BLAST STUMPS NOW FOR BEST RESULTS

Wet Soil Makes Dynamite Move Effective Says Robb—Warns Against Careless Handling of Caps

Now is a good time to blast stumps, accordig to B. E. Robb of the New York state college of agriculture. In the spring the soil is wet and is ideal for the explosive to brace against to push out the stumps.

Handle the blasting caps with care, Professor Robb warns, for a blasting cap explodes with great force and anyone near it is almost sure to be hurt. Electric blasting caps are generally considered better than caps and fuse to detonate dynamite for blasting stumps and ditches because fewer misfired occur. Either is dangerous when carelessly handled as they are more sesitive than the dynamite itself. Above all do not leave blasting caps of any kind around where children can pick them up.

Professor Robb called attention to the appeal which the Institute of Makers of Explosives is making to protect children from blasting caps. This orgnization estimates that approximately 500 children are crippled in the United States each year form playing with blasting caps which they have picked up in the vicinity of mines, quarries, or in the field where agricultural blasting has been done. In March, April, and May the number of accidents tends to increase and this increase continues through the summer months. It is supposed that this occurs because children play out of doors more in good weather and also because more blasting is done in these months.

GIVE POINTERS ON FEEDING CHICKENS

Use Mash Mixture from Time Chicks Are 36 to 48 Hours Old Unt.l Maturity—Start on Grain at Eight Weeks

Start feeding the mash mixture to the chicks when they are 36 to 48 hours old and allow constant access to it until they reach maturity says the New York state college of agriculture. Provide plenty of feeding space in such amount that fresh mash can be fed twice daily.

The mash mixture recommended by the college contains 45 pounds of yellow corn meal, 10 pounds wheat bran, 15 pounds of flour wheat middlings, ten pounds fine ground heavy oats, 2 pounds of steamed bone meal, one half pound salt, 10 of meat scrap 50—55 per cent protein and 10 pounds of dried skim milk or buttermilk. If fine ground heavy oats can not be obtained, yellow corn meal may be substituted for the oats. The dried milk may be omitted from the mash when liquid or condensed milk products are used.

When the chicks are eight weeks old begin feeding the grain mixture composed of 60 pounds of cracked yellow corn and 40 pounds of wheat in hoppers. Keep it constantly before the chicks. They should not eat as much scratch grain by weight as mash until three months old. Restrict the amount of grain if necessary to make them eat more mash.

Fine grit may be given from the start. Provide oyster shells after the chicks are four months of age or when they begin to show evidence of reaching maturity. When sunshine enters the house through glass, mix one-half pound or one-half pint of cod liver oil into every 100 pounds of mash during the period when mash is fed. Afterwards feed enough cod liver oil to equal one-half pound for each 100 pounds of total feed used.

HOUSEHOLD MACHINERY NEEDS OIL FREQUENTLY

Few Drops Applied Often Keep Equipment in Better Working Order Says College of Home Economics

Give your household machinery small but frequent doses of oil prescribes the New York state college of home economics. A drop or two of oil used often on the moving parts of washing machines, vacum cleaners, and sewing machines makes them more efficient than a large amount of oil used occasionally.

Oil most household machines every two weeks, the college recommends. For machines which are not often used, once a month is enough. The sewing machine should have a little oil three or four times a year. Every bearing and joint where one part moves against another should be lubricated, including the bearings beneath the table.

Too thick as well as too much oil tends to clog the machinery. Dirty oil with grit in it may actually harm the machine. A high grade of light machine oil like that used in the generators of automobiles should be used for the larger electric motor such as those on washing machines. Most vacuum cleaner motors have ball bearings and do not need oiling. They are packed in grease which only needs replacing every two or three years.

Allow orange marmalade to cool slightly after cooking and stir before putting it in glasses. The peel will then remain evenly distributed instead of rising to the top.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

"As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, where I made my home, a great part of it was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half the calls were on women, children and babies. They are the most of us the sick. But their illnesses were mostly of a minor character, easily relieved. They were not chronic, as a rule, and they were generally over in a few days.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years practice he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1876), he made a special of women's cases in preference to any other portion of his practice. In 1899 he decided to put this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and it is that year his production was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in its drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country of that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and we have gotten many testimonials from people who have used it for years and it never has failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home,—where many live sickness is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you try it at our expense now. Send for a Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin on a postal card, and your name and address, and we will send you a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.
