For Home and Honor. The United States senators from all of the different states in the Union are receiving petitions without number from their constituents against the permitting of "Reed Smoot," the Mormon elder, to take his seat. Nobly are the women coming to the front and entering the fight. Headquarters have been established at Washington and women like Miss Helen Gould are putting time and money into the fight. The "Mormon Elder" has issued a defy and says nothing can be proven, that the Mormon church is not an hierarchy, but the women have affidavits from men who have renounced Mormonism because it made them swear first allegiance to the Mormon church and make deceivers and home breakers. The fight is waxing hot and to show the power of the Octopus they have threatened the chairman of the investigating committee with political death in his own state should he proceed, and all honor is due Senator Blair who accepts the challenge and will fight for upholding of the laws of the United States and continue the investigation notwithstanding threats and leave the results with the people of his state.

Voting Machines. Buffalo politicians, that are not satisfied with honest methods, are objecting to the future use of voting machines at the elections. And over tried the machine for the first time and found the method so far superior that she will never return to the old method. Many of the election districts where the old method was used found a number of defective ballots and because of close contests in some of the counties, especially in Oneida there will probably be contests in the courts to settle the results. If they had used the voting machines, all question would be set aside and the result as recorded accepted because no defective ballots would be in question. Election by machine therefore is less expensive than by the old system and a great deal more satisfactory. It would seem that Buffalo's objection comes not from grounds that are justifiable, but it looks as tho a small coterie of dishonest politicians were dissatisfied with an honest expression o. opinion of the people and desire some way whereby they can know whether the goods are delivered or not.

MR. SNYDER VERSUS DR. ABBOT.

Rev. John Snyder of Wellesley Hills, Mass., lately made a novel point in answer to Dr. Lyman Abbott's somewhat threadbare argument that women ought not to vote because they do not fight. Dr. Abbott says that those only should make the law who can enforce it. Mr. Snyder says:

"Dr. Abbott's theory of government has never been received by any nation since man became a civilized being. It is safe to say that no great war of modern history was ever formerly declared by a legislative body of which a majority were not physically incapacitated for military service. In every civilized state the laws are made and interpreted by men who, generally speakin , would be physically incompetent to enforce them. Take a familiar and impressive illustration, that of the United States Supreme Court. It daily issues decrees which may clash with the vested interests and arouse the intensest passions of millions of citizens. To enforce those decrees, it may command the military resources of the nation. And yet it consists of nine old men, not one of whom could enforce his decisions with the bayonet of the soldier or the baton of the policeman."

Don't forget to be thankful for the common blessings that have come into your every day life.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

While the modern observance of Thanksgiving Day is marked by rather more of feasting and less of prayer than was its first celebration by the Pilgrims, when the sunrise gun and the early roll of drums summoned Miles Standish and his followers, with their Indian guests, to morning prayers, the intelligent American of to day may well pause long enough in his merrymaking to take stock of his blessings. He may not find them unmixed, it is true, with a curse or two; but striking a balance between those things for which he may well be thankful and those of which he may justly complain, the fairminded citizen will find the former in the majority and may enjoy his Thanksgiving dinner with the keener zest in consequence.

We are living in the most wonderful age in the history of the world. That in itself is material for self congratulation. Never before were the wants o' man so abundantly supplied along so many diversified lines as they are to day. It may be that we are no happier on that account, for the capacity to enjoy grows with opportunity and gratification. Our modern environment may be such that we enjoy its manifold advantages not a whit more keenly than did the Pilgrims the glorious freedom of their ocean swept New England coast. The elaborate menu that surrounds our turkey may attract us even less than did the porridge and cakes of Indian meal the motley throng that surrounded the open air tables of the first Thanksgiving feast.

It is no part of the scheme of Thanksgiving Day, however, to beclout thankfulness for present prosperity with forebodings of future disaster. It were poor philosophy, indeed, having bought and cooked our turkey, to spoil the eating of it by indulging in pessimistic speculations as to our ability to buy another one next year. It is for what we have, not for what we have not, that we are called upon to be thankful. Let those of us therefore, who have health and happiness—never mind about wealth—obey the national proclamation, cease from our ordinary occupations in our several homes and places of worship render thanks.

CARRIE NATION.

A few years ago when Mrs. Carrie Nation started out on her original temperance crusade with determination in her eye and hatchet in her hand she attracted very favorable comment and rightly so from those interested in the cause in which she was so aggressive. Much that she did as she proceeded on the marvelous crusade, especially her peculiar antics, were set down as eccentric and so excused, but as time passes on she is making herself ridiculous and the financial side of the question seems to appeal to her strongly, and many who have at heart the cause of temperance would be right glad if in some way she could be suppressed. Her scheme of selling hatchets to a crowd of the curious and her latest venture in a way dramatic. She has a little play called "Hatchetuation" in the principal scene of which she appears hatchet in hand demolishing saloons. When the performance is finished she never fails to come down into the audience with souvenir hatchets to all willing to be relieved of their small change. Her very latest escapade is entering the capital at Washington and shouting a useless tirade of words and then, succeeding in being locked up, she sells hatchets to pay the fine of $25 to the laughing crowd in the court room. Now practically no good is accomplished by these methods. Indeed, more harm than good is done. She is placing the cause of temperance in the light of ridicule and if you want to kill a cause you can by making it ridiculous. Because of the noble men and women who have given their lives for the cause and for the sacrificing devoted lives that are earnestly being given to temperance and humanity, for these if for no other, Mrs. Nation ought to be suppressed or advised to give up her ridiculous antics.

The Democrats' Thanksgiving will be clouded. Bryan sends word from Europe that he may again be in the race for the presidency.

Music Hath Not Charms. Tho they have been telling of music on dumb beasts, but the strangest of all is the effect of music on a woman as the story is cabled from Paris. A pianist, Otto Pfluggy, was murdered by Mme. Irma Lieukins, who claims that the selections from "Tristan and Isolde" by Wagner caused a temporary insanity. M. Pfluggy was playing before a small audience in a drawing room. Those who were present expressed their delight by vigorous applause. The effect upon Mme. Lieukins was surprising. She arose from her chair as if in a trance and then rushing upon M. Pflugggy, drew a razor from the folds of her dress and fatally cut his throat. She declares the music made her insane. Some people of culture will admit this is a possible case, but how will they explain the why (?) of the razor being concealed in the folds of the woman's dress? Perhaps it is customary for French women to go so armed. If it is the fashion it ought to be changed and that immediately. We have heard of gentlemen with razors in their boots, but to get women to carry razors in their dress, that's going it a little too far. The story is a fantastic one and perhaps there are gaps that could not well be filled in a cable dispatch.

* * *

Just Like a Sermon. The Parisian press seems to be very much concerned over the visit of the mighty in President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving proclamation. A recent issue of the Temps points out the fact that the name occurs in nearly every phrase and then says:

"His way of thanksgiving and conjuring the people to abstain from labor sounds more like an address from a pulpit than an official proclamation, and this is such an exhortation as even the most pious king France ever had would not have dared to address to his people.

"Switzerland, another republic, also sets aside a day of thanksgiving, and, while we would not want to follow the example of either America or Switzerland, it shows that a republic and democracy does not necessarily necessitate making war on religious ideas, as has happened here."

France might do well to follow the idea. The pilgrim fathers knew the source from whence the blessings came and were not ashamed to acknowledge the Divine. Religion and liberty are sisters and perhaps if Parisian liberty could get that idea or a similar one they to might have occasion to use the name Almighty, and have reasons for thanksgiving.

The Best Remedy for Croup.

[From the Atchison, Kan., Daily Globe.]

This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and tolu, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croup cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by O. E. Vars & Son, Andover, and N. E. Cossoll, Greenwood.

It is announced that steel trust dividends will be worn decollete for the remainder of the season.

Popular enthusiasm has been transferred from the diamond to the gridiron.

DEFICIT IN REVENUES

Congress Likely to Reduce Public Expenditures.

TO CUT RIVER AND HARBOR BILL

Program as Outlined will be one of Retrenchment—Senator Hoar's Book—How Landis Was Jollied by a Newspaper Man.

Washington, Nov. 25.—[Special.]—It looks very much as if this congress would have to retrench upon public expenditures. Instead of the large increase asked by Secretary Moody for the navy it is more than probable that there must be a reduction in the number of ships authorized. Few if any public buildings will be authorized. There will be a cut in the river and harbor bill, and those expecting appropriations for expositions will have to be content with small amounts. This is the programme of those who hope to control, and it is adopted to meet the growing deficit in revenues. It is not considered expedient to alter the revenue laws or add more internal revenue taxes, nor is it deemed advisable to sell bonds.

Is Not Relished.

This programme is not relished by those who are expecting appropriations for by those who want public buildings. Some complaint is made by those who oppose the total abolition of the war taxes. These say that in view of the increased expenditures of the government on account of affairs growing out of the Spanish war it was decided by jubilation to wipe out all that revenue. It is pointed out that with forty millions to pay to the Panama Canal company for its rights, ten millions to be paid to Panama for the right of way and to continue building a navy on the present large scale the United States should have reserved a portion of the war taxes and avoided a yearly deficit. Of course such a deficit does not endanger the credit of the country, but it is misunderstood abroad and has a tendency to disturb business at home.

Senator Hoar's Book.

Many senators have taken a great deal of interest in the book written by Senator Hoar which has just been published. The senator says that it has been written just as he would talk to a friend, and there are perhaps some things in it which will not be liked; also he modestly says he does not know how interesting it will be. Of course it cannot but be very interesting. Senator Hoar has been such a keen observer of all that has been passing that his discussion of these events will be most entertaining. Just think of it! He was prominent enough in 1876 to be chosen a member of the electoral commission, and a great deal has happened since then. Besides, there were stirring days before that time. He was then a member of the house. He took his seat in the senate March 4, 1877, the day Hayes, who had been declared elected by the electoral commission, was inaugurated president.

It Was Votes That Counted.

It was while Representative Sherman was presiding over the committee of the whole during the debate on the Cuban bill that some suggestion was made that in view of the almost unanimous sentiment in favor of the bill the talk should stop and the bill should pass. "Action counts instead of words," said Sherman; "at least it does here." And that reminds me of a man who ran for mayor in my town. His sole platform was, 'Has doing that counts, not talking.' He was beaten worse than any man that was ever a candidate."

Broke the Record.

Senator Money, one day introduced 215 claim bills in the senate. This breaks the record, but the Congressional Record, accounted to all sorts of things, staggered along under the load with no trouble. These claims were for all sorts of things and indicate that the Mississippi senator has a large number of constituents who think that Uncle Sam owes them something.

Representative Hepburn of Iowa was making a speech on the Cuban bill.

"Will my friend from Iowa permit a question?" asked Representative Vandiver of Missouri.

"No, your friend from Iowa will not. I thank you," responded Hepburn tartly.

The house laughed at Vandiver, and Hepburn explained that he did not want to be offensive, but did not want to be diverted from his line of argument.

Landis Felt Indorsed.

The day that Representative Charles B. Landis secured the adoption of the amendment in the immigration bill prohibiting the sale of liquor in the capitol building he was called up on the telephone.

"Is this Mr. Landis?" he was asked, and upon a "Yes" from Landis the following occurred: "This is Bishop Satterlee of the Episcopal church. 'The Lord is in his holy temple. Justice, truth and righteousness shall prevail.' My dear brother, I want to congratulate you upon your noble action today. It is meet that we have men in high places who have the courage to perform heroic deeds in the face of great opposition.'

"'I was just hogging myself,' said Landis, 'and swelling up with the knowledge that I was being indorsed. I must have made some talk that showed how seriously I took the commendation of the good bishop, for just then I heard a snigger over the wire and recognized the voice of a newspaper friend, who had been 'stringing' me and doing it to the queen's taste too."

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys,

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

They claimed a defective highway caused the accident. Whiteman and Hill, with J. F. Little as counsel, appeared for the plaintiff. John Griffin and J. A. Parsons for the defense. The Boycott and the Law.

An interesting and significant decision has just been handed down by the state court of Connecticut touching the legal status of the boycott.

This was in an action brought by the American National Antiboycott association in behalf of a Danbury (Conn.) hat manufacturing firm which was alleged to have been seriously injured in its interstate trade by a boycott against its hats instituted and conducted by the members of a Danbury labor organization. Two suits were brought against the same defendants for the same boycott, one in the state court and the other in the United States circuit court for the district of Connecticut. In both suits the plaintiff attached the same property of all the individual defendants, consisting of their bank accounts and individual holdings of real estate. The suit in the state court was based upon the ground that a boycott is a conspiracy at common law, and in it the plaintiffs asked for $100,000 damages done to their business and also for an injunction to restrain the further prosecution of the conspiracy. The suit in the federal court was based upon the ground that the same acts of the defendants constitute a conspiracy in restraint of interstate trade under the Sherman anti-trust act, for which the defendants were liable to be sued in that court for treble damages, as provided in that act. Property of all the defendants, amounting in the aggregate to $175,000, was attached in both suits.

Application was made to both courts to substitute bonds in place of the property attached, and the defendants were required to give bonds amounting in the aggregate to $180,000, which they failed to obtain. The defendants then pleaded in abatement in the state court the pendency of the other action in the federal court, on the ground that they were not liable to be sued for the same acts at the same time in both courts. This plea, after elaborate argument by counsel for both sides, has been overruled by Judge Thayer of the state court, and the defendants are now required to face the case on its merits.

By this decision the principle is laid down that the individual members of labor unions indulging in boycotts which interfere with interstate trade are liable to be sued and have their property attached to secure the damages claimed in both state and federal courts at the same time.

DEATHS IN COAL MINE

Thirteen Miners Killed by Explosion at Bonanze, Ark.

ONLY SIX VICTIMS RECOVERED.

All of the 175 Men in the Mine Escaped Except 13 Who Were Working in Entry K—Tedious Work of Rescuing the Entombed Men—Explosion Due to Miner's Lamp.

Fort Smith, Ark., Nov. 25.—Thirteen miners were killed and great damage was done by an accidental explosion of gas in coal mine No. 20 at Bonanze, Arkansas, 12 miles from this city. Only six of the victims have been recovered.

When the explosion occurred there were about 175 men in the various shafts. All escaped without injury except the 13 who were employed in entry "K", the scene of the explosion.

The force of the explosion was terrific and timbers were torn from the walls of the passages for several hundred yards at the mouth of entry "K".

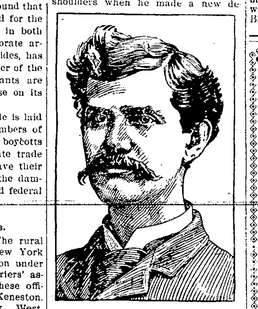
The passages were so completely obstructed that the work of rescuing the entombed men was tedious in the extreme and several hours were consumed before the first body was found.

It is thought that the gas was accidentally ignited by a miner's lamp. The miners who escaped, with the aid of others summoned from near by shafts, immediately set about clearing the passages in the vain hope that some of the 13 entombed men might have survived the explosion.

MINORITY LEADER'S POWER.

Speaker Cannon Allows Mr. Williams to Name Democratic Committeemen.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Speaker Cannon is having a strenuous time arranging his committee list and he is not likely to have it ready to announce before the end of the week. He unloaded half of the job from his own shoulders when he made a new departure and allowed Representative Williams, the minority leader, to make up the Democratic slate to suit himself. No speaker before Cannon ever did this, but the scheme works like a charm.



JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS.

The little office room of the speaker is crowded night and day, and Mr. Cannon has about reached the conclusion that if he wants to announce the committees before the extra session ends he will have to lock himself up in the top of the Washington monument, write his committee list and drop it from there.

Mr. Williams is having troubles of his own in making up the Democratic list, notwithstanding the fact that a minority member of a committee of congress is no more essential to legislation than the vermiform appendix is to the human body.
