That Presidential Trip. It is not too late to call attention to the remarkable trip of President Roosevelt. It involved 14,000 miles of travel thru 25 states and two territories, and the meeting of over a million people. It was undoubtedly a good thing for Roosevelt politically, for he is such a picturesque character that the people like to get a sight of him, if for nothing more than to see if he looks like his pictures. The people are always more interested in the political fortunes of a man after having once seen him. As a public speaker Roosevelt does not equal in grace or dignity of diction either the late President McKinley or the late President Harrison, but he is far better than Cleveland. Roosevelt is more forceful, has more individual ty than either of the late Presidents, but his speeches do not read as well in print. However, Roosevelt has had no equals for a good many years at the White House, as an off hand speaker.

The Panama Canal. It is evident that foreign agencies are at work in Colombia to prevent the Colombian Congress from agreeing to the treaty giving the United States the right to proceed with the building of the canal. Reports from Washington indicate that since the President's return to Washington the matter has been under discussion with Secretary Hay, and report says the President's stock of patience is about exhausted with Colombian's dilatory tactics. It is certainly a fact that the United States will make no contribution to Colombian congressmen's corruption fund. There are many Americans who hope that Colombia will persist in her present attitude because they believe the Nicarauguan route to be far preferable. The President is empowered to arrange with Nicarauga and Costa Rica for canal rights which it is believed will be readily granted, and really it is hoped the President's patience will be soon exhausted and open the new negotiations promptly.

As Advertising Scheme. Every now and then it is reported that W. R. Hearst is to boom his candidacy for the Presidency of the United States. The general belief is that it is a scheme to secure a large amount of free advertising for the newspaper properties of which he is the principal owner It is difficult to see how any one can take the Hearst suggestion seriously, altho evidently there are some that do. Mr. Hearst is a young man who inherited a large sum of money, which is a good thing to have. He has been pleased to pose as a free silver advocate. It has apparently been a pleasure to make his newspapers extra sensational, and he is probably the most notable exponent of that very objectional style of journalism known as "yellow." These qualifications are not those that fit a man for the Presidency. To further his candidacy is a farce. He may get some free advertising but a party that will lend itself to the advertising scheme of a "yellow journal" must be hard pushed and on the edge of disintegration.

Queer how some people expect the farmers to stand by and vote for an appropriation for a canal to benefit two cities. The government should build a ship canal.

Are we going to have another Andover picnic this year? It was a success last year. Perhaps Parson Harrington might be induced to start the ball rolling again, but there is a lot of hard work and no glory in it.

An anti-cigarette league among the parents and a little slipper exercise might prevent the dulling of the bright minds of some of our boys, and make fewer cigarette fiends.

THE SERVIAN OUTRAGE.

The whole civilized world was startled the other day by the tragic death of the King and Queen of Servia. The reports read like a page from the volumes of history of the "dark ages." That a serious situation exists no one can deny. The murder of monarchs is not presumptive evidence but proof positive of a wretched state of affairs in which law and order are not held in the right regard. It was wholesale assassination. Not content with taking the life of the king and queen, some of their relatives and members of cabinet were included in the massacre. A new government was quickly formed, which is evidence that the plot was a long thought of one. It is true that the ruler was unpopular with his subjects, and yet a revolution might have dethroned them without assassination. The early prophecies say that it will not disturb the peace of Europe, and yet the whole of Europe is seething with an undercurrent of unrest. The only thing that will maintain the peace is the fact that several nations are very desirous of peace, and will seek to avoid rather than avail themselves of what might otherwise be provocation.

There have been grievous differences and serious disturbances in Servia for some time, and feeling has run high. King Alexander suspended the Constitution, and that fact was used as a defense for the outrage. It was not the work of anarchists but a revolution Revenge and ambition prompted it. The new government starts out with little to commend it as to stability. The people who will assassinate a king and queen are not liable to treat their successors very differently if the new administration is not acceptable. Still further complications will surely attend the terrible event, and we may look for dispatches telling of their troubles. Servia for some time to come will be a center of interest, and maybap be the cause of the disturbing of the peace of Europe.

The Pope. It is a good many years now since there have been rumors at different intervals from Rome to the effect that Pope Leo XIII. was approaching the end. It will be recalled that one of the objections urged against him at the time he was chosen was his advanced years and the likelihood of a short period of service. Yet now at 92 he is still living and discharging the duties of his high office. He is physically, mentally and spiritually a very remarkable man. More frequently of late have reports come of failing health, and doubtless they are based on better foundations, because in the course of human events a man at best cannot live long after 90. He is suffering from no particular ailment perhaps, other than that of enfeeblement and the ills incident to advanced years. He is as zealous as he is gifted, and his tenure of office has been made memorable in many ways. Protestants as well as Roman Catholics hope that he may be preserved still further, and he should be grateful with the assurance of general interest all over the civilized world.

It is expected that somebody will find fault with the wet weather very soon. It might be well to remember the words of the woman in the Pullman sleeper who, after getting a drink, the other passengers, settling down to sleep, heard her cry, "I was so dry."

Remember that even if your taxes are more because of the new school building the times are better than for anumber of years, and there will be more people to help pay them.

The base ball team seem to be rain makers. Well, that's all right. If they can't win they can make rain.

It isn't too early for the plans to be laid for an "Old Home" week if "Old Allegany" is going to have one this fall.

Advertising is like the bread cast upon the waters; it returns after many days.

It's a mistake to imagine that itching piles can't be cured; a mistake to suffer a day longer than you can help. Doan's Ointment brings instant relief and permanent cure. At any drug store, 50 cents.

THE WORK HORSE.

The one forgotten (or apparently so) factor of the every day and successful life we live is the common, useful "work horse." He plods along day after day, receiving good or indifferent care, becomes the "hack" for every one about the farm or village streets, makes possible many of the pleasures enjoyed, and yet is seemingly passed by without a word. Blue ribbons and honors are given at county fairs for prize cattle, sheep, hogs and horses, but the old plodder, the servant of them all, must stand tied to a hitching post in the hot sun (perhaps under cover) to nibble away at a bit of hay or partake of a picnic batch of oats, forgotten, to be driven home after, at the close of the day, put up by tired men, and alas all his work and patience gone for naught. Not everybody has prize animals, but nearly everybody has a work horse and in these days of automobile parades, why not a parade of work horses with prizes for the best kept and finest looking horse that has been in actual service. The horse that performs the work on the farm or on the street is entitled not only to good but generous treatment. If prizes could be given it would stimulate an interest in the well keeping of stock, and there are many horses in these parts that would make an attractive parade. Don't neglect the faithful work horse. We have learned that the horse is one of man's best friends, and all the mechanical means of locomotion will never succeed the intelligence or instinct the kindness and faithfulness of the good old work horse.

FLAG DAY.

Sunday, June 14th, was Flag Day, and Edward Seaman Post, as well as a few loyal citizens, unfurled "Old Glory" to the breeze in respect thereto. On the 14th day of June, 1777, Congress enacted: "That the flag of the 13 states be 13 stripes, alternate, red and white; that the union be 13 stars, white in blue field, representing a new constellation." The number of stripes having been increased by the admission of new states our sure to be expanded future dawned upon our fathers and the original 13 stripes were unchangeably restored by act of Congress on April 4, 1818, when it was enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be 13 horizontal stripes, alternate red and white, that the union be 20 stars, white in the blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and such addition to take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission." Since 1818, 25 stars or sovereign states have been added to the union, making 45 in all.

The civil war gave new meaning to our flag. It had reverence before, for the sake of Revolution memories. Since the struggle of '61–'65 it has become the symbol of a mighty nation. Later yet, the Spanish war carried it to the uttermost parts of the earth, the herald of a civilization not belonging to the dark ages, or to centuries that tolerated cruelty and oppression, but carrying liberty wherever it has been thrown to the breeze.

Starting Right.

In every great race much depends upon the start. "Getting away" with the whole system tingling with confidence in the strength to win, is half the battle. In the race of life the start each day is at the breakfast table. A dish of "Fé", the new cereal, served with milk, invigorates the body and refreshes the brain. "Fé" makes the start right. "Fé" is cooked and ready to eat. Young and old like "Fé". You can eat it at any time. At grocers everywhere

LETTER TO A. I. RAY.

Andover, N. Y.

Dear Sir: You'd strike it rich if you could find a way to shave your customers in less time, for less cost, and make the shave last twice or three times as long.

You wouldn't shave the same person so many times, nor get so much of his money; but the whole town would be talking about you, and everybody would come to you for a shave.

Devoe lead and zinc is exactly that in paints. It takes fewer gallons, and it wears longer. Costs less for the job, and you don't have to do it again for years and years—six years at least.

"Fewer gallons; wears longer." Takes fewer gallons to paint a house with Devoe Lead and Zinc than with mixed paints; and it wears longer than mixed paints or lead and oil.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & CO.,
New York.

Do You Realize

a constant war is carried on between your stomach and your taste? What pleases one may not suit the other. The question is what to eat. "Fé", the cereal that tastes good, forever sets at peace the jarring, human factions. "Fé" is a grain product with all the health giving nutriment retained. "Fé" builds up the body, adds to the strength, keeps the brain active and clear. "Fé" is cooked and ready to eat with milk or cream. Grocers sell "Fé".
