Three-Months' Trip Finally Ends For Miss DeRemer

We received a copy of the Albany Times Union of recent date which carried the following interesting article concerning Miss Eleanor DeRemer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John DeRemer of Andover. Miss DeRemer has been in Turkey for the past six years recently returning to her home in this village:

After nearly three months by land, air and sea, Miss Eleanor DeRemer, former State College student, who has been teaching in a girls' college at Izmir, Turkey, had a reunion with Albany friends last night.

She made the last leg of the trip by freighter across the Atlantic from Lagos, on the West Coast of Africa. The zig-zag voyage took 23 days, but was uneventful. Except for one alarm, when passengers were ordered to the lifeboats, and the reason for which they never learned.

In Lagos, on the Nigerian Coast, only two degrees from the Equator, Miss DeRemer wearied of waiting for plane passage. She shipped on the freighter, leaving behind a companion who obtained passage on the Yankee Clipper several days later, and arrived in this country 12 days ahead of Miss DeRemer.

She has been teaching in a college supported by the American Board of Foreign Missions at Izmir and has just completed her second term of three years. Between terms she came home for a three months' vacation and was making the return voyage in September, 1939, when the war began.

She was the guest in Albany of Mrs. Irene C. Uttrich, with whom she lived while attending State college in 1935, after being graduated from Keuka College. Her home is in Andover, Western New York. She stopped over in Albany between a visit to her home and a vacation in New Hampshire, on which she starts today.

There is not much evidence of "war consciousness" in Turkey she said. The only rationing is of bread, but this is a hardship for the poor, as it is their real "staff of life."

"There is no such thing as private use of automobiles," she said. "All have been taken over by the government, and tho they remain in their owners' garages, they are 'called up' for government service, just as men in the draft are called up here."

The Turkish people, Miss DeRemer believes, are truly determined to maintain their neutrality, and in her opinion they never will enter the war unless they are attacked.

Miss DeRemer wore a good luck pin, the gift of one of her students —tiny silver shoes of "the Daughter of the Prophet," set with a blue jewel talisman. She has worn it thru an adventurous trip which took her by motor and rail to the Suez canal, thence to Cairo, where she had a 12-day wait for a plane to Lagos.

Her Turkish students, she said, are models of politeness, and she greatly admires the sensible, intelligent upbringing which Turkish women give their daughters.

"Turkish women take a very active part in law, medicine and other professions," she said. "There are many women judges, and they have wide recognition in all branches of government."

Miss DeRemer speaks Turkish fluently, and after her vacation she plans to seek a government position here in which her knowledge of that language can be put to use, or to enter some other phase of war work.

She wore a gray coat of one of the fine fabrics of whose production she said, the Turkish people are very proud. They call these materials "Y'alir Mal," to distinguish them from those not of Turkish make.

Men in the armed forces now eat about 25 per cent more food than they did as civilians.

Good News For Potato Growers

We are reprinting from the New York Times of July 28 the following "good news" forecast for potato grower:

Chicago, July 27.—The low spuds' future market, normally most docile of all commodities contracts, went on one of its rare rampages on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange today.

In a trade involving 3,456,000 pounds, November potato delivery climbed 8 cents to close at $2.85 a hundred pounds. The price gyration wildly and turnover was the largest of the year for the November contract in which there has been trading since January.

Traders said the relatively high price commanded by the first car of Idaho russet potatoes to arrive here Saturday stimulated future. Dealers paid $4.25 a hundred pounds in the cash market Saturday. Usually Idaho russets start the season here at $1.75 to $2.

Heavy rains in Missouri and Kansas, strong buying power, and the government's program to increase dehydrated food production have pushed potatoes to their present high levels, trade sources asserted.

A social hour with musical numbers by several of the members featured the afternoon. Among the members present was Miss Mary White of Wellsville.

The trip to and from the Rennells home was made in the Bostwick bus.

Army Deserter In County Jail

Allegany County Sheriff F. Vanama Jones and Sergt. C. B. Stanton of the New York State Police this week took into custody a man who didn't like serving in the United States Army.

He is booked as William Quincy Browning, 23, and gave his local address as Scio.

Browning was arrested at his boarding place in Alfred Station following receipt of a message from Francis X. Grottano, Sec. Lieut. Adj., assistant Corps Area Provost Marshall. The youth is charged with desertion.

According to the record he was stationed with the 1550th Service Unit, Military Police Company, at Fort Knox, Ky.

About April 30, Army life apparently began to disagree with Browning. He deserted and spent about a month in Mexico, Mo. From there he went to Chicago for about three weeks, spent some time in Buffalo and Corning and about July 10 blew into Alfred Station. Since that time he has been working on farms, spending a day or two with each employer.

Browning is being held in Allegany county jail for military authorities.

Report Potato Blight Is Serious In County

The office of the county farm agent reports that late potato blight has appeared in this county to a serious extent. Assistant Agricultural Agent Arthur E. Durfee is urging all potato growers to keep their vines well covered with Bordeaux spray, applied every week or ten days. This blight appeared on Long Island about a month ago and its progress has been noted thru Northern Pennsylvania and the Southern Tier of New York until its appearance in fields in Allegany county.

WANDERING WITH WILLIE

EVERY day the papers carry articles and the radio blares admonitions to get your junk in to the proper channels where it can be converted into war materials, and your old Victrola records in so that the boys in camp can have a new supply of records to play.

In our wandering around we have seen some families with a pile of old records two feet high, half of them cracked all to the dickens and the other half so scratched up and worn that they couldn't play 'em if they wanted to.

Just why do you folks hang on to this stuff? Why can't you pick it up and pile it near the corner of the sidewalk and the first kid that comes along tell him he can have it! That kid will get the nickel or dime —you will get rid of that "little bit that don't amount to nothin'"—and the Government will have just that much more junk. We have a junk dealer in Andover and he will pick up whatever you have just in case you want that nickel for yourself. But for Pete's sake let loose of it.

If everyone in the good old U. S. A. would just let loose of some of those old tires that many have around a flower bed it would mean much more than to let them rot where they are.

If you folks want to see just what a bunch of children can do, holler at the first one that goes by your door, hand him anything that the junk man will buy (and that's almost anything now), then kind of tip him off that that tight-wad next-door neighbor of your's has quite a bunch of stuff—and the situation will take care of itself.

Or do you want to hang on to all this trash for your grandchildren to fall over and break their little noses?

HAVE you ever tried to straighten this one out:

A fellow asked a girl to marry him and she gave him a decidedly negative reply, so to get even he married her mother. Then his father married the girl. When the fellow married the girl's mother, the girl became his daughter, and his father married his daughter, so he became his son. When his father married the daughter, she became his mother. If his father is his son and his daughter is his mother—who is he?

His mother's mother is his wife and must be his grandmother, and being his grandmother's husband, he must be his own grandfather.

And there you are. Simple isn't it?

CONTINUING from last week in regard to Victory Gardens we sorrowfully announce that another brutal blow by nature landed down on Second Street—Yes in S. George S.'s Victory Garden. As the rain of Tuesday subsided we went down that way and looked at the "best d— garden in ten years of gardening" and found very little vegetation. What makes this particular garden so pathetic is due to the fact that George had staged a comeback after the first flood and had gone down there (on the Q. T.) almost every evening trying to fool Old Mother Nature and bring back to normalcy the water-worried little stems of this-and-that which had not been uprooted.

Well, to make a long story short after all this work on the sly, Fred Smith's garden decided it liked S. G. S.'s better and part of it moved over on George Tuesday. The last we heard he was trying to get bids on the "whole danged thing" the garden, rocks and water free to the first bidder.

AGAIN those "kids" are up to their old pranks of damaging the grandstand up at the athletic field. It seems too bad with labor and material the way it is that parents couldn't make a point of seeing just what the children are doing when they are at the ball diamond.

Almost as fast as one repair is made the parties interested in seeing that Andover baseball "carries on" find themselves facing the job of fixing up another spot that was damaged over night.

And while we are still on the subject of baseball—If those chiselers who set in parked cars outside the ball field just to save two bits could only hear what the fellows on the inside (who have paid their quarter) have to say about them, they would meekly put the buggy in a cog, drive it into the garage, shut the garage door and go down cellar and blush like blazes. We know —we heard 'em (and we know who they were talking about too.)

He — "One kiss from you, Miss Gladys, then I would gladly die."

Miss Gladys — "Yes, I know that story, and afterwards you'll continue to die, time and time again."
