Potent Pill Pleasure.

The pills that are potent in their action and pleasant in effect are DeWitt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot of Albany, Ga., says, "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was it did me more good than calomel, blue-mass or any other pill I ever took and at the same time it effected me pleasantly. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover.

Save the Children.

Ninety-five of every one hundred diseases that children have are due to disorders of the stomach, and these disorders are all caused by indigestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is just as good for children as it is for adults. Children thrive on it. It keeps their little stomachs sweet and encourages their growth and development. Mrs. Henry Carter, 703 Central St., Nashville, Tenn., says: "My little boy is now three years old and has been suffering from indigestion ever since he was born. I have had the best doctors in Nashville, but failed to do him any good. After using one bottle of Kodol he is a well baby. I recommend it to all sufferers." Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover.

Monster Cheese is Proposed.

Albany, Aug. 12.—A monster cheese weighing two tons, will probably be manufactured in this state and sent to the St. Louis exposition next spring. "New York is the greatest cheese producing state in the Union," said Agricultural Commissioner Wieting, "and the biggest cheese ever made in the world ought to grace our exhibit at St. Louis."

BELIEVED TO BE DROWNED.

George Evans and Florence Brown Went Boating Monday and Have Not Returned.

Gloversville, N. Y., Aug. 12.—There is much excitement and no little consternation at Canada lake, an Adirondack summer resort 20 miles north of this city, as to the whereabouts of George H. Evans of Johnstown and Miss Florence Brown of New York, who are summering there.

They left Fulton's hotel Monday morning in a row boat to search for pond lilies. Later in the day their boat was found afloat in the lake with one oar missing. In the boat was the young lady's sacque and a man's sweater.

Searching parties were immediately instituted and the woods surrounding the lake thoroughly searched, but up to a late hour no trace had been found of the missing couple. There is a strong suspicion at the lake that Mr. Evans and Miss Brown have been drowned and preparations to drag the lake are under way.

Mr. Evans is a member of a prominent Johnstown family and Miss Brown came to the lake from New York with her sister, Mrs. Beiring.

POPE RECOVERED.

But Doctors Say He will Not Stand Confinement as Leo Did.

Rome, Aug. 12.—Although the pope was much better Dr. Lapponi, who visited him again, thought it more prudent for his holiness not to leave his apartment. The doctor further insisted on a suspension of audiences.

The pontiff seems more docile to the doctor's wishes than his predecessor, although he insisted on transacting some current business, such as the appointment of Alberto Sill, the son of the dean of the grooms, as his personal valet.

Dr. Davenezia, speaking about the pope said: "If they wish our Pius no to succumb, the Vatican authorities must change their system. They must not oblige him to follow the habits of Pope Leo. The present pontiff needs especially plenty of fresh air. He must not be shut up in a box in a vitiated atmosphere."

MACEDONIAN REVOLUTION.

Committee Deny Alleged Atrocities Committed by Bulgarians.

Sofia, Aug. 12.—The representatives of the Macedonian revolutionary committee announce that the revolution broke out in the vilayet of Uskub last Sunday and in the vilayet of Adrianople Monday. Telegraphic communication is interrupted.

The representatives of the committee also publish a contradiction of the alleged atrocities committed by the Bulgarians and accuse the Turks of attempting to prepare the mind of Europe for the eventual massacre of innocent Christians.

General Tzonchaff, president of the Macedonian committee, has addressed an appeal to his adherents to assist the insurgents in Macedonia, even by revolutionary means.

To Protect Italian Subjects.

Rome, Aug. 12.—The minister of marine has directed that a squadron be kept in readiness to sail for the east should the complications in Macedonia make it necessary to protect Italian subjects there.

Mrs. Mollie Allen of South Fork, Ky., says she has prevented attacks of cholera morbus by taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets when she felt an attack coming on. Such attacks are usually caused by indigestion and these tablets are just what is needed to cleanse the stomach and ward off the approaching attack. Attacks of bilious colic may be prevented in the same way. For sale by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Coston Greenwood.

My Hair

"I had a very severe sickness that took off all my hair. I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor and it brought all my hair back again."
W. D. Quinn, Marseilles, Ill.

One thing is certain,—Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. This is because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair and the hair grows, that's all there is to it. It stops falling of the hair, too, and always restores color to gray hair.

Short Talks on Advertising
By Charles Austin Bates.

No. 5.

It is no doubt true that keeping your name continuously before the people will pay if you do it long enough, and nobody else does any better advertising than that.

I do not believe in generalities. "All kinds of staple and fancy groceries"—"A full line of dry goods and notions"—Such things were said fifty years ago and some business men persist in the folly even now.

All that a general ad ever does is to "keep your name and business before the people." New, isn't your name and business kept before people just the same or a little better when you advertise some special thing or things? It surely is, and, besides that you have the benefit of a direct demand for the thing advertised. That is, of course, provided that the thing is a good thing, and at a low enough price to make it strongly desirable.

The way to stir up trade is to take some item that there is naturally a demand for and put a deep cut price on it. That will bring people to the store, and they'll buy other things—at least you won't lose anything, for many of them would not have come without the extra inducement.

The idea of drawing people with special offerings is perfectly legitimate, even when the only object is to get them into the store, for in that way they get acquainted with the store and the stock. If these are all right they will come again.

There are plenty of times when special bargains are offered, the object being merely to sell the goods quickly, no thought being taken of the value of the sale from the point of advertising advantage. It is well to explain why the prices are made lower than usual. Give a good, honest reason for it. The honester you can be in your ad the better people will like it. Not only be honest, but let the ads show and prove that you are. People like to know the how and the what of everything nowadays.

The advertisement of the future will be one that will leave out any idea of being funny or "catchy." It will tell store news plainly, clearly, honestly. When it tells about goods it will tell something about them. If they are good, the ad will not only say so, but will say why.

If they are best—the same.

DAM IN ST. LAWRENCE

Public Hearing Held by Major Bingham at Ogdensburg.

PERMISSION ASKED BY CANADA.

Question as to Whether it Will Affect Level of Lake Ontario or Rights of American Citizens—Vessel Interests in Favor—Objection by Owner of Galoup Island.

Ogdensburg, Aug. 12.—By order of the secretary of war, Major Theodore A. Bingham, commanding the United States engineers in this district, held a public hearing here to ascertain whether the construction of a dam across the channel between Adams and Galoup islands will materially affect the level of Lake Ontario or the rights of citizens of the United States.

The Canadian government has constructed a new channel to the head of the St. Lawrence rapids and finding that strong cross currents interfered with traffic in the channel by forcing many vessels aground, has petitioned the United States government for permission to construct a dam 900 feet long at low level to obviate the difficulty.

A. W. Fraser, king's counsel for the Canadian government; T. S. Rubidge, superintending engineer of the Canadian canals, and his assistant; A. L. Kelliher of Ottawa; C. Quintos, assistant engineer of Oswego; Senator George R. Malby, representing the George Hall Coal company and the Ogdensburg Coal & Towing company, and other representatives of American forwarders appeared in favor of the plan.

It was opposed by Alban Dawson, owner of Galoup island, who claimed that the erection of a dam would raise the water level three feet, causing a strong current and also that the water would overflow about 60 acres on the island.

Mr. Dawson filed an objection to further proceedings before Major Bingham. He will also contest the constitutionality of the act of congress placing the consent or rejection of permission to construct the dam with the secretary of war.

DEFALCATION GROWING.

Boston Police Believe They Are on the Track of Willard S. Allen.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 12.—In a circular issued by the police giving a description of Willard S. Allen, absconding treasurer of the Preachers' Aid Society, the amount of the embezzlement is given as $110,000.

Allen's letter of confession saying he stole $80,000, made no reference to the misuse of funds other than those of the Preachers' Aid Society. Investigation has brought to light several cases in which Allen misappropriated money placed in his hands for safe keeping. The Methodist Historical Society's loss is $9,800.

Following the clue furnished by Lewis S. Gates, who reported having seen Allen at Rochester, N. Y., Thursday, the Boston police believe they are on the track of the fugitive.

MR. PAYNE PROTESTS.

Objects to the Use of His Name in a Magazine Advertisement.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 12.—Because his name appeared as a reference in a magazine advertisement of W. M. Ostrander of Philadelphia, a real estate broker, Postmaster General Henry C. Payne has ordered Assistant Attorney General Charles H. Robb of the postal department to secure the issuance of an order against the real estate man to show cause why the use of the mails should not be denied to him.

Mr. Payne, in his note to Mr. Robb, says the advertisement seems false and fraudulent. In a letter to a Milwaukee man, Mr. Payne declares that his name and official title were used in the advertisement against his protest.

Secretary Root Will Resign.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Before Secretary Root sails for London to sit with the Alaskan commission he will place his resignation in the hands of President Roosevelt in order that the president may appoint a secretary of war if it is deemed necessary during Mr. Root's absence. It is expected, however, that the resignation will not be acted upon until after congress meets. The appointment of Mr. Root's successor will depend somewhat upon the length of the time that Secretary Root will be engaged upon the Alaskan boundary commission.

Important Witness Missing.

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 12.—Sheriff Henry Broughton of Belle county, after being here several days, disappeared and failed to respond to his name in the trial of Caleb Powers in connection with the Goebel murder. His testimony is important and a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

Dove Headforemost Into a Well.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 12.—John Wimmett, an aged resident of Durhamville, who had become despondent, dove headforemost into a well 50 feet deep near his house. The body was found yesterday afternoon. Wimmett lived alone.

Tapping the Heavens For Electricity

The plan of Professors Whitney and Schoonmaker for tapping the ether above the clouds for an inexhaustible supply of electricity looks simple and easy. It would appear that they have what is known in the vernacular as a "lead pipe cinch" on the electric energy stored in the regions of space. It is not, however, proposed to use a lead pipe, but simply a copper wire, with which to penetrate the vast reservoir of electrified ether. The plan involves the smashing of Newton's law of gravitation, but this is an easy matter for real wizards. The world has been moving right along since Newton's day. His law was a good one for the times in which he lived, but we are in an age of progress. It was always suspected that there was a point in the heavens beyond which Newton's law did not reach and that if a man ever reached that point he would be held in suspension.

This is the basic idea underlying the experiment which Professors Whitney and Schoonmaker will attempt at Pike's peak. By means of special machinery, designed for the purpose, they propose to "shoot" a magnet into space to an altitude of 20,000 feet, where it is expected that the earth will cease to exert any "pull" on it and it will remain fixed in the upper ether. Through a fine copper wire attached to the magnet they will then draw the electricity that has been stored in ethereal space for countless ages and will dispense it for the benefit of mankind, and particularly for Professors Whitney and Schoonmaker.

While they are not the originators of the "aerial ladder" plan of getting electricity, they are going Ben Franklin better by many thousand feet, and they will not be compelled to wait for a thunderstorm to get action. The scheme is so feasible and simple that the wonder is that it has not been put in operation long ago. Why keep on spending millions to harness cataracts and mountain streams to manufacture electricity when it can be had in limitless quantities, without price, by simply tapping the ether above the clouds?

Public Ownership of Streets.

The supreme court of Illinois recently declared that a bay window erected upon the sidewalk space of a street in Chicago had no right to be built even though it had been authorized by a city council. The court held that the public is entitled to the use of all parts of a street, including the space above the street.

It was not long ago Justice Blanchard in New York vacated a temporary injunction obtained by George W. Vanderbilt to restrain the city authorities from removing the portico of his Fifth avenue house because it encroached on the street line. The justice said that even though the encroachment had been authorized by the city authorities it would be illegal.

These and other instances indicate that the people are coming around to the understanding that they own the streets, and with this comes a growing sentiment against overhanging signs and awnings, billboards, venders' stands, peddlers' pushcarts, litter and needless noise.

In hundreds of American cities public opinion is crystallizing into conviction that corporations enjoying certain privileges in the streets shall pay for the franchise. It seems not unreasonable that a corporation making its money out of tracks or conduits laid in a street should pay into the municipal treasury what the privilege is worth. A franchise to use a street is valuable enough in corporate esteem to be an asset on which to base capitalization, and there is no good reason why the people should give it away.

There is a serious shortage of freight cars in the west, and the farmers are complaining bitterly and with reason over the loss it is causing them. A large amount of grain, owing to the inadequate facilities of the railroads, must be piled on the ground and left exposed to the weather, with the exception of such slight protection as a covering of canvas affords. It is evident that inclement weather would cause serious loss. The time probably will never come when the railroads will be in condition to move all the grain as promptly as is necessary unless, indeed, a crop should be a practical failure. Every year sees an enormous increase in the rolling stock of the railroad companies, but the freight demands seem to be always ahead of the facilities.

Two professional actors from Buffalo eloped with and married the two prettiest girls in West Burke, Vt., and the resident youths of the village tried to lynch them. Of course law and order must be preserved, but in this case the provocation was certainly very great.

In denying that his son Austin is soon to marry an American girl, Joseph Chamberlain, the British colonial secretary, should not be too hasty in conveying the impression that the son has not as much good sense as the father.

National prosperity continues to serenely ignore the ups and downs of one street in one town.

Concentration of Banking Interests.

The August issue of the Atlantic Monthly contains a notable article by Charles J. Bullock on the "Concentration of Banking Interests in the United States," significantly illustrating the tendency of the age in financial as well as industrial affairs. The author points to the fact that the American banking system, ever since Andrew Jackson overthrew the second Bank of the United States, has consisted of a large number of small institutions possessing little desire or power of financial co-operation. What with national banks, state banks, private bankers and trust companies, there are now in the United States no less than 14,013 associations engaged in commercial banking. While prior to 1898 it would have been difficult to discover any appreciable tendency toward the concentration of banking interests in this country, the situation has been radically altered in this respect in the last five years. The organization of industrial trusts has brought to the great financial centers a large amount of business that formerly went to the banks in the localities where the separate factories were situated.

Corporation loans have thus been centralized to a very marked degree, and New York city has been the principal beneficiary of the change. The movement of bank reserves displays a similar tendency to flow toward New York, due in part to the drift of corporation business thither. There has been a great demand for additional capital to promote industrial development. To no small extent this has been met by the establishment of new institutions, as in the formation of trust companies, but in a much larger measure it has occasioned an increase in the resources of existing banks. Bank mergers have taken place to a great extent not only in New York city, but in many other commercial centers. This movement parallels the great railway and manufacturing consolidations. A common ownership has also been established in institutions that retain a nominal independence. Finally, in addition to these centralizing tendencies every effort has been made to secure co-operation on the widest possible scale through arrangements designed to unify the world of finance. The author says that, while the structure thus erected presents an imposing, even awe inspiring, appearance, its solidity will not be subjected to the decisive test until we reach a season of adversity. What will be the effect upon the interests of the country at large at such a time remains to be seen.

The Signboard Nuisance.

The way in which the railroads may help to abate the signboard nuisance is pointed out by the Philadelphia Press. They could do it by screening the unsightly boards and thus defeating the purpose of their erection. Where a railroad owns or controls its right of way it could plant quick growing trees like poplars or maples between the tracks and the signs. The trees would obstruct the view, of course, but their green and grace would be more pleasing than a landscape fretted with glaring invitations to buy soap and whisky. Along steam railroads locust trees could be planted, and these at their maturity would furnish first class ties at little cost.

It is not probable that these wayside signs are profitable to their misguided promoters, as persons with any sense of taste will not purchase articles thus offensively brought to their attention, but that advertisers are not persuaded of this is evident from the rapid growth of the nuisance. To hide the signs would certainly make them unprofitable and would discourage the practice.

It is much to be feared, however, that no railroad company will add to the attractiveness of its route by adopting the suggestion. Nevertheless it is not wasted, as it furnishes a peg on which to hang discussion of the billboard evil, and thus to help create the sentiment which alone will suppress it.

A Sailors' Fish Test.

Sailors have a very simple and what is said to be a very effective way of determining the edible or nonedible qualities of any new varieties of fish they may happen to run across. In the water in which the fish is boiled is placed a bright silver coin. If the coin retains its natural color during the boiling process, the fish is good to eat, but if it turns dark the food is rejected.

A Texas farmer claims to have discovered a liquid that will eradicate the boll weevil at a cost of $1 an acre, and the governor of Texas has offered $50,000 reward for just such a discovery. Here would appear to be a chance for a profitable deal all around.

With flies carrying typhoid germs, mosquitoes implanting fevers and malignant microbes getting in their deadly work everywhere, it is almost a wonder that any of us are alive.

The statement that London will take the Cuban loan of $25,000,000 if it is not floated in the United States ought to make President Palma feel reasonably independent.
