John J. Bennett, Jr., a Good Man to Head Our State

THE coming election to be held November 3rd is fast approaching, and it is time that every voter should give serious thought and consideration as to the qualifications, characters and abilities of the candidates for the several offices to be filled. This is to be an extremely important election and under present conditions it is extremely important that the best men available be chosen to serve in every position to be filled. This year the people of New York State are to elect a Governor and surely it is of the utmost importance to every citizen of the state that a man of honor and ability be placed at the head of our State government.

John J. Bennett, the Democratic candidate is such a man. His record of accomplishment as Attorney General of New York State is unsurpassed in the entire history of our State and he possesses all the qualifications of a great war-time Governor—integrity, love of country, humanity, training, experience and ability.

A veteran of World War No. 1, he rose from the rank of Private to qualify as a Pursuit Pilot in aviation and was discharged with the rank of First Lieutenant.

Again his qualifications and experience in both peace and war affairs makes him the logical candidate for Governor of the Empire State at this time.

Unless your name is mentioned, our paragraphs are not directed at you—regardless of how close they come to the mark.

A good way to start liking distasteful work is to make yourself "eat it up" as the slang goes. No man likes his own laziness and the fellow who dawdles is bound to be disgusted with himself. Nearly every man who has gone places has fought his way thru a long period of drudgery but he had a light in his eye and a force to his "punch" that made his foes quail and his obstacles vanish.

Our Own Question: Why stay out of the Army and then get killed in an automobile wreck?

Buy More War Bonds

THERE is considerable talk concerning proposals for enforcing the purchasing of War Bonds and some such plan may become inevitable in the near future unless the people substantially increase their voluntary purchasing of Bonds and Stamps.

The Treasury some time ago established a goal of $1,000,000,000 worth of Bond and Stamp sales monthly. That goal has not been reached. It must be reached and passed if the war is to be properly financed, and if excess purchasing power, the creator of inflation, is to be reduced.

A number of drives to sell Bonds and Stamps have been put on by banks, schools, retail stores and others to which the public has responded fairly well—but not well enough.

In these days, when wages are at record levels and almost any man or woman can quickly obtain a good job, all of us can afford to take all or part of our change in Stamps when we shop in stores. All of us can afford to buy one or more Bonds each pay day. Certainly, giving up some luxuries is a mighty small price to pay to help the war effort along. The duty of every American is plain—to cut his personal expenditures severely, and to put the money into War Savings. Remember that next time you go to a bank or to a retail store featuring Bonds and Stamps.

"No Time For Fooling"

THE great majority of Allegany County farmers are not going along with John L. Lewis in his attempt to unionize them, which means they are not fooled by the CIO leader who promises everything until he gets his dupes into his hands.

The last issue of the American Agriculturist carried an editorial on this very subject, and it is so thoroughly straightforward and true that we give it here, hoping that our host of farmer readers will read it.—The editorial:

"Farmers now have thousands of their sons in the armed forces defending the liberties of this country. Those that are left on the farms are also serving their country on the Farm Front, working harder than farmers have ever worked before to raise the necessary food.

"John L. Lewis chooses this time of sacrifice, when the country faces the greatest crisis in its history, to use agriculture as a stepping-stone to advance himself to power, even to dictatorship. To accomplish his ends he has millions of dollars collected from wage earners, to hire trained organizers, city men who know nothing about agriculture and care less, but who are trained in the art of making golden promises sound like the truth. These organizers came in early this summer with a big ballyhoo. When they found they could not fool farmers with that, they backed up and are now using other methods. They are quietly at work in the old country neighborhoods, not only in the Northeast but across the country.

"But we do not believe that farmers are going to be fooled this time either. With their boys on the battle line, and they themselves making all kinds of sacrifices to back up those boys to save the liberties of this country, farmers will make short work of men like Lewis trying to undermine the Home Front.

Our farmers don't need unionizing—they need fair prices for what they raise and help to get their farm work done.

No newspaper has enough spies to know everything that happens and it is up to individuals to tip off the news men in order that the news may be made known to others.

Around Stalingrad, we understand from newspaper reports, there were no non-combatants, except the dead. It was total war.

How many automobiles, now running more than 35 miles an hour in Allegany county will be without tires in October, 1943?

A LITTLE GOES A LONG WAY

Youth Climaxes Rescue at Sea

He and Shipmates Given Up As Missing, Learn Rescuer Is His Neighbor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Miles Purdy, Keyser, W. Va., youth with his shipmates from their torpedoed transport in the Gulf of Mexico met up with one climax after the other, only to have him put the finishing touch to the adventure with final and unusual surprises.

The ship Purdy was on was torpedoed sometime shortly after midnight and crippled. All on board abandoned the ship. While they were floating about in life boats the sub resurfaced, shelled the ship, sank it.

Ten hours after the sinking, two of the life boats were picked up and the crew brought to shore. The one Purdy was in with his shipmates was overlooked.

After six days of floating, an airplane flew overhead and failed to see them.

Two more days they drifted.

On the eighth day a fishing craft was sighted. Later it was learned that the fishing vessel was then 300 miles off its course!

After considerable time the vessel came near, recognized the life boat, and took the crew aboard.

Purdy then recognized the captain, Russell Calvert, as being a neighbor from the same county in West Virginia.

Shortly after Purdy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Purdy, received notice that their son was numbered among the missing from the ship sunk at sea, they received a wire from him here that he was well and safe. He then returned home on a 28-day leave.

Purdy volunteered in the army over a year ago. He has a corporal's rating.

War Is Found to Cause Rise in British Crime

WASHINGTON.—The war has produced in Britain an increase in bigamy, crimes of violence and juvenile delinquency, Sir Norman Birkett, noted British lawyer and judge of the king's bench division of the high court, told reporters at a press conference.

Justice Birkett said that the interruption of normal family life and the relaxation of parental control due to the movements of large numbers of the population into the army and evacuation areas were responsible for this increase. The blackout was mainly responsible for the larger number of crimes of violence, he said.

Despite these crimes and the emergency powers held by the British government, however, the essential freedoms of the British people had been maintained, he added. Freedom of speech, both in parliament and in the press, had been maintained, and even enemy aliens who had to be interned had received the right to a limited amount of freedom to govern themselves, he said.

Allies Not Reasonable, Say Nazis of New Front

BERN.—Germany's propaganda minister, Paul Joseph Goebbels, complained in an article in the German weekly publication Das Reich that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are not "reasonable" enemies and might, therefore, try a second front.

He assured Germans that "the entrance to Europe is blocked" but said it would be "more agreeable" if Germany were confronted by "intelligent leadership" whose actions one could foresee with "a certain probability."

Goebbels said Roosevelt and Churchill were capable of the "greatest foolishness" and no one was in a position to "predict where, when and how they intend to establish the so-called second front."

Red Cross Is Prepared For Iceland Air Raids

REYKJAVIK. — The American Red Cross has donated to the Iceland Red Cross supplies and equipment valued at $45,000 for the care and relief of the civilian population in case of air raids or other emergencies.

The city now is supplied with a number of hospital beds believed "more than adequate" for any emergency. Large stores of medical supplies and clothing have been donated by the American relief agency.

A number of first-aid stations have been equipped in the capital and American supplies are being distributed to other Red Cross chapters in Iceland.

£500,000 Gift to Britain In '27 Is Now £1,125,703

LONDON.—Fifteen years ago the British government received from an anonymous donor £500,000 which, together with other gifts of money, was kept until it increased sufficiently to pay off Britain's national debt. Today that £500,000 is officially worth £1,125,703.

But the national debt has a long way to go yet as on March 31, 1941, it was £11,512,505,861 and the budget deficit to date is £866,722,316.

A Week of the War

U. S. Army headquarters in Britain reported that 115 American bombers, in their first large-scale daylight sweep over occupied France, shot down 48 Nazi planes, probably destroyed 38 more and seriously damaged at least 19. Never before had so many German planes been shot down in a single operation over western Europe as were brought down by the massed fire of the American Flying Fortresses and Consolidated B-24's. Only four American ships were lost and the crew of one was saved. The bombers made a destructive attack on the Lille industrial area.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Australia announced October 12 that Lockheed medium bombers scored two direct hits on a large Japanese seaplane tender in the Solomon area between the Bismark and Solomon Islands. The Navy reported October 10 a Japanese destroyer was sunk and a heavy cruiser and destroyer were damaged by American airmen during continued enemy attempts to land reinforcements on Guadalcanal. The enemy under cover of darkness made several small landings in the Solomons, but U. S. forces shot down 21 Japanese planes, torpedoed a cruiser, and bombed and strafed enemy troops and equipment on Guadalcanal. Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced that the biggest force of Flying Fortresses even sent against a target in the Australian zone made an unusually destructive raid on the largest Japanese base in this area, Rabaul. Australian troops continued to drive the enemy back into the Owen Stanley mountains and removed the threat to the Allied base of Port Moresby.

From new bases in the Andreanof group of the Aleutians, Army bombers, escorted by Airacobra and Lightning fighters, kept Japanese-held Kiska — less than an hour's flying time away — under "continual fire" during the week. The Navy reported aerial reconnaissance showed the Japanese apparently had given up their hold on both Attu and Agattu in the western Aleutians and concentrated on Kiska.

War Taxes

The Senate passed and sent to conference with the House the 1942 War Revenue Bill which the Treasury estimated will yield $9 billion in new revenue annually. Of this total, approximately $1,706 million would be refundable because the bill provides an extra 5 per cent "Victory Tax" on all individual incomes above $12 a week — part of which would be refunded as a credit on other taxes a year later or as a post-war refund. The new bill will make 42 to 44 million persons subject to Federal taxes, compared with 28 million at present, and will bring total Federal revenue up to $26 billion a year.

Rationing

Price Administrator Henderson announced a five-step Government plan to keep every passenger car "rolling for essential mileage" throughout the war: (1) Rationing of used tires and recaps, and new tires now in stock, to provide as far as possible the minimum essential mileage to each of the nation's passenger cars. (2) Actual control of each car's mileage through the rationing of gasoline to prevent unnecessary driving and to hold the national average down to 5,000 miles per car per year. (3) Compulsory periodic inspection of all tires to guard against abuse and to prevent wear beyond the point where they can be recapped. (4) Denial of gasoline and of tire replacement to cars whose drivers persistently violate the national 35-mile-an-hour speed limit. (5) Capacity use, through car sharing, of every car on every trip so far as possible.

Fuel oil consumers in the 30 States affected by oil rationing will be able to obtain their ration application forms from their dealers soon after October 13 and should fill them out as soon as possible and mail or deliver them to local War Price and Rationing Boards, OPA said. Fuel oil ration coupons for private dwellings will be worth 10 gallons each for the first heating period — October and November — The OPA announced. Coupon sheets for the entire five periods of the heating season will be issued shortly, OPA said, but only those for the first period will be assigned a definite gallonage value in order to "assure flexibility" in fuel oil allotments.

Maximum Prices and Rents

The OPA reported October 11 that it is extending the Government rent-control program to embrace practically the entire urban population of the country, and orders reducing and stabilizing rents on November 1 for all living quarters of 97 more defense-rental areas as being issued immediately. The orders bring under Federal control the residential rents in every large city in the country with the exception of New York City. Rents are being cut back to the levels prevailing last March 1 in all of the areas except one — Orlando, Fla.—where the maximum rent date is being moved back to October 1, 1941.

Price Administrator Henderson announced a new alternative pricing formula, effective October 19, for the following groups of foods products: breakfast cereals, canned fish, coffee, sugar, cooking and salad oils, canned vegetables, dried fruit, lard, rice, hydrogenated shortenings and other shortenings. The action, which will result in "slightly higher prices" for consumers, was taken to relieve pressure on wholesalers and retailers caught between March quotations under the General Regulation and the amount they must pay producers. Mr. Henderson said the groups of foods affected represent about 15 per cent of all food purchased in the nation's 575,000 food stores. Mr. Henderson said American housewives should check the prices of foods brought under price control last week by making a list of the prices paid from September 28 to October 2 for the various items of the same quantity and quality.

Civilian Supply

The War Production Board cut the production of flashlight batteries 50 per cent and other types of dry cell batteries 10 per cent from last year levels. The Board announced that construction using non-metallic materials and equipment to insulate buildings so that fuel can be saved may be undertaken without specific authorization. The order will not apply to construction begun prior to January 1, 1943. No heavy forged hand tools such as bars, hammers, picks, tongs, etc., which do not conform to the size, type, grade, finish, weight and quality established by WPB, may be produced except on approval of the Board. The WPB ruled that plastic tubes are not acceptable as turnins for new tubes of toothpaste and shaving cream, and cut the percentage of tin which may be used in toothpaste tubes and shaving cream tubes.

War Communications

The Board of War Communications ordered long distance telephone calls relating to the war effort and public safety be given priority over all other calls, effective November 1. Calls concerning moving armed forces during combat operations, urgent orders for the armed forces, immediate dangers due to presence of the enemy disasters materially affecting the war effort or public security will get first priority. Operators will give precedence to priority calls at all times.

War Crimes

President Roosevelt stated "the barbaric crimes being committed by the enemy against civilian populations in occupied countries" are continuing, and "I now declare it to be the intention of the Government that the successful close of the war shall include provisions for the surrender to the United Nations of war criminals — The perpetrators of these crimes shall answer for them before courts of law."

Ask the Scientist

If you have a question to ask the scientists, mail it to the New York Academy of Sciences Association, The Castle, Syracuse, N. Y. The Science Board of the Radio Workshop at Syracuse University will answer each week in the Andover News those questions considered most interesting and timely.

Question 1.—Will a rifle bullet shot into the air come down faster than it went up?

Answer.—No, it will come down very much more slowly, thanks to the resistance of the air. By a rather complicated mathematical formula the physicists can compute the velocity of a falling mass such as a projectile as it reaches the earth's surface.

This has also been determined experimentally for the bullet from our .30 calibre army rifle. This bullet leaves the rifle with a velocity of nearly 3,000 feet per second. It returns with a final velocity of less than 500 feet per second. Even this "return" velocity, reduced tho it is, is still sufficient to cause injury if the bullet should strike a person. It would not, however, penetrate the roof of a house.—Prof. Henry N. Jones.

Question 2.—When one is climbing to a high altitude, what makes his ears fill up?

Answer.—Contrary to general opinion, the ears do not actually fill up. What actually happens is that the person develops a temporary partial deafness. In order to explain this sensation, it is necessary to know something about the structure of the ear.

The ear has three chambers and they are separated by little windows with a thin membrane across each window. The outer ear is in direct contact with the air. The middle ear is also in contact with the air by means of a tube which runs from the bottom of the middle chamber into the throat near the tonsils. That means that air must enter and leave the middle ear thru this little tube.

As long as one stays at the same altitudes there is very little need for an exchange of air in the middle ear. But if we go into a higher or lower altitude the pressure in the outer ear changes and unless the pressure in the middle ear changes also, the little membrane separating the middle and outer ear will be pushed in or out depending on whether you are going up or down.

However, if one remembers to hold his mouth open and swallow occasionally, the air pressure on the two sides of the membrane will remain the same and so the sensation of filling will not occur. In other words, swallowing facilitates entrance or departure of air from the middle ear.—Dr. Verlus Lindeman, zoologist.

Question 3.—Mankind is found in all parts of the earth while the other animal life varies from climate to climate. Is this fact an indication that man is more adaptable to his environment than are other animals?

Answer.—No, man, physiologically speaking, has less ability to tolerate varieties of climate than most other animals. He only seems to have because he alone has sufficient intelligence to provide his own environment and take it around with him. If man were forced to rely on his constitutional resources alone, as the lower animals do, the human race would be restricted to certain limited regions of the tropics, just as the anthropoid apes are.

We are not really living here in this wintry climate of New York State; we are really living in an artificial tropical climate provided by our warm clothing and heated buildings.—Prof. Jones.

Question 4.—Is a picked orange alive?

Answer.—The seeds of a picked orange are definitely alive. The orange itself after being picked from the tree is not alive.—Dr. Ernest Reed, geneticist.

Question 5.—I cleaned a diamond ring with a household cleaning agent containing three per cent sodium hypochlorite. This solution turned a silver ring black and I wondered if it hurt the diamond.

Answer.—No, such a solution will definitely black silver but diamonds are remarkably stable and will resist attack by most common chemical solutions. However, a diamond will burn in air if heated to a bright white heat, that is, about 1,850 degrees Fahrenheit. It is very unlikely that a diamond would survive a fire unless it was stored in a fire-proof box.—Dr. Aden King, chemist.
