here and now.

All of these facts have been cabled in full to the three powers and their representatives are now awaiting an answer in hopes that their suggestions will be adopted in the interest of an early peace.

Confidence that a settlement will be forthcoming at Washington in a short time is based to a considerable extent on the activity of Baron Speck Von Sternburg. He has given every evidence that he sincerely wants the dispute adjusted without prolonging the blockade and unnecessarily coercing Venezuela, while at the same time preserving the prestige and rights of the allies.

The fact that the minister is known to be in close touch with the German ground for the belief that he may be able through his representations to Berlin to rouse the London foreign office to a realization of the acuteness of the situation here and the desirability of prompt action of a character that will settle the trouble.

The German government has been informed of the difficulties with which public feeling in this country has been restricted from an expression against the Anglo-German alliance and it is believed that it appreciates the necessity of an early settlement of the whole dispute.

Citizens of Mexico also have claims against Venezuela and that government has asked to be put on an equal footing with the other nations when the time comes for settling up. No notice of Mexico's intention was communicated to Minister Bowen by the Mexican ambassador at this capital. Senor Aspiroz, who informed Mr. Bowen that the claims of the citizens of his country amounted in all to approximately $90,000.

Mexico adds another to the list of nations who are lined up against the proposition of the allied powers for preferential treatment in the payment of the claims they have against Venezuela and she will be so considered by Mr. Bowen in his negotiations on this question.

LOCAL OPTION WON.

Cities and Towns of Vermont Will Regulate Matter of License.

White River Junction Vt., Feb. 4.—The advocates of local option carried the state yesterday, and after a half century of prohibition the cities and towns of Vermont will, after March 1, be permitted to decide whether or not intoxicating liquors shall be sold in those communities.

The total vote, with seven small towns missing, is 20,588 in favor of a license law and 28,946 opposed, a majority of 1,642 for the law. The missing towns gave a total vote of less than 300 at the last election. It is a coincidence that Vermont voted for prohibition in 1853 by 1,500 majority.

The question before the voters was whether a high license local option law passed by the last legislature should be accepted or rejected. The law was to take effect on March 1 should the people accept as they did, and Dec. 1, 1906, should it have been rejected, giving the two legislatures sitting in the meantime the opportunity of repealing it.

The big cities and towns decided the question. The cities of Burlington, Montpelier, Rutland, St. Albans and Barre, with the village of Bennington, rolled up a majority of 6,391 in favor of the law, a total that the 200 little communities were entirely unable to overcome.

Monument to General Greene.

Albany, Feb. 4.—The senate finance committee gave a hearing to General Daniel E. Sickles of the Gettysburg Monument association. He asked that an appropriation be made for a monument to General Greene, who commanded nine New York regiments during the battle and was killed on the field. General Greene, he said, was 72 years old and the oldest general on the Union side. General Sickles said he believed that the $8,000 would be sufficient.

Oldest Woman In Canada.

Stratford, Ont., Feb. 4.—Mary Ann Mills, the oldest woman in Canada, died at her home at Woodham Monday afternoon. She was in her 115th year, having been born in the county of Fermanagh, Ireland, on October 18, 1788. With her husband she came to Canada in 1857. Up to within a few months ago she was very bright and active.

The Virginia Antiklissing Law.

The Virginia legislature proposes to regulate kissing by law, and for that purpose a bill is now pending before it. It is put forward as a health preventive measure and proposes that no gallant Virginian or nonresident admirer shall kiss a pretty and coy, though not unwilling, Virginia maid or matron unless he can prove by a physician's certificate that he has no contagious or infectious disease or weak lungs.

Do the sapient solons of the Old Dominion suppose that there are any young women, middle aged or old ones, for that matter, in Virginia or elsewhere who are going to wait for a man to flash a physician's certificate on them when the time is ripe for osculatory demonstration? Kissing in Virginia is very much the same as it is elsewhere, only, according to tradition, they have a rather superior brand in the Old Dominion. A kiss is something that one has to take at the opportune moment to get its full zest and flavor, and it is preposterous to suppose that one is going out hunting for a doctor's certificate when he has a good chance and doesn't want to miss it.

The penalty for kissing in violation of the proposed law is to be a fine of from $1 to $5. But who is going to tell about it and give the minions of the law a chance to hale the culprits to court? Kissing and telling are no more regular in Virginia than they are anywhere else.

It Is Curious.

"It's curious," said Uncle Eben. "Nobody wouldn't think of tryin' to play de banjo wifout takin' a few lessons, but ev'rybody thinks he could step in an' run de gov'ment wifout no practice whatever."—Washington Star.

All Right Anyway.

Miss Thin—Don't you think my new dress is just exquisite?

Fannie—Oh, lovely! I think that dressmaker of yours could make a clothes prop look graceful.
