SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JOSEPH: AN EXAMPLE OF FORGIVENESS

International Sunday School Lesson for September 27, 1942.

Golden Text: "Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you."—Ephesians 4:32.

(Lesson Text: Genesis 45:1-15; 47:11-12.)

The years of famine brought about a reunion of Joseph and his family. No story could be more dramatic.

Driven by need of foods, all of Joseph's brothers, save Benjamin, appear before him to buy corn. Joseph, recognizing them, accuses them of being spies in order to question them thoroly, especially desiring to find out if his young brother, Benjamin, and his father, Jacob, were still alive. His desire to see his brother caused him to demand that he be brought down, when they came to buy more corn. All of the brothers, save one, Simeon, return ed to old Jacob.

When hunger presses again, they persuade the old patriarch to let Benjamin go back into Egypt with them. Reuben offered his own sons as sureties for Benjamin's safekeeping and Judah likewise pledges himself for his safe return.

At length, they stand before the powerful and, to them as yet unknown, Joseph, Joseph practices a shrewd strategem to test their present hearts. He wants to ascertain whether or not they would make any sacrifices to rescue Benjamin from the threatened evil, or if they would callously abandon him, as in previous years, they had been heedless to Joseph's fate.

The test proved happily the fidelity of the brothers, for, when Benjamin was arrested for theft of the cup, every one came back with him to Egypt. Judah, in particular, made an impassioned appeal that he might be allowed to enter into slavery instead of the younger Benjamin, in a speech which moved Joseph greatly.

Overcome by emotion, Joseph decided to make himself known to his brethren. Ordering his Egyptian servants from the room, he gave way to his emotions and wept loudly, crying, "I am Joseph." In the very next breath, Joseph asked a question which he had asked several times before, "Doth my father yet live?" So long separated from his beloved parent, he needed the assurance that their repeated declarations would give.

When his brothers realized the truth, that this great man was their brother, Joseph, whom they had so mistreated, their natural reaction was one of fear. Joseph, however, wishing to save his brothers from grieving or being angry with themselves for their crime against him years before, repeatedly asserted that, in reality, it was God who had sent him to Egypt, not they. He pointed out the providence of God to them, in that God had brought him into Egypt to make him a saviour of life during the years of famine. How few of us would have had the grace to act toward those who had wronged us in such a manner.

As only two of the seven years of famine had passed, Joseph instructed his brothers to return in haste to their father's house, tell the news of his position in Egypt, and bid him to gather up all of his belongings and to come down to Egypt to be near him, so that he, Joseph, could care for him and his household. This they did, and after being convinced that Joseph was still alive, Jacob made haste to go down to Egypt in order that he could see his beloved son before he died.

When the caravan reached Egypt, Joseph was given permission by Pharoah to settle his family in any chosen spot. As they were shepherds, the land chosen was Goshen, which provided excellent pasturage for their flocks. The meeting between Joseph and his aged father is touching.

Jacob dwelt for seventeen years in Goshen, where he died after Joseph had given his word that his bones would be taken back to Canaan for burial in the cave of Machpelah. A magnificent procession bore his body to its last resting place in Canaan, beside Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebekah and Leah.

After their father's death, the brothers were fearful lest Joseph should decide to punish them for their evil deeds. However, this was not in Joseph's thoughts. He remained as an elder brother to them, dying at the age of 110. His body was embalmed and put in a coffin, to await its return to Canaan, for he had made his brothers promise that they would take it with them when they returned to dwell in the Promised Land. This pledge was fulfilled, as recorded in Exodus.

Allegany County Milk Production Up In August

New York, Sept. 22.—Dairy farmers in Allegany county, one of the metropolitan milksheds's 45 major dairying counties, delivered milk work $184,770.56 to the New York pool in August.

The value, figured at the uniform price of $2.70 a hundredweight, is a rise of 19.1 per cent above the yield of the county's approved deliveries in August, 1941. The county's plants received and marketed 6,843,354 pounds of milk this August.

New York State is scheduled to collect this week at least 78 per cent of the pool's farm value of $14,587,718.16 which, reckoned at the uniform price, amounts to $10,934,560.52.

New York was the only state, according to Charles J. Blanford, milk administrator, that delivered more milk to the pool this August than it did last year. New York's pooled deliveries were up 3.3 per cent, and the increase in New York was sufficient to give the pool a rise of two per cent in volume.

WANDERING WITH WILLIE

WE have been watching a few of the folks about the village getting their junk collected and it's really marvelous how many things they can think an old iron pipe or a hunk of tin can be put to "some day." Perhaps that's why the Government is calling for junk—to see if they can get the attics and back yards, garages, etc., cleared of all the useless articles that some people have been hanging to for the last umpteen years. And it's still junk.

After you get that old baby carriage out of the garage or attic for gosh sake put it on the junk pile—if you're thru with it—but don't let sentimentalism get the better of you just because little "Joe" or "Egbert" took their first ride in it. Those days are past and the carriage may be one that has been stored up so long that little "Egbert" couldn't even get his No. 14 shoe in now.

After you get your useless articles all piled up in a bunch, and you feel like taking one last look at it and paw it all over (and probably carry half of it back) let your will-power go to work and get in the house until the collectors come around. Then take your dough and see if "Jim" Cheesman hasn't got a War Stamp that will just cover what you got from the whole shebang.

WE will bet one thin dime that before "Sailor Don" goes back to the waves there will be a meeting of the local YMPC. Right?

A FEW weeks ago we were getting hit harder than the Japs from right and left (and nobody drawing their punches) by all our friends in the service, but now they must all be in the guard houses and brigs as we are left all alone again to stumble about in our stupidity.

Woe is us!

THERE seems to be about three young fellows in the burg who are trying to get in the spotlight or the cooler by taking corners on two wheels every time they get the old man's car out. As one old timer aptly put it the other night after he got out of the way of one of them, "The d— fools run like that and they haven't even any place to go."

THIS will be the last request of many of us before this little scrap is over and we really begin to learn what that word rationing means:

"Oh when I die, please bury me
Neath a ton of sugar, under rubber trees,
Lay me to rest in a new auto machine,
And water my grave with good gasoline."

PERHAPS you've heard the one about a recruit during a dust storm at one of the army camps who sought shelter in the cook's tent. After a moment he remarked to the cook: "If you'd put the lid on that camp kettle you would not get so much dust in the soup."

Cook: "See here, me lad, your business is to serve your country."

Recruit: "Yes, but not to eat it."

Reason for Refusal

Clerk: "I'm afraid I can't let you have that drug, sir."

Customer: "Why not? Do I look like a man who would kill himself?"

Clerk: "Well, I wouldn't go so far as that, sir; but if I looked like you I should be tempted."
