"Foreign" Cheese Made In America.

The prejudice against domestic imitations of a foreign product, whether wine, olive oil or Westphalia ham, has served to keep from general knowledge the fact that but very few kinds of foreign cheeses are now imported in any considerable quantities. As in the case of many other supposed foreign products, the French, German or Italian label may have been printed and placed within a very few miles of the dinner table where the cheese is served.

Roquefort is one of the most successful of the "fancy" native cheeses, it appears, and is produced in large quantities by the cheesemakers of New York and New Jersey. Neufchatel is made successfully in most of the dairy states, and the odoriferous Limburger has likewise become native to the soil. Edam is well made here, and Parmesan and other Italian cheeses are made in most of the cities which have considerable Italian population, just as macaroni is. Makers admit that the native Camembert and Brie are not completely successful. In the case of Brie, however, the American product secures something of a market for itself by appearing in smaller cakes, the imported Brie cheeses being rather large for domestic purchase.

It seems rather harsh to call our native cheeses "imitations," as they are in the main products identical in all respects with their European namesakes. However, we suppose this form of mild deceit will continue to be practiced by the manufacturers and unquestioningly accepted by the consumer until we get over the foolish notion that an imported article is superior to the one made at home, even if the two are as much alike as two peas from the same pod.

The Christianization of China.

General Adna R. Chaffee has been telling members of the Methodist union in New York some rather unpleasant things about the missionary field in the orient as he saw it.

General Chaffee was asked to address this body of Christian workers on "The Conditions In China." This he did with his accustomed frankness. While taking occasion to praise the work of the missionaries in the orient, he showed that he regarded the prospect for Christianity in China a very poor one. Of the missionaries he said:

They are all in earnest and hopeful, but the results of their work are not proportioned to the great labor of love. They have done all that is possible, but the burden is too great for them.

Referring to his talk with leading and intelligent Chinese upon the subject of religion, General Chaffee said:

I took occasion to meet many of the most prominent Chinamen while in Peking, and I talked to many of the better class. These included officials. I must say that I did not meet a single intelligent Chinaman who expressed a desire to embrace the Christian religion. The masses are against Christianity.

General Chaffee's view seems to be quite generally shared by Americans in China other than missionaries. Apparently no headway has been made among the intelligent classes in China, which is a particularly discouraging feature of Christian propaganda in the orient.

The Wastes of the Body.

Every seven days the blood muscles and bones of a man of average size lose two pounds of worn out tissue. This waste cannot be replenished and the health and strength kept up without perfect digestion. When the stomach and digestive organs fail to perform their functions, their strength lets down and health gives way and disease sets up. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten into the kind of blood that rebuilds the tissues and protects the health and strength of the mind and body. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. It is an ideal spring medicine. Sold by O. E. Vars & Son, Druggists.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

The Lewis and Clark Exposition.

So much interest has been taken in the St. Louis exposition that perhaps few people realize that work has already been begun on another great fair in the west. The city for the exposition in commemoration of the Lewis and Clark expedition, which Portland, Ore., has undertaken to hold in 1905, is now being cleared and made ready. Gangs of workmen were put on the ground a few weeks ago and have put up what is loosely spoken of as the first exposition building, a tool shed of unpainted pine lumber ten feet square. As the grounds lie at present they include bare hillside, a dense growth of scrub trees and underbrush and a good sized lake.

The early date of the St. Louis world's fair has naturally cut down the appropriations of the neighboring states for the Portland exhibition. However, the coast will profit in one way by the Mississippi valley's display, as a good many exhibits will be taken bodily from St. Louis to Portland.

It will take some "tall hustling" to put upon set of exposition buildings from bare ground before the date of the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the Lewis and Clark expedition, but expositions have been postponed before now. Most of them have been, in fact. The landing of Columbus was celebrated 401 years after it occurred, and the one hundredth anniversary of the Louisiana purchase will have passed fully a year before the fair commemorating it is opened. Portland can be pardoned even if her celebration comes a trifle late.

Another Labor Experiment.

The National Cash Register company of Dayton, O., is trying a new labor experiment, which will be watched with considerable interest by the employers of large numbers of employees.

There is no question of unionism or nonunionism involved in the proposition, the only object being to create a means by which the employes can come into closer contact with his employer through a representative than is now possible in establishments where the number of employees runs up into the thousands. For this purpose a labor department has been created in the National Cash Register company's shops, and to that department all disputes are referred for settlement. If an employee thinks that he has been ill treated by his foreman, for instance, or that he has any other cause of complaint of whatever nature, he can take it at once to the labor department. There it will be investigated and considered with a full knowledge of all the conditions surrounding the business and governing its operation in and out of the workshops. By this means it is hoped to avoid the results of personal differences between units, and unintentional injustices are to be guarded against and rectified.

The idea of providing the facilities for more intimate relations between the employer and the employed would seem to be a good one and ought to work to the advantage of both.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says, "I had a severe case of Bronchitis for a year tried everything I heard of but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for croup, whooping cough, grip, pneumonia and consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by O. E. The speech of Baron von Sternburg in New York following closely upon the admonition from Washington that our army and navy officers should avoid utterances offensive to Germany shows that there is an official alliance working toward the elimination of German American animosities. The German minister's speech was in a vein which, if followed up, will make him one of the most popular foreign representatives in Washington. It was evidently so worded as to attain this end, and the response made by the press of the country to the minister's advances should convince him that a good understanding between the people of the United States and Germany is quite possible if right methods are adopted and if no new causes for grievance are given on the other side of the water.

The Bagdad Railroad.

Despite the fact that the British government has announced its intention not to participate with Germany in the building of the Bagdad railroad, it is improbable that the scheme will be abandoned, and Great Britain can hardly afford to have it carried into effect without her participation. Doubtless better terms will be offered by Germany, and the British government will probably change its mind.

The opening of this great highway of oriental commerce would undoubtedly produce international complications of a peculiarly interesting character and might bring about an entirely new alignment of the European powers interested in the project. The self interests of Russia are against the building of this line, while German, French and British interests in Asia would be greatly benefited by it, and hence western Europe is drifting into the same united opposition to the Muscovite empire which existed half a century ago, at the time of the Crimean war. The Bagdad road would conflict with Russia's cherished plan of pushing two lines of its own down through Persia and from some point on the Black sea, both to the Persian gulf. These would give the Russian railway system direct entrance on the Persian gulf and the Indian ocean over routes closed to western Europe.

On the other hand, Germany wishes Asia Minor opened by railroads where now German capital is heavily involved in railroads which are unprofitable because they are not through lines. France wishes to continue its control of Syria, its traditional sphere of influence. England desires to keep its supremacy in the Persian gulf.

The Bagdad railroad going the length of Asia Minor and going to the Euphrates to the Persian gulf, with a line connecting with Damascus, where a French railroad ends, gives all these various interests their opportunity while it shuts out Russia.

It will be rather interesting to watch the political complications which follow development of European commerce in Asia even though the United States may have no especial concern over the project.

The Matter of School Discipline.

The question of right of teachers in the public schools to inflict corporal punishment is almost as old as the public school system itself and will probably never be settled to the satisfaction of all concerned. It crops up now and then in various parts of the country in more or less aggravated form.

In Boston, for instance, Dr. Edward Everett Hale has precipitated a spirited discussion by delivering an opinion that the school discipline of the day is lax and that the chief principle in education, the instillation of the idea of duty, has been practically forgotten. At Terre Haute, Ind., the citizens are excitedly discussing the action of a teacher who established a record of whipping three pupils in fifteen minutes. The city of Elgin, Ill., has just had a school election in which the issue was whether or not the teachers should be empowered to administer corporal punishment. The advocates of the birch won.

It is unquestionable that discipline must be maintained in schools, but how far teachers should go in this direction is a delicate question. If parents would so order their households that there would be no ungovernable and vicious children, there would be no need of corporal chastisement in the schools. However, the parent who neglects to train his child and sends it to school as an exhibit of juvenile anarchy can have no just complaint against teachers who are obliged to perform the duty which the parent has neglected.

The reported discovery of large and perniciously active spots on the sun causes the sun spot theorists to gravely infer that we are likely to have this summer various sorts of weather, with intense heat, excessive rains or drought and high winds or calms. As it is usually the case that these varieties of weather do prevail more or less in their turn, it is quite probable that the sun spot predictions will be verified.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time and completely doubled up with rheumatism. I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.' For sale by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Coston, Greenwood.

SHIPPING CALVES

A Delay of Several Hours in the Shipping.

IS IT CRUEL TO SHIP LIVE CALVES?

A Law Forbidding the Deprivation of Any Animal of Necessary Sustenance and Care.

Friday was the day for shipping calves at this station and from early morning the air was vocal with the plaintive calls of the little creatures that were destined for the veal market. For some reason, unknown to the writer, they were not shipped until Saturday morning and during the day and all night Friday night their hungry calls were pitiful and distressing. On Saturday morning they were loaded in a car and shipped to East Buffalo.

In some localities if a horse is left out tied to a post without food for one-fourth the time these calves must have been out, the owner as well as the horse would be looked after and it would seem that young calves, difficult and impracticable to be fed on the way, should not be shipped alive to market.

Section 655 of the Penal Code provides that a person who deprives any animal of necessary sustenance, food or drink, or refuses or neglects to furnish it such sustenance or drink or permits any animal to be deprived of necessary food or drink or in any way furthers any act of cruelty to any animal is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Section 657 provides that a person who, having impounded or confined any animal, refuses or neglects to supply to such animal during its confinement a sufficient supply of good and wholesome food, air, shelter and water is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Section 663 provides that a railway corporation or owner, agent, consignee or person in charge of any horses, sheep, cattle or swine in the course of, or for transportation who confines or causes or suffers the same to be confined in cars for a longer period than twenty-four consecutive hours without unloading for rest, food and water during the consecutive hours, unless prevented by storm or an inevitable accident, is guilty of a misdemeanor, etc.

It would be almost an impossibility to ship calves alive to a distant market without violating the law owing to the difficulty and impracticability of feeding them enroute and in case of suckers that had not learned to drink it would seem an impossibility, therefore the shipping of young calves alive should be prohibited. It is not believed that any person connected with this case intended to be cruel but it looks as the there was unintended suffering.

If the law compelled all veals to be dressed before shipping, the buyers would all stand on an equal footing and we think a large majority of them would prefer an amendment to that effect.

"A merciful man regardeth the life of his beast.—He shall obtain mercy."

FIRE IN NORTON HOLLOW.

HOUSE BURNED WHILE FAMILY WERE AWAY.

No Insurance on Building or Contents.

On Saturday afternoon, while Frank Harrison and wife were at this place, their dwelling took fire and burned to the ground consuming a large portion of their household effects. Mr. Guinn and family, who live near, succeeded in saving some of their furniture. It was thought at one time that the new barn recently built by Mr. Harrison would burn but those present succeeded in saving it.

The origin of the fire is supposed to have been from a stove pipe.

Mr. Harrison carried no insurance and the loss will be keenly felt by him and he has the sympathy of all who know him.

Mr. Joseph Pomeroy, of Stillwater Minn., after having spent over $200 with the best doctors for stomach trouble, without relief, was advised by his druggist, Mr. Alex Richard to try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. He did so and is well man today. It troubled with indigestion, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite or constipation, give these tablets a trial, and you are sure to be more than pleased with the result. For sale by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Coston Greenwood.

These delays were something unusual as these trains are generally on time.

GREATLY ALARMED

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Barbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., had been troubled with a continuous cough for four or five years, which he says, "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stage of consumption. Mr. Barbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. Now read what he says of it: "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent size, was permanently cured." Sold by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Coston, Greenwood.

Eliminating the Grade Crossing.

The work of dispensing with the deadly grade crossing progresses all too slowly in every part of the country, and it will probably be a long time before this source of public danger is wholly eliminated even in the thickly populated sections.

In 1897 the New York legislature passed a law providing an annual appropriation of $100,000 to pay the state's share of removing existing grade crossings. This share was to be one-quarter of the expense of removing an existing crossing, the municipality to pay one-quarter and the railroad one-half.

Under this act $400,000 could be expended annually. The work, however, has gone on at the rate of only $200,000 per annum until 1902, and then no appropriation was made by the state. This practically stopped the removal of these dangerous grade crossings, which, as a rule, are not allowed in Europe. According to the Railroad Gazette, only about sixty-five of the 8,500 grade crossings in New York have been abolished since 1897, at which rate it would take 132 years to get rid of those now in existence in the state.

Pennsylvania is doing somewhat better than the Empire State in getting rid of the grade crossings, but this is in part at least due to the fact that some of the railroads are working in this direction for self protection.

Massachusetts makes a very much better showing than either New York or Pennsylvania. The Bay State provides for an expenditure of $500,000 annually for this purpose. The railroads have to pay 65 per cent of the cost, the state 25 per cent and the municipality about 10 per cent. Decision in the matter rests with the railroad commission. Millions have been spent in Massachusetts in getting rid of grade crossings and as a result the percentage of this class of accidents has been greatly reduced.

The grade crossings cause many accidents, impede traffic and hinder the improvement of adjacent property, and it should be the policy of the railroads as well as the public to eliminate them as speedily as possible.

In connection with the Colorado miners' strike it is perhaps not out of place to notice that one company found it necessary to maintain a low scale of wages because it had issued $13,000,000 of stocks and bonds on a $2,000,000 investment and was trying to pay interest and dividends. That's the usual way.

A young men's debating society in Massachusetts is going to discuss the proposition "that unmarried women over thirty years of age should be taxed for the support of the unmarried men." How are they to establish the fact that the ladies have reached the taxable age?

It is intimated that Baron de Rothschild, like Mr. Rockefeller, would be willing to give a fabulous sum for a good, healthy digestive apparatus. This is one of the penalties that rich men often pay. When the luxuries are within their reach, they cannot enjoy them.
