Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

ROBBED A DIPLOMAT

Thieves Despoil Residence of Walter Weaver.

LOADAD PLUNDER INTO WAGON.

Robbers Made Several Visits and Tore Up Carpets in Search of Plunder—Passed in and Out Sunday and Took Whatever They Pleased—Family Were Absent.

Chicago, July 1.—While Emperor William has been entertaining American sailors, American thieves have been robbing his official representative in this city. They stripped the walls of his residence of pictures, tore up carpets and ripped open chairs and bedding in search of valuables.

When the owner entered it Monday it looked more like a charnel house than it resembled a well-ordered residence.

Consul Walther Wever moved his family from his residence at 604 Dearborn avenue to Lake Forest about the middle of the month. He did not think it worth while to leave a custodian in charge, as he had great confidence in the integrity of American people.

Some time Saturday and again Sunday night three men entered the three story residence by means of pass keys. They were seen by Mrs. Albert H. Dainty, who lives next door at 600 Dearborn avenue, on three occasions. She supposed, however, that they were men whom Consul Wever had left to care for his place, as he had several servants about the house usually.

The men passed in and out during Sunday night and took whatever they pleased from the place. The rattle of wagon wheels was heard repeatedly, and it is thought that at least two trips were made through the alley with valuable curios and pictures from the house.

Dr. Wever had occasion to visit his home during the day. He received a shock on entering that speedily gave way to anger. He found the furniture displaced, hardly a single piece occupying the position to which it was accustomed.

Carpets were torn up. Pictures were missing from the walls. Chairs were overturned. Sofa pillows were ripped open. Bedding and the contents of commodes were strewn on the floor. Rich bits of embroidery, fancy shawls and valuable curios picked up by Dr. and Mrs. Wever in their travels had been packed up and removed.

Fortunately Mrs. Wever had taken her jewels and her silver with her when she went to Lake Forest or they too would have gone with the other valuables.

BUFFALO MAN MURDERED.

An Italian Who, the Police Say, Was Attentive to Victim's Wife, Arrested.

Buffalo, July 1.—Harry Bender, 31 years old, of 1161 Michigan street, was found murdered in his parlor Monday afternoon. He had been shot twice through the breast and his head was almost cut off by a razor.

The body was found by Bender's wife, who was hanging out clothes when the crime was committed, she says. She called a policeman and told him that the murderer was Nelson Boaggino, who was visiting with his parents in the house next door. When the officer went to arrest Boaggino the Italian said:

"I know what you want. I'm accused of murder, but I didn't do it."

The police allege that they have evidence that Boaggino was attentive to Mrs. Bender, and that he planned the murder. After shooting Bender, he is supposed to have removed his coat and vest and then cut his victim's throat, holding the body over a dishpan to catch the blood.

The police say that Boaggino had threatened to kill the whole Bender family, and that an attempt was made to enter the Bender house two weeks ago.

Fire Started by Sun's Rays.

Peoria, Ill., July 1.—A skylight in the ceiling of the room occupied by the Chicago millinery parlors at 100 North Adams street concentrated the sun's rays, thus operating as a burning glass, and set fire to the paper and cloth which had been placed over the skylight to exclude the light. The paper burned up quickly and fell on the stock, setting fire to the furnishings. The loss will figure several hundred dollars. The weather was the hottest of the summer season, the mercury registering 92 in the shade.

Swede Arrested For Forgery.

New York, July 1.—Gustav Eriksen, a Swedish lumber merchant, arrested here on the arrival of the Umbria and arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields at the instance of the Swedish consul, who charged him with having forged a number of drafts in Sweden, was given a second hearing before the commissioner, when he announced that he had decided not to oppose extradition proceedings. Eriksen said he would return if desired on the next steamer sailing.

Pig Iron and Iron Exports.

In nothing are the growth and development of the United States more strikingly illustrated than in the increase of the production of pig iron and in the exports of iron and steel products between 1870 and 1902 as the figures are given in a recent summary of finance and commerce issued by the treasury bureau of statistics at Washington. The figures for the production of pig iron in this country during that period are: 1870, 1,665,170 tons; 1875, 2,023,733; 1880, 3,835,191; 1885, 4,044,520; 1890, 9,202,703; 1895, 9,446,308; 1900, 13,789,242; 1902, 17,821,307.

This great advance in production corresponds with the increased home demand and accounts for the falling off in exports of iron and steel products for relatively the same period, home construction and demands requiring nearly the whole output of the mills.

The exports of iron and steel products grew from $28,800,932 in 1892 to $121,013,548 in 1902, an increase in the ten years of nearly $100,000,000, the total in the latter year being four times the amount exported in 1892, or a gain of practically 500 per cent. The falling off in exports in 1902 was in the sum of $23,000,000 below the exports of 1900, home demands not only requiring working double shifts, but necessitating imports of iron and steel products and allowing only exports for which contracts had been made.

The exports of iron and steel products are classified as to customers among Europe, North America (Dominion of Canada, Manitoba, etc.), South America, Asia and Africa, the amount of the foreign demand steadily growing, and noticeably so in Asia and Africa, the following table showing the increases:

	1891.	1902.
Europe	$7,468,291	$31,127,601
North America	11,653,262	43,847,867
South America	5,275,108	6,369,354
Asia	617,140	4,577,891
Africa	503,872	3,447,138

With the demands of the home market for the great bulk of American iron and steel products and with the foreign customers standing at the mill doors waiting for their orders to be filled, the outlook for this industry is decidedly encouraging.

The Ruskin Matrimonial Course.

It is the opinion of Professor Morgan of the Ruskin university, which lately moved bag and baggage from Trenton, Mo., to the environs of Chicago, that divorces are caused by women being unable to understand husbands, and he therefore proposes to establish a department which will teach them how to do so. In the curriculum laid down for the matrimonial course higher mathematics are to be discarded as unnecessary; a working knowledge of reading, writing and spelling is considered sufficient. Special attention is to be devoted to the housewifery class, in which the student will be instructed so that she will know round steak from ham and eggs, be able to raise bread without a derrick, to tell when enough prunes are sufficient and to vary the daily menu without hash. While the lack of this desirable knowledge on the part of brides is perhaps not the chief cause of divorce, it is by no means as universal as might be wished, and in the effort to extend it the Ruskin institution is to be commended.

The main feature of the matrimonial course, however, is not culinary, but psychological, and it is the purpose of Professor Morgan to introduce studies designed to fit the graduates to select a compatible husband. A man's conduct before his marriage, the professor holds, is no criterion of his fitness, but by the psychological course the expectant brides will be trained to study his disposition and read his mind. In other words, the idea at Ruskin is that the proper study of womankind is man. But this cannot be pursued exclusively by books or within college walls. This knowledge comes only in the practical school of daily life.

Commenting on the carrying of concealed weapons, a New York judge says, "In ninety cases out of a hundred, if I could do as I wish and the law permitted me, I would send the man who carried a loaded weapon about to Sing Sing for ten years." When one considers the number of shootings which occur solely because the person who thinks he has a grievance happens to have a revolver handy one can appreciate the feeling that inspired that remark.

M. de Plehve is reported as having said the other day that Russia is going to encourage the Jews to emigrate. The impression seems to prevail that Russia has already given the Jews a good deal of such encouragement.

It may be taken for granted that King Peter is not the sort of person to be seriously worried by any retinue of ghosts that may see fit to pay him their respects in the royal palace of Belgrade.

Since Sir Thomas Lipton has three Shamrocks now over here, and there are three American cup defenders ready for business, why not make it a relay race?

It is announced that King George of Greece will visit King Edward at the end of July. No invitation has yet been received by King Peter of Servia.

River and Harbor Work.

Chairman Burton of the river and harbor committee of the last house of representatives, who will probably be reappointed to that place in the next house, has been looking into the subject in Europe, and the results of his observations may be of some service to the committee in the forthcoming congress.

In France Mr. Burton found that an improvement of any river or harbor is not begun until the full amount necessary for its completion has been appropriated. If that rule were adopted in this country many expenditures now included in the bill would not be made. There would be national indignation over the large sums expended on some of the comparatively useless "improvements" provided the entire amount were included in one bill. There is, however, little probability of congress adopting that method, as it would interfere with the passage of the bill. As it is now, so many members are interested in the measure because it provides for expenditures in their districts that its defeat in the regular manner is almost impossible. Only by some parliamentary maneuver such as that executed in the Fifty-sixth congress by Senator Carter can a river and harbor bill be defeated.

Another feature of the French system requires localities benefited to contribute a share toward the expenses of an improvement. That is a fair proposition and might well be adopted in this country. If such a rule were in effect here it would have a decided tendency to stop the demand for "improvements" which benefit individuals only, either financially or politically. If Mr. Burton could ingraft that feature on river and harbor appropriations it would tend greatly to economy, or at least to a fairer expenditure of the public funds for this purpose.

The Newest Style In Hair.

Newport has set another new fashion. According to a late dispatch, a pretty young woman appeared on Bellevue avenue in the famous social center a few days ago with her golden hair carelessly dangling down over her shoulders. Some of her friends thought her hair was especially becoming to her that way, and they tried it themselves. The result is that the new fashion has been fairly started, and all the women who profess to be in good form will probably adopt it before the summer is over.

The woman with abundant and luxuriant tresses will no doubt thank her lucky stars for this innovation, but how about the woman with scant and straggling locks? Hitherto she has been able to put on a switch without letting the world notice it. Perhaps she will find some way to fasten it to her head and let its strands mingle with her own meager ones as they hang over her shoulders. It is to be hoped that this may be possible, as otherwise there will be no little suffering, many heartaches and the exhibition of much jealousy. Every woman who does not follow the new fashion is likely to be accused of having only store hair on her head, and a great deal of injustice would thus be done.

On the whole, it is unfortunate that the Newport girl happened to be seen when "her golden hair was hanging down her back," but as the trouble has started and the new fashion has been inaugurated the women folks, whether of abounding tresses or meager locks, must make the best of it. As for masculine humanity, it can stand it except in cases where auburn haired wives find black hairs on the shoulders of their husbands' coats, and vice versa.
