AT THE TOP

Philip Crandall

There is always room at the top if you only have a motive. "Rome was not builded in a day." Neither do we, as a rule, come to fame overnight. Altho there are exceptions in some cases, we can be assured success by plodding rather than slacking.

Be true to your convictions and you will not disappoint anyone.

ANDOVER TAKES SECOND IN STOCK JUDGING CONTEST

Andover High School, represented by Norbert, Charles and Philip Lynch, took second in the "B" division in judging stock at Alfred on May 3rd.

This was a surprise to the high school because few students knew that Andover was to send a team. They received a white banner with yellow letters which is now on display in the office as a permanent possession.

HUMOR

Eddie Kemp (seriously): "Do you think your father would object to my marrying you?"

Bea Kruger: "If he is anything like me he would."

• • •

James Lynch to Jack Regan: "My friend laughed at me when I spoke to the waitress in French, but the joke was on him, I told the waitress to give him the check."

• • •

Don Lynch: "Honey, don't you think you could manage to live on $25 a week?"

Alyse Pope: "Get the license. I'll try it a week."

• • •

New Resident: "I suppose in your home town is one of those places where everyone goes down to meet the train?"

John Cannon: "What train?"

• • •

M. Nobles: "I was reading the other day that an ostrich can see very little, and can digest anything."

E. Greene: "What an ideal husband!"

• • •

V. Yannie: "Aren't some of the hats women wear absurd?"

L. Regan: "Yes, and yet when some people put them on they DO look SO appropriate!"

ANDOVER BOWS TO CANASERAGA

Andover High School baseball team lost its first game of the season to Canaseraga at Andover, Monday, May 6, by the score of 10-2. The poor showing of the Andover boys at bat and in the field was the cause of the defeat.

Andover didn't get a hit and committed several errors. Canaseraga collected seven hits and committed several errors.

Andover was unable to hit in the pinches at different times. With men on second and third, they could not seem to hit and the men died on base.

Andover has had but one practice since Easter vacation, and only three this year, due to bad weather. After a few more practices they are sure to pick up and go places.

GUESS WHO?

This boy I am about to describe is a studious Senior. He is liked by everyone, altho he doesn't like the girls. His name is on the excused list almost every time. He wears glasses, has brown hair and usually wears a brown sweater. I've given you all possible information, see if you can't guess who I'm.

Answer to last week—Richard Burdick.

VALEDICTORIAN AND SALUTATORIAN ANNOUNCED

James Lynch and Marian Nobles Lead Class of '35.

James Lynch was announced as valedictorian and Marian Nobles as salutatorian of the Class of 1935, by Principal Bretsch on Monday, May 6th.

Averages of 83.58 and 80.39 per were achieved by James and Marian.

Special commendation is due to these students. James Lynch has been a student in high school for only three years and yet managed to become the possessor of the highest average.

Marian Nobles has participated in a great many extracurricular activities. Besides being a member of the Hi-Y, 4-H and Glee Club, she found time to serve as Editor-in-Chief of the Hi Herald during her senior year.

The Hi Herald congratulates Marian and James and wishes for them greater rewards for their evident ability.

SENIOR INTERVIEWS

What is your name?—John Lawrence Amos Cannon.

Where were you born?—Andover.

Where did you attend school?—Call Hill, Mt. Jewett and Andover.

What is your favorite sport? —Football.

What kind of books do you like to read?—Parisienne Nights.

What is your favorite recreation? —Fishing.

What are you going to do when you finish school?—Come back and play basketball and football.

Johnny is probably the drollest person in high school. He has a very sharp wit and whenever Johnny is around there is laughter. John is a good athlete, playing varsity on the football and basketball teams. He is also a good baseball player and high jumper. His only fault is that he likes to hunt rabbits too well.

What is your name? Howard Edward McAndrew

Where were you born? Andover.

Where did you attend school? Andover

What is your favorite sport? Basketball.

What is your favorite recreation? Hunting.

What books do you like to read? Parisienne Nights.

Howard is one of the most popular boys in high school with both the girls and boys. He is a natural athlete, playing varsity on the basketball and baseball teams. He was a regular member of the football team until he was forced to drop the sport and he is also a very good high jumper. Howard should get on very well after his high school days are over because he is very friendly with everyone.

What is your name? Decatur Maxson Clarke.

Where were you born? Independence.

Where did you attend school? Independence and Andover.

What is your favorite sport?—Football.

What kind of books do you like to read?—Biographies.

What is your favorite recreation? —Coaching athletics.

What are you going to do when you get out of school—Be a farmer.

Decatur is a good-natured fellow and is well liked by his classmatees because of his subtle humor. He is very athletic, playing on the football and baseball teams and for a while on the basketball team. We believe that Decatur will go a long way in life because he has the knack of getting on with everyone with whom he comes in contact.

What is your name?—Edward Miller Brewster.

Where were you born?—Greenwood.

Where did you attend school?—Shovel Hollow and Andover High.

What is your favorite sport?—Football.

What kind of books do you like to read?—Biographies and travel.

What is your favorite recreation? —Sleeping, I guess.

What are you going to do when you finish school?—Go to college, I guess.

Eddie Brewster, "the high school heavyweight" is a very good natured fellow and the only time you can make him mad is when you say that. Joe Cronin isn't a good ball player. Eddie keeps everyone laughing with his giggle, which you would never believe could come from him. We think that Eddie will succeed after completing school because of his personality which allows him to be on good terms with any and everyone.

THE SPOTLIGHT ! !

If this Spotlight is like the weather, I'm afraid that you will be pretty bored.

Why did Bruce McGill sit down so quickly when his folks walked in Friday night?

Don Lynch sure gets the girls. If it isn't Alice it's Hilda.

Why did Joe McAndrew sit in a car so long Friday night during an hour and a half? You might be able to make the track team Joe, but you can't make a Cook.

I wonder how much Brutsman got stuck for last Wednesday night when he took a few of our most proficient citizens to Midway Inn!

Why do Phil could only judge girls as well as he does cattle he would always be in the spotlight.

How is it that Don Joyce knows that the roof of Backus' car doesn't leak. Maybe he's been in it when it rained.

Milt Briggs certainly enjoys doing the tango with C. Dolan. It wouldn't be so bad, but he carries rehearsal into all hours of the night with her.

Why does Vars spend so much time around Lauterborn's? Maybe because of D. F.

I wonder how Ray Briggs, Bruce McGill and Dick Appier thought they had a chance with the Canaseraga girls when Leo Fulkerson, Red McAndrew and Eddie Alderson were around?

Johnny Cannon didn't go to the dance Friday night because Mary Lou, his little nurse wasn't there. Joe McAdrew also missed "Bucky." Brace up boys, you'll come thru yet.

That tall handsome Sly has finally won by a nose from Decatur Clarke who was a close second in the race for Marilla's hand and her smile.

"Strappy" says the operetta is going to be a success. Maybe because Regina Lynch is in it.

Bill Woodruff has finally found his dream girl.

I wonder how some Andover boys liked the fashions at the 4-H Rally Friday? Judging from the noise they made, it was pretty good.

What is the attraction that Laura Backus has for Ray Briggs? Ask Ray, he'll tell you.

The next time Eddie Kemp goes after a high fly in center field, he'd better get a fly swatter.

I wonder how Bruce enjoyed the dance with the tall girl from Allentown. Pretty nice, wasn't she Bruce?

What were Joe and Maxine doing at operetta? That isn't the kind of practice you come for, Joe.

Another budding romance—Philip Crandall and Marian Nobles have decided to be that way about each other.

I wonder why Jean M. was over to Dick Appier's house all Sunday afternoon? I can't see any attraction.

Bruce McGill and Milt Briggs sure have a battle to see who is going to dance with Ruth Slocum before operetta practice. Once in a while Don Lynch beats them out, but not often.

Well next week we will give you some real news because there will be a lot going on after the operetta, so until next week remember me as "The old dirt disher."

Apologies to "Bob" Healey for spelling his name incorrectly. We do that occasionally, "Bob," to find out who's reading our paper.

With Byrd At The South Pole

(A Series of Three Articles)

E. J. "Pete" Demas — George O. Noville — Admiral Byrd — C. A. Abele, Jr. — Paul Siple — Harold June

By C. A. ABELE, JR.
Ensign, U. S. Naval Reserve
Assistant Fuel Engineer, Byrd Antarctic Expedition II

No. 2
Things I've Learned

ON BOARD THE BYRD FLAGSHIP, JACOB RUPPERT (via Mackay Radio)—We are cruising across the vast Pacific, in tropical weather free from ice, snow, crevasses, blizzards and the other Antarctic devilments we have put up with formerly two years. What a relief! We are moving slowly in order to conserve our supply of fuel oil.

We had sadness in New Zealand. Our pleasure at seeing new faces, trees and grass and getting clean again, was offset by the death, from natural causes, of our clever carpenter, Capt. Ivor A. Tingloff, of Boston. This is the first man of either of Admiral Byrd's Antarctic Expeditions to die before the final home coming. The Admiral has never lost a man on the ice, despite the terrific dangers and tasks they have encountered—a remarkable achievement and a wonderful testimonial to Admiral Byrd's care of his men, in equipment and in watching over their health and welfare, often at the expense of his own well-being.

The past year has been a year of intensive training for me. I didn't think that in the short space of 22 months a person could cram so much information into his head. In a talk this morning with E. J. "Pete" Demas, of Washington, D. C., chief of the tractor division, we summarized the operation of the tractors during the past season and some points were brought to light which may be of interest to motorists and others interested in automotive matters.

This has been the first time in the history of Arctic or Antarctic exploration that surface automotive units have ever been used successfully. This success, however, was entirely the result of unflagging attention to details. Our big tractor, the three little French tractors and the two Ford snowmobiles were not constructed to meet conditions such as we encountered in that icy nightmare south of the sun.

Demas and Vernon Boyd, of Turtle Creek, Pa., Joseph Hill, Jr., of Canyon, Tex., Bernard Skinner, of Winthrop, Me., and J. H. Vander Wall, of South Ozone, N. Y., labored under almost impossible conditions through the long winter night preparing the units for their season of activity.

Demas had been on Admiral Byrd's previous expedition and was able to anticipate numerous necessary changes in the machines including the installation of a 15-gallon oil tank over each engine. By this means hot and fluid Veedol oil was always available for use in the engines even at the lowest temperatures. Airplane tanks holding 145 gallons of precious Tydol gasoline were installed in the little Citroen tractors and a 50-gallon tank on the big tractor. Demas was greatly concerned over two problems which faced him, namely oil dilution and vaporization of fuel. Much to our surprise these items never became an issue. The fuel and lubricants functioned perfectly and later when the engines were overhauled no excessive deposits of carbon were found.

The greatest trouble we had on these awful tractor trips was the breaking of fan belts. At the extremely low temperatures encountered, 50 to 70 degrees below zero, the rubber and leather belts became brittle and snapped like spaghetti. We attempted to make belts of rope. These would work for a short time and then start to slip. On one trip of 250 miles Commander Noville used 15 fan belts. This is still a problem for other Arctic explorers to meet.

The next difficulty was ice in the carburetors resulting from fine particles of snow being drawn into the air intake. These penetrated the finest screen. This obstacle could only be overcome by removing the carburetor and chipping out the ice. In order to facilitate removal of the carburetor it was equipped with butterfly nuts instead of the usual hex head. We made another peculiar discovery, that lowering the draw bar connecting each machine to the sledges it was pulling increased the efficiency of the vehicle. If the draw-bar was at or above the center of gravity most of the weight of the machine was thrown back on the heel of the tread when towing heavy loads instead of being evenly distributed over the entire tread. This caused the tractors to dig into the soft snow.

We had a lot more battery trouble than the average motorist has in winter. So long as the batteries were kept fully charged no difficulty was encountered but once they were allowed to drop below the full charge the output decreased rapidly. For this reason spare charged batteries were carried in all the cars. Each unit also carried a complete set of spare parts so that any type of repair could be accomplished out on the blizzard swept trails.

Even now, as we are plugging across the Pacific with our amazing experiences only a few weeks behind us, they are beginning to register in our minds as events of the long-distant past. Some of the things we went through are hard to realize now. In my article next week I will try to give you a mental summary of the entire Byrd Expedition from the standpoint of a 22-year old boy just out of college.

Around Our House

Rhubarb has a mild and delicate flavor and is relished when stewed or baked by itself. It also combines with other fruits to make delicious conserves and jams. The following recipes are given by the New York State college of home economics:

Rhubarb and Orange Conserve

2 cups rhubarb cut fine.
2 cups of sugar.
Juice and grated rind of 1 aronge
Juice of 1 lemon.
½ cup of nuts, blanched and cut in small pieces.

Combine all the ingredients except the nuts. Stir the mixture over the heat until the sugar dissolves. Remove it from the fire, add the nuts, mix well, and pour the conserve into clean, hot glasses. When it is cold, seal with hot paraffin.

Rhubarb and Strawberry Jam

4 cups of rhubarb
4 cups of strawberries
6 cups of sugar.

Cut the unpeeled rhubarb in one-half inch pieces. Mix the strawberries, rhubarb, and sugar and cook the mixture slowly until it is thick and clear.

Remove the kettle from the heat and let the mixture stand a few minutes so that it may stiffen slightly and thus help to prevent the fruit from floating in the liquid. Pour the jam into clean hot jars and seal them; or pour it into clean, hot glasses and when cold, cover the jam with hot paraffin. If glasses and paraffin are used, the mixture should be cooked to a jelly-like consistency.

Jan Garber Coming

The band all southwestern New York and northwestern Pennsylvania have been waiting for, Jan Garber and his world famous orchestra, will appear for one night only at the Ceres, N. Y., Coliseum, Sunday evening, May 12th. Dancing 10 to 2, social plan. The admission is $1.50 a person, tax included. Doors open at 8 p. m.

Get Prison Sentences

Horace Bentley, 24, married, of West Almond, was sentenced to from one and one half to three years in Attica State prison, and Gaylon A. Snyder, 26, married, of West Almond, R. F. D., to from four to eight years in Attica, charged with statutory offenses by Judge Walter N. Renwick, May 3rd.

Food Market Advice

New Potatoes Plentiful

New potatoes are now plentiful and moderate in price, and you may choose between the Spaulding Rose and Irish Cobbler varieties. The marketing of nearby grown vegetables is reducing the demand for those shipped from a distance with a resulting general drop in vegetable prices. Onions and cabbage are still relatively high and broccilo is temporarily out of season. Spinach and asparagus are particularly cheap.

Summer Orange Season Opening

There are still plenty of Florida Valencia and California navel oranges in market and most attractively priced. In addition, the first of the California Valencias which are the only variety available during the summer and fall, have arrived. Grapefruit continues to be plentiful. Imperial Valley cantaloupe are replacing the Mexican grown. Peurto Rican pineapples are approaching the peak of their season. Bananas are cheap and unusually good. The strawberry season has had a temporary setback but increased supplies are anticipated.

Butter More Reasonable

The butter market, due to imports and the beginning of the producing season, has steadied at a very moderate level. Eggs continue to remain at their recent level which is moderate but not as low as expected.

Veal, Lamb and Poultry Best Meat Choices

Veal has continued to go down in price, and is an excellent choice this week. Lamb remains moderate. Roasting chickens are taking their turn at being lower this week. Ducklings, too, are attractive in price.

For those who are beef hungry, forequarter cuts of beef have gone slightly lower. The season for fresh pork is growing short and altho it is fairly high it is not prohibitive.

Fish Especially Attractive

Good fishing weather and the advancing season make for a wide variety of fish in market at really low prices. With an ending of the oyster season, clams and scallops come into their own.

Here is a menu made up from seasonable foods which are moderate in price:

Radishes	Scallion	Carrot Sticks
Veal Chops	New Parsley Potatoes
	Spinach Vinaigrette
	Bread and Butter
Rhubarb Pie	Coffee	Cheese

A DISH FOR THE WEEK

Spring days and the first home-grown greens of the year served in vegetable-plate luncheons and dinners are in natural harmony.

Dandelion Greens with Bacon

2 tablespoons of butter
1 cup of bread crumbs
2 cups of cooked and chopped greens
1 tablespoon of onion juice
1 tablespoon of vinegar of lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste.

Brown the crumbs slightly in the melted butter, add the greens and the remaining ingredients. When the mixture is hot, shape it into a loaf on a plate, garnish it with slices of hard-cooked egg, and places slices of broiled bacon over the top.

For a vegetable-plate luncheon or supper, the New York State college of home economics suggests: Dandelion greens with bacon, creamed new potatoes, buttered carrots, wholewheat muffins with butter, custard and milk for all.

Homespun Yarn

A recent report states that 90 per cent of crimes and delinquencies of boys and girls who appeared in juvenile court or were sent to correctional institutions in one large city were traceable to books, magazines and newspapers they had read and to movies they had seen.

Peanut brittle, meat products, coffee, coconut, crackers, and dates keep better in metal foil packages than in other containers, scientists say.

A pretty, clear skin comes with good health, cleanliness, and plenty of oil to lubricate and stimulate circulation under the skin, according to one health authority.

Tin or aluminum foil packages are becoming more popular because, among other things, they resist infection by insects, and allow only a small amount of moisture.
