1940 Crop Values Down in New York State

Department of Agriculture Reports Value of 1940 Farm Crops Down Eight Per Cent.

The value of the production of 37 crops for which estimates are regularly made in New York was $142,605,000 in 1940, a decrease of eight per cent from the $154,608,000 value of the same crops in 1939, according to a Federal-State report issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

The crops grown in New York fall in three major groups: grain crops, forage crops and so-called "cash crops."

Of the grain crops, oats, barley and corn, used mainly for livestock feed, (the corn also including corn fodder and silage) the value of 1940 was $29,498,000, a drop of only two per cent from 1939. Another group of grains of which a fairly large proportion are sold, namely, wheat, rye and buckwheat, totaled $7,523,000, an increase of 11 per cent compared with the value of 1939 production.

The value of hay crops, including alfalfa, clover and timothy, and other types, was $46,935,000, or five per cent less than last year, a reduction in price per ton more than offsetting the greatly increased production.

The hay and grain crops noted above add to $83,956,000, or a value of three per cent less than the crops of 1939. They represent about 59 per cent of the dollar value of all the 37 crops covered in the report.

While these are estimated values, they are in no sense income, since the larger proportion of the produce in these groups will be fed to farm animals, and the return to the farmers will depend upon the value of the milk, eggs, meat and wool that will ultimately be marketed.

The more strictly "cash crops" comprising 41 per cent of the dollar value in 1940 are highly variable. The group composed of tobacco, dry beans, soy beans and clover seed were worth $3,376,000 in 1940, a drop of 19 per cent from the previous year, due mainly to a very light bean crop.

The five major fruit crops: apples, peaches, pears, grapes and cherries were worth $17,182,000, a decrease of 13 per cent from the production of the year 1939. A very light crop of apples, and somewhat reduced crops of peaches, pears and cherries, with lower prices for some of the fruits were responsible for the drop in value. These do not include tree fruits, plums, prunes, quinces and apricots, nor the important bush fruits, black and red raspberries, blackberries, gooseberries, currants and blue-berries for which estimates are not available.

Maple sugar and syrup, a million dollar industry, yielded $1,232,000, about the same as in 1939.

Potatoes, heavy on Long Island and very light up-state, with low prices everywhere, were valued at $16,371,000, or 27 per cent less than in 1939.

On the other hand, 11 important vegetables grown mainly for market, including snap beans, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, lettuce, onions, green peas, strawberries and tomatoes represented an increase of 28 per cent in value over a year earlier, the 1940 total standing at $20,489,000. Not included are several vegetables for which estimates are not available. The six vegetables grown mainly for canning factory use, and freezing or pickling, namely, snap beans, beets, sweet corn, cucumbers, green peas and tomatoes, totaled $4,400,000 in value, only two per cent below 1939.

The report points out that, with the wide diversity of agricultural conditions in New York State, the 1940 season was very favorable for some farmers, and almost disastrous for others, tho on the whole the generally greater crop production of 1940 was worth somewhat less than that of 1939. It is stressed that these values do not necessarily represent income, since a large part of some of these crops are used on the farms where grown for food and feed.

Indications are that income from livestock and its products in 1940 will exceed that of 1939 to a substantial extent.

DISH FOR THIS WEEK

TURKEY TETRAZZINI

The problem of how to serve half a dozen persons from a cupful of cold turkey meat and how to add interest to it may be solved by the following recipe for turkey Tetrazzini, suggested by the New York State College of Home Economics:

Turkey Tetrazzini

1 cup of white sauce, made with rich milk or cream and seasoned with salt, pepper and celery salt.

1 cup of cooked turkey, cut in thin strips.

½ cup of cooked spaghetti, cut in one-half inch pieces.

½ cup of mushroom caps, sliced and sautéed in butter.

½ cup of grated strong cheese.

¾ cup buttered cracker crumbs.

Bring the white sauce to the boiling point and add the turkey, the spaghetti, and the sauteed mushrooms. Fill a buttered casserole dish, or individual ramekins, with the mixture, sprinkle it with the grated cheese and cracker crumbs and bake it in a hot oven (425 degrees F) until the crumbs are brown. This serves about six persons.

Suggested menu, using left-overs from Christmas dinner: Turkey tetrazzini on toast; canned peas or asparagus; cranberry jelly; pear, apple or grape salad with French dressing and crackers; plum pudding or fruit cake with a different sauce (foamy, lemon, apricot, custard or hard sauce); and coffee, tea or milk.

Dog Owners' Notice

Dog licenses for 1940 expired on December 31st, 1940. The 1941 license fee was due January 1st. Licenses so issued will cover the period from January 1st to December 31st, 1941. Every dog must wear a tag of the current dog license year. A dog without such a tag is not protected by law and no action can be maintained for his injury or destruction.

An unlicensed dog may be seized and killed and the fact that a dog is without a tag is presumptive evidence that the dog is unlicensed.

Dog licenses must be obtained from the clerk of the city or town where the dog is harbored or kept.

License fees: Male dog, $2.25; female dog, $5.25; spayed female dog, $2.25. These amounts include clerk's fees.

No license can be issued for less than the full license year.

The owner of a dog who fails or refuses to obtain a license for the dog as required by law incurs a penalty of $10.00 and costs.

The enumerators of towns and the police departments of cities are required to prepare in January of this year a list of dog owners. The omission of the name of an owner from the enumerator's or police list will not excuse the owner from obtaining a license.

If you owned a dog last year and do not own one now, so advise the clerk of your town or city.

Dog licenses in the Town of Andover are issued by MRS. FLORENCE BLOSS, Clerk, P. O. Address, Andover, New York. 5

Lunn Lumber Company Has $15,000 Fire

Fire which was discovered about 11 o'clock Tuesday night in the planing mill of the F. E. Lunn & Son lumber company plant at Wellsville did an estimated $15,000 damage before it was brought under control by Wellsville firemen, who worked vigorously until 6:30 in the morning.

The cause of the blaze is not definitely determined. The only fire used in the building was a wood burning heating stove which was fired during the day and put out at night when workmen left the plant.

Fine work by Wellsville firemen prevented the fire from spreading to the nearby lumber sheds where thousands of dollars worth of lumber were stored and to nearby residences.

Local Postoffice Shows Steady Increase

Business at the Andover postoffice has shown a steady income year by year, according to Postmaster J. D. Cheesman. The past year's receipts show a total of $71,505.57 as compared with total receipts of $22,032.29 in 1932, an increase of $49,473.28.

Postmaster Cheesman states that this increase in postal business is not from any special resource, but just a steady healthy growth in postal business during the past eight years.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO DRIVE ON ICY WINTER HIGHWAYS?

Can You Answer These 'Quiz Questions?

1. Does it help to reduce air pressure in tires when travelling over icy surfaces?

2. When is an icy pavement most dangerous; when the air temperature is 2 degrees above freezing or when it is 2 degrees below freezing?

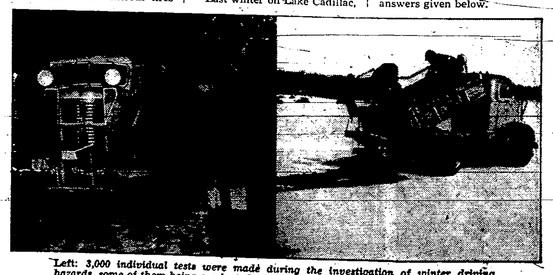
3. Are tires with good treads much better than smooth tires on icy roads? On wet roads?

4. How do highway departments prevent sand or cinders, used in skidproofing, from blowing off the road or being brushed off by traffic?

5. Can a vehicle with tire chains negotiate icy curves at higher speeds than a vehicle without chains?

6. In what manner should brakes be applied when stopping on an icy surface?

Last winter on Lake Cadillac, Michigan, the National Safety Council and a group of co-operating agencies conducted an extensive investigation of the problems involved in winter driving. The correct answers to the foregoing questions are found among the interesting and valuable data developed. Substantial reductions in the heavy winter traffic toll can be made if every motorist who quizzes himself on these questions will also read and remember the answers given below.



Left: 3,000 individual tests were made during the investigation of winter driving hazards, some of them being conducted at night. Right: Treated abrasives were spread on the frozen lake surface and demonstrations made of their effectiveness in skidproofing.

Answers to Highway Safety Quiz

1. The common practices of lowering tire pressure and increasing the load over rear wheels to increase traction on slippery surfaces are not recommended. The resulting increase in traction for stopping is slight, and this is more than offset by reduction of safe speed on curves.

2. Strange though it may seem, icy surfaces are more treacherous at 2 degrees above freezing than they are at 2 degrees below freezing. As temperatures go down, safety on icy surfaces goes up and the stopping distance on ice at 15 degrees is actually 37% less than at 34 degrees.

3. On icy roads, condition of tires does not have much bearing on skidding. In the case of wet roads, however, cars with good treads are definitely better.

4. Practically all highway departments now treat skidproofing abrasives with calcium chloride. This material forms a thin coating around the sand or cinder particles which causes them to melt into the ice and anchor securely. Since calcium chloride is an anti-freeze, it also prevents storage piles of abrasives from freezing and makes spreading on icy roads easy even at subzero temperatures.

5. While the use of chains is beneficial in stopping or accelerating on straight sections of icy highways, they do not provide control against rear-end skidding on curves. Chains should be regarded as providing an extra margin of safety at moderately slow speeds, but a margin that disappears if speeds are too fast.

6. In stopping on slippery roads, let the braking power of the engine in high gear slow the vehicle down to about 10-12 miles per hour, using the brakes lightly, if necessary; then disengage the clutch and apply brakes cautiously for the final stop. "Pumping" the brakes lightly off and on is much better than locking the brakes for maintaining control of direction.
