Around the Book Shelves

Recently several new books were added to the book shelves of the A. C. S. library.

Students who have already read "The Secret Front" by Paul Gallico will enjoy the latest addition, "Berlin Diary", by William Shirere. Those who have read both books found them to be particularly interesting.

Miss Anderson and the library council should be congratulated on the attractive bulletin boards which have recently appeared in the library.

It has been noticed that the library has been a popular study hall during activity periods. DJM

"I'm Losing My Nerve"

"I'm scared. I'm losing my nerve. Some one else is talking on the line. Hello, yes, I said Greene—G-r-e-e-n—No, on the reverse. Yes, I'm waiting. Why doesn't she stop butting in when I'm trying to put in a call? There, now, maybe she'll keep quiet—Central asked her to—Yes, hello."

A certain prominent Senior girl of ACS turned (a bit shaken) from a telephone and announced that the phone call was ended. Here we let you in an a little secret. This was the first telephone call ——— had ever made. But she conquered her fear and now all is well. JB

Have You Met . . .

PAUL ROGER PATRICK RYAN?

Age: 16.

Birthdate: April 1, 1925.

First Teacher: Miss Leo (now Mrs. Alvord).

Important event of childhood—Every time he has played baseball since he was fire years old has been an important event to him and he still considers it a thrill.

Favorite:—

Book: "The Kid From Tomkinsville."

Sport: Baseball.

Hobby: Playing baseball.

Movie: "Death on the Diamond."

Song: "Jolting Joe DiMaggio."

Food: Tuna fish and baked ham.

Color: Purple.

Subject: History.

Automobile: Buick.

Actors: Spencer Tracy and Pat O'Brien.

Actress: Lana Turner.

Perfect girl: Blonde, with good sense of humor, looks and personality.

Ambition: To become a big league baseball player. However, if not good enough for this, he would like to be a pharmacist and set up Ryan's Pharmacy in Andover.

Paul was elected president of the Student Council earlier this year. He is an important member of the varsity basketball team and is also a leading member of the Senior Class. We hope that his plans either for a pharmacist or a baseball "DeMoggio" are realized! OA

To Show Fire and Bomb Pictures

Friday morning two films, one on fire fighting titled "Stop That Fire" and the other "Fighting Fire Bombs" will be shown to a Junior-Senior high school assembly.

These movies were obtained from the Fire Defense Council by the Andover Fire Department.

The school wishes to extend an invitation to all townspeople interested in fire prevention and the control of incendiary bombs to come to the ACS auditorium Friday morning at 9 o'clock to see the movies. JB

Music Dept. Has Practice Teacher

Miss Rosamond Small of Syracuse University is doing her practice teaching in music at Andover Central School. Miss Small began a three week period of practice teaching on Tuesday of this week.

Miss Small, a Senior in the fine arts college at Syracuse, had originally intended to go to Sherrill, N. Y., but had to change her plans because the school there burned down. Since she knew Miss Hanneman, she came here and now says she likes ACS very much. JR

One-Day Vacation Activities

The commemoration of George Washington's birthday by the schools held February 23 instead of Feb. 22 gave the students of ACS a one-day vacation Monday. This long awaited vacation was eagerly welcomed by many as a chance for preparation for the five week tests and by others for different reasons for instance:

Dorothy Baker went skiing; Jean Rogers, tobagganing; Elaine Pope went skating, and Marilyn Hardy had a "general good time."

Mary Baker studied, Arthur Temple visited Davie's bird sanctuary Paul Ryan worked and played basketball; Vic Oakes visited around, Betty Halsey had company and Cecelia Lynch slept and worked. DJM

Homemaking News

Those delicious smells issuing forth from the homemaking department Wednesday noon weren't your imagination. The Home Economics A Class cooked a full course dinner, the menu being as follows:

Pineapple juice, crackers, banana, cream cheese and nut salad; cinnamon rolls; meat loaf with tomato sauce; boiled eggs; buttered peas; potato chips; butterscotch pudding; Nabisco cookies and cocoa.

On Wednesday, group I, consisting of Patricia Lynch, Virginia Lawrence, and Betty Halsey will serve Group II, which consists of Marion Cronk, Mary Glover, and Ruby Beil. Each girl is privileged to invite one friend to the dinner.

This dinner ends the cooking unit of Home Ec. A and the next unit will be on sewing.

A unit, "Good Health and Nutrition," is being studied by the seventh and eighth grade homemaking classes. This unit deals with the necessary foods that should be present in every one's diet. The following chart is handed out to each girl and she keeps a record of the foods consumed:

	Daily Credits
Milk, 2 cups	15
Milk, 1 cup	10
Vegetables (other than potato) at least twice	10
Once	7
Raw vegetable at least once	5
Fruit at least—twice	10
Once	7
Orange, grapefruit or tomato	10
Whole grain bread or breakfast food	10
Meat, eggs, fish or cheese, twice	15
Once	10
Water (or other fluid, at least: 6-8 glasses	10
4 glasses	5
Not more than 1 cup of tea or coffee	5
No food between meals except fruits	10

Daily score:

Deduct 10 credits if you ate no breakfast.

Deduct 10 credits if you ate neither raw fruit nor raw vegetables.

ACS Cheerleaders Become Composers

Despite the fact that the basketball season is nearing the end of another prosperous season, the cheerleaders have originated several clever new cheers. Miss Sequin who is an acrobatic and tap dancer gave the cheerleaders helpful suggestions for motion to be used with the new cheers.

The cheerleaders won't be able to make use of these new cheers this season, but next season's cheerleaders will have some clever new cheers with which to lead the Purple Panthers on to victory. PEL

Fads n' Fashions

All sorts of "Remember Pearl Harbor" pins are in evidence around ACS. Pretty cute!

Long sleeved white blouses are becoming more and more popular. They look especially nice with jerkins.

The boys are developing a sudden liking for rubber boots. We just get the girls to leave them off during school hours, and then the boys start the fad all over again. Oh, well.

Lumberjack shirts are certainly cute. Lots of girls have them. Boys like them, too. Short sleeved bright colored cotton shirts are just coming into style.

Two very pretty long waisted dresses were noticed at the Junior card party. They were sort of "super special."

Big ribbons that "stand up straight" on top of your head are the latest fashion. We rather like them.

Long waisted dresses are really becoming the talk of the town.

Gold nail head trimming is comparatively new in ACS. A red dress with nail head trimming was worn at the Junior card party.

Plaid skirts aren't seen as often as they used to be, wonder why? JB

CHIT-CHAT

The only thing discomforting about our vacation was the thought of five week tests waiting our return, but now they're nearly over we can rest for awhile again—or can we?

That certainly was an impromptu party you threw Sunday night, Don E. By the way, did those pictures come out?

It was a shame Regina and Anna wasted their skill at miniature bowling Saturday night instead of at a real bowling alley. They really scored a few strikes.

If Dick and Marilyn had posed, one of those "accidental" shots couldn't have made a better picture. Ask the cameraman.

What was the cause of those queer sounds produced from the radiator in the cafeteria after Marilyn and Ann tried to fix it?

The question has been asked from several sources why a boy's chorus couldn't be organized. Other schools have them, why not ACS? Perhaps our music supervisor could "work on" this idea.

The lung power of those riding in the back of the bus Tuesday certainly was lusty. "Deep in the Heart of Texas" was most popular.

It is rumored that a new student is to join the ranks of the Sophomore class Monday. Is that the cause of Don E. and "Chick's" excitement?

Why was "Chick" tearing up pictures so frantically Tuesday night. Getting rid of discriminating evidence?

What was all the cheering about on the bus Tuesday night?

Guess Who?

This sturdy lad with light brown curly hair
Has sparkling blue eyes and a gay ready smile
Which he turns upon others, both friend and foe
And yet to outwit his enemies he'd use every guile.
He's connected, indirectly, with the basketball team
He has an eye for music, at times, in between—
But 'tis when speaking French he's really a scream,
Why, he once thought a vocalist to be his (dream)
He takes to the girls like a dish of ice cream.
Enough of this teasing, he's a likeable lad
A Steinmetz at Math and Science, 'tis said,
We sometimes think that his name will be read
In the hall of fame (Hope I don't swell his head)
He's treasurer (on the level) of the Senior Class
And now, dear readers, I'll give it all away
By telling you what his classmates do say
He's gonna be an ACS Valedictorian some day!
(So he hopes and we say)!

Answer to last week: Patricia Lynch.

PURPLE PANTHERS DEFEAT RICHBURG BY 31-28 SCORE

Force Whitesville Into C-2 Play-off

The local sharpshooters sent the Richburg Central home burdened down under a 31-28 defeat last Friday evening and gave the locals a chance for a play-off for the Class C, Section 2 championship with Whitesville.

"Naze" Dolan and "Chuck" Holt got busy in the first quarter and dropped in a couple buckets each to take an early lead. The locals increased their lead in the second quarter on baskets by Dolan, Karcanes and Holt. At half-time the score read 13-8 in favor of the Panthers. "Chuck" Holt got busy in the third period and dropped in seven points along with a basket by "Naze" Dolan and a free throw by Jim Driscoll gave Andover a six-point lead. The final period was marked with points by Dolan, Ryan, Gorsuch, Dunham and Driscoll which helped to stop Richburg's last minute rally and win the game. Richburg outscored the locals 11-8 in the final period in a last minute rally.

"Chuck" Holt and "Naze" Dolan were outstanding for the locals with 14 and 12 points respectively. Jim Driscoll also played a good game on the first team. Monahan was high for the invaderes with 14 points.

Can't Cheat Death

London.—On Dec. 2, 1941, a lifeboat made a 92-mile dash from a lonely Shetland lighthouse carrying Margaret Smith, 10, to a hospital for an operation for acute appendicitis, thus saving her life. On Jan. 22, 1942, Margaret was killed by a bomb dropped by a daylight air raider.

WILDCATS DROP SECOND TEAM CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeated by Richburg 20-13 Last Thursday Night

The Wildcats of Andover Central School lost the second team championship last Thursday night to a powerful Richburg five.

The visitors were well ahead thruout the game and held a 10-3 lead at half-time. The locals came out stronger in the second half but Richburg was steady and held the ball most of the time.

"Doc" Ludden and "Zeke" Sheilman were high for Andover with four points each.

Wilcox and Cornelius were outstanding for the visitors, throwing in six counters each to add up their total.

THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS

The Distinguished Flying Cross is awarded to any person, who, while serving in any capacity with the Army Air Corps of the United States, including the National Guard and the Organized Reserves, subsequent to April 6, 1917, has distinguished himself or heroism or extraordinary achievement, while participating in an aerial flight.

On a bronze patee a four-bladed propeller; in the re-entrant angles, rays forming a 1-inch square. On the reverse are engraved the grade, name, and organization of the recipient. The cross is suspended by a plain straight link from a silk moire ribbon composed of alternate red, white, and blue stripes, blue predominating.

Louisa's Letter

A letter from "Martha" who lives in West Virginia is most interesting but she asks that it not be published in full.

Martha has a husband who should have remained single. She says he has always resented giving up his single ways altho he would be the last to admit such a thing. He thinks he should be free to come in at night; when he chooses, to eat his meals when he gets ready, take trips as he pleases, etc. His resentment of marital bonds is particularly apparent in little things. He does not care for family Christmas cards, prefers to send his with his name alone, and and does many other things in the same way.

Martha says that all of this has caused her to live in a state of confusion for years. When she got married she had the idea that she was entering a partnership and expected to give up many of her single privileges with the idea of eventually getting more out of life by co-operating with that partner. She knew that he would have to make sacrifices too, but she had no idea that he would resent doing this. His one idea, however, seems to be that any interference with his personal desires is an affront to his position as head of the house.

One can imagine how such an attitude works out when there are so many questions that come up involving the children and finances. Martha, who has been married for ten years, wants to know if there is any way she can change her husband's way of thinking.

Personally, I do not think so. There are a number of men who were cut out to be adored uncles but not husbands. If they can safely weather the twenties they become confirmed bachelors, waited on by the females of the family, sought after as the extra dinner guest or the welcome fourth in bridge and flattered by the nieces and nephews they treat so generously with presents and college educations. They come and go as they please and have a very satisfactory life until they begin to get old. The picture is not then quite so rosy if their health fails or they have neglected to provide for the rainy day.

Of course, Martha, this picture of what your husband might have been if he had remained single, is no comfort to you nor does it solve your problem.

There may be some comfort in the thought that one of these days he may realize that a different course might have resulted in more happiness for both of you, but I fear you will never live to see such a change.

I remember reading a story once—I can't even recall the author—of a man whose wife was dying and altho he was apparently grieving over her demise he kept thinking of how wonderful it would be to be able to come and go as he pleased with no one nagging about rubbers, or wanting to know what he had for lunch or what he did with his money.

Finally the wife died and he felt like a bird out of a cage—for a while. He did all of the things he had wanted to do for years. But in a few weeks he began to feel lonely. He realized that all the nagging about little things was because someone cared whether he caught cold or had indigestion or would be comfortable in his old age and not because they wanted to irritate him or meddle in his affairs.

I forget how the story ended but I do know that the man, who so ardently wished to be rid of his wife and the responsibilities she incurred reached such a state of loneliness that he wanted her back with all of her faults.

But, as I said before, Martha, that angle, even tho it appears in your case, will come too late to give you any comfort. LOUISA.

HOW, WHAT AND WHY?

Special to the Andover News

The Andover News has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope and mention the name of this paper you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one postcard. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Muskrats Edible

Mrs. F. H. S. asks: "Are muskrats good to eat?"

Prof. W. J. Hamilton of the Zoology department replies: "Muskrat flesh is delicious, tasting something like wild duck or terrapin. It can be prepared the same as rabbit, either roasted, broiled or fried.

"It is unfortunate that of the half-million muskrats trapped annually in New York, only a small fraction of this number is used for food."

No Short Cuts

W. D. W. writes: "Is there any material that can be put in the furnace to help clear up soot that has been deposited?"

Prof. J. D. Pond of the forestry department answers: "So far as I know, there is no such material. We have sent you special instructions on the control of creosote in stove pipes."

Why Did Buds Drop?

Miss G. A. S. writes: "Enclosed is a leaf from my favorite house plant. What is the name of the plant, and what causes the buds to drop off rather than blossom? It continued to blossom until recently when I cut back three of the larger branches to get a better shaped plant."

C. G. Keyes of the floriculture department replies: "The plant is a Perpetual begonia, usually a dependable house plant. Several possible explanations may be offered for the buds dropping. One is the use of too much water after you pruned the plant.

"Another reason may be too-low humidity in the room. Many plants drop their buds in dry air."
