SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

GROWTH IN CHRIST

International Sunday School Lesson for October 18, 1942.

Golden Text: "Grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."—II Peter 3:18

Lesson Text: Luke 2:40-52; Hebrews 5:11-14; II Peter 1:1-18.

While growth is natural as long as immaturity continues, the rapidity of that growth depends on whether or not the conditions of growth have been met.

It is natural, in a lesson on this subject, that our minds are turned to the growth of the boy Jesus. While we know very little of the boyhood of Jesus from the time of his being taken to the Temple by his parents in his infancy until the time of his visit with his parents at the age of 12, Luke records that "the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon him," and "Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man."

The main point in both of these verses is that Jesus grew as a normal child. While he was God, he was also man, and, in emptying himself, he voluntarily accepted many of the limitations of human flesh. Everyone should seek, in their lives, the well-balanced growth that characterized the life of Jesus. Physical and mental growth and health, and the development of a well-rounded personality will contribute to spiritual vitality and health.

Every thinking person agrees on those things which are necessary to proper physical growth—food, exercise, and rest. Mothers, interested in the welfare of their families, see to it that all of these elements are supplied in proper proportions. Very often, however, these same mothers are not as interested in seeing that their families develop the other facets of their personalities. They do not encourage the social natures of their children, nor do they do what they should to see that the spiritual growth keeps up with physical growth.

What must we do if we are to grow spiritually or "Grow in Christ" We should certainly feed our souls the proper spiritual food, the Bread of Life, which is the word of God. Bible study should have a more prominent place in our lives if we would grow more like Him. We should cultivate the spirit of meditation, of relaxation when we can let our minds think of God and can listen to him, in the guidance of our lives. Such quiet times bring spiritual renewal and strength to our souls. We should also exercise ourselves in doing the work of the Lord. The soul needs to be fed, needs to be guided, and it also needs to use the strength that is gained for the Lord and to serve our fellow man.

Peter sets a standard for individual Christian growth in his second epistle, given for our consideration. His points are: (1) faith; (2) virtue; (3) knowledge; (4) temperance; (5) patience; (6) godliness; (7) brotherly kindness and (8) charity or love. How do you measure up by Peter's standard? Are you a growing Christian, or are you a Christian, like the writer of Hebrews had in mind, when he declared (Heb. 5:12) "For altho from the length of your Christian experience you ought to be teaching others, you actually need someone to teach you over again the very elements of Christian truth, and you have come to need milk instead of solid food." (Godspeed).

Let us remember, to be sure, that none of us can reach perfection, that none of us can be like Him, but that the test of the Christian's life is not his attainment of the perfect ideal of Jesus, but the constant movement of his life toward that ideal.

"The heavenly journey is measured, not by the number of miles traveled, but by the height of the mountains climbed."—Ivan Panin.
