Rod and Gun Club May Build House

A committee of three from the board of directors of the Wellsville Rod and Gun Club will investigate the advisability of building a club house on the Duke Flats property owned by the club. The committee was named at a meeting of the board of directors held last week.

The size and type of building needed and an estimate of the cost of construction will be investigated by the committee composed of T. C. Major, J. B. Martin and W. O. Taylor. The plan to provide a club house which would serve as a meeting place has been under consideration for some time. Directors of the organization feel that interest in the organization would be stimulated by the building of a lodge.

Increase Service

Electric power, sufficient to care for all of Wellsville's needs, will be available after July at the Wellsville Water & Light plant, when the giant new turbo-generator, now being installed, will start action. The machine will have a capacity of 1,500 k. w. and will be capable of 1,800 horse power. The generator section has already been moved from the plant of the Moore Steam Turbine Company here where it was built to the electric station. This unit weighs about 15 tons. The rest of the machine will be delivered within a day or two, Superintendent E. J. Rowe announced. After the turbo-generator is hooked up the local plant will no longer need auxiliary current from the Niagara, Lockport & Ontario Power Company as is now the case. A considerable saving is anticipated since under present conditions it is cheaper to manufacture the "juice" than to purchase it.

The local plant has always been a source of pride to Wellsville citizens and the new addition will make it one of the most completely equipped small stations in the state.

Mosher & Backus, Owners

Last Wednesday evening the beautiful work of the third degree of Masonry was exemplified by Andover Lodge, No. 558, F. & A. M., upon four candidates. Dr. C. M. Post, R. C. Place of Alfred, B. S. Baker and Henry Stevens of Andover. The degree was conferred by W. M. Jesse S. Phillips in presence of R. W. D. G. M. Frank Utter of Friendship. After the work of the degree, the members, accompanied by their ladies, repaired to Prest Opera House, where had been prepared an elaborate banquet, Jesse S. Phillips acting as toastmaster. Among the speakers were Rev. C. H. Harrington, Frank R. Utter, Geo. H. Swift and Geo. A. Green.

Wm. R. Broughan was quite badly burned Monday while tool dressing for Ollie Whitcomb on the Wm. Kaple farm. The regulator on the gas line to the boiler "bucked" in attempting to remedy matters the gas in the boiler ignited with a burst sending the flames into his face, burning his right hand and arm and blistering his face.

Arbutus hunters are busy these days.

It takes more than a dentist to kill the nerve of some people.

John Prest is to open a meat market in the opera house block May 1.

E. S. Catlin, who has been a resident of Andover the past year, has moved to Wellsville, where he owns property.

Miss Margaret Wood has again been secured as teacher of the Grammar Department of the Shortsville High School for the coming year.

A Hinsdale lad evaded the school law and truant officer by coming into contact with a skunk that he met in the road. Other boys in the school are said to be looking for that skunk.

Harris Bros. have two strings of tools drilling on the Norton & Harris lease in Independence, on the Segar and Will Clark farm. Cobb and Jacobs have another well on the Forsythe lease and expect to be drilling soon. We understand there are eleven new wells located and drilling at the same time.

HOW, WHAT & WHY?

The Andover News has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State College of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer your questions about problems of farm and home. Answers to questions of general interest are printed in this column; but if you inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the Colleges.

Household questions about food, shelter and clothing for all members of the home circle are welcomed. Farm questions may deal with anything from the largest farm enterprises to a table-cloth-size backyard garden.

Send in your queries. Address them to How, What and Why, Room 201, Roberts Hall, Ithaca, N. Y.

Planting by Moon

P. C. C. asks: "Does planting by the moon have any effect on crops?"

Scientists say no. Moonlight has only one six-hundred-thousandth part of the value of sunlight. Plants can not thrive on one six hundredth of sunlight.

Boiling Potatoes

Mrs. C. H. asks: "Can you settle an argument on how to boil potatoes? I start mine in cold water, but a friend tells me they should be put in boiling water. Which is the right? Or does it make any difference?"

Your friend is right. The hot water cooks at once the outside layer, and there is a smaller loss of food value in the cooking process. This is a safe rule for all cooked vegetables.

Most Valuable Crop

J. B. N. asks: "What is the most valuable crop in the world?"

This looks like a catch question, but it is answered seriously, tho much depends on the meaning of the word "valuable." Rice is unquestionably the most valuable crop in the world, if figures are obtained by multiplying price paid to growers by the quantity produced. It outranks wheat, cotton, sugar, and any other one crop. If the word "valuable" is used figuratively, it might be said that the statement of the sociologists to the effect that "boys and girls constitute the most valuable product of the farm," is wholly true.

Mrs. S. F. writes: "Please tell me what kind of candy is best for growing children."

Candy is a good food for lively children since it supplies energy. Combinations of sweet fruit, honey, and nuts are good; chocolates and candies made of refined sugar should be fed to children sparingly, if at all. The chocolates are likely to be too rich. Be sure to keep in mind that the best time to let children have candy is directly after meals—never before meals.

Moth Medicine

Mrs. G. C. T. asks: "How can I get rid of clothes moths?"

A substance with a long name makes short work of moths. It is paradichlorobenzene, sometimes called "paradi" for short. At any rate it sends the insects to moth Paradise, if there is any such place for them. It comes in white crystals, and costs about 60 cents a pound at the drug store. Put it with the moth infested fabrics in a closed trunk at the rate of about five ounces in a small muslin bag for an ordinary-sized trunk. Methods of dealing with all kinds of household insects are given in bulletin E 202. It can be had free from the College of Agriculture at Ithaca.
