FOR DYSPEPSIA

You Risk no Money if You Try This Remedy.

We want every one troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia to come to our store and obtain a box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets. They contain Lithia-Saltrate and Pepsin carefully combined so as to develop their greatest power to overcome digestive disturbance.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are very pleasant to take. They tend to soothe, strengthen and invigorate the digestive organs, to relieve nausea and indigestion, thus promoting nutrition and bringing about a feeling of comfort.

If you give Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets a reasonable trial we will return your money if you are not satisfied with the result. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store. J. D. Cheesman.

Saved His Leg.

"Fighting Bob" Evans was severely injured in the last attack on Fort Fisher. He was taken to a hospital, where the surgeon in charge informed him it would be necessary to amputate his leg. Evans was he so opens revolted to this idea, and in the absence of the surgeon procured a his navy pistol. When the doctor came back with his instruments the patient assed him in medicity what he proposed to do.

"I'm afraid we shall have to amputate your leg," said the surgeon, reaching for his tools. When he returned to the attack he was looking into the muzzle of the navy pistol.

"Drop that knife, — you!" cried Evans, and really there was nothing else for the surgeon to do.

"Now I want a word with you," said the patient. "That leg doesn't come off, do you understand? The first one of you who makes a move to take it off will get a load of lead."

Nor did it come off. It is true that Evans carried a limp through life, but his timely assertion of his personality had saved his leg, which afterward proved quite useful.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Cold, Heat and Drowsiness.

Why do we feel drowsy when coming out of the cold into a very warm room? The effect of cold upon the body is to contract the surface blood vessels, drive the blood to the internal organs and slow and weaken the circulation. If this is prolonged the lessened circulation to the brain will produce a lethargy which may end in death. To prevent this we instinctively clap our hands, run or perform some other active exercise to stimulate the circulation. When going into a very warm room from the cold the surface capillaries are dilated and there is a rush of blood to the brain which produces a momentary congestion. We have here three causes for the drowsiness—more or less fatigue from the activity in the cold, the enervating effect of heat and the congestion.—New York American.

A Philosopher.

"My! You wanted fried potatoes, didn't you?" said the careless waitress as the customer in the restaurant finished his meal and rose to leave.

"That's all right," answered the patient man. "I've wanted so many things all my life that I didn't get that I'm used to it."—Newark News.

Wonderful Man.

"Where is he from?"

"I don't know, but I think he was raised on a desert island."

"What in the world makes you think that?"

"He says no woman ever made a fool of him."—Houston Post.

THE SOUND SLEEP OF GOOD HEALTH.

Is not for those suffering from kidney complaints and irregularities. The prompt use of Foley Kidney Pills will dispel backache and rheumatism, heal and strengthen sore, weak and ailing kidneys, restore normal action, and with it health and strength. Mrs. M. F. Spalsbury, Sterling Ill., says: "I offered great pain in my back and kidneys, could not sleep at night, and could not raise my hands over my head. But two bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills cured me." Brundage Drug Co.

The First Japanese In America.

The first Japanese who ever came to America as far as is known was Manjiro Nakahama, a fourteen-year old lad, who was picked up by the captain of an American fishing vessel in 1841, twelve years before the coming of Commodore Perry to Japan. Nakahama, with four companions, had gone out into the ocean on a fishing expedition, their boat had been wrecked by a storm, and they were finally washed ashore on a desert island in the northern Pacific. Three months of dire privation were passed on the island before the little party was rescued by the American vessel. His companions were left in Hawaii, but Nakahama, who became a great favorite of the captain, was brought to the United States and sent to a New England school. And when Commodore Perry came to Japan, Nakahama was able to act as interpreter in the negotiations carried on between the American envoys and the Japanese feudal government authorities. Dr. Jokichi Takamine in Oriental Review.

Beavers' Work.

The beavers not only cut down trees for the purpose of making dams, but also use the smaller upper branches as a storage supply of food for winter use. These branches, from two to four inches in diameter, are cut into lengths of two or three feet and then by wonderful engineering ability are carried beneath the water and into the beavers' houses, or the burrows, with which the bank of every beavers' dam is honeycombed. Here they are carefully stored. The green bark is the staple article of food throughout the winter. The dams are of varying height and length, according to the particular location. I found a dam in Mesa county, Colo., which was just six feet from bottom to top and impounded a body of water six feet or more in depth and covering an area of several acres. This dam was perfect in construction. It was composed entirely of willow branches, as no large timber grows in the vicinity.—Our Dumb Animals.

His Cheapest Poker Game.

In a mining locality is a miner who feeds his money into the games around town as regular as pay day comes around. One Sunday, as the story goes, the "game" was "sitting in" a game at the regular meeting place. There was no room left at the board for any one else to "sit in." Presently the habitues heard the familiar tread of the miner. He knocked on the door with the regulation secret tap as a sign that he wished to deposit some more money in the bank. The game was very lously engaged, and one wit in the crowd yelled out to the miner: "No room in this game for you, Skinny. Just throw your money over the transom, and we'll divide it up!" And Skinny shot a two dollar bill over the transom.

That night he met the regulars downtown. "Say," he exclaimed, with a grin, "that was the cheapest poker game I ever sat in!"—Indianapolis News.

Handy With His Fists.

Admiral Wilson of the British navy won his Victoria cross at the battle of El Teb in 1884. There was a gap in the square, and five or six of the enemy made a furious rush forward, attempting to get inside. Captain Wilson, who was present with the naval brigade, advanced to meet them alone, but his sword broke in the endeavor to cut one of the intruders down. Here upon the officer, instead of beating a hasty retreat, stood his ground and began bowling over the enemy with his fists. Either from the nature of the ground or, as the record puts it, "the surprising nature of his attack," Captain Wilson escaped with a few wounds and was rescued by the square closing up round him. Sir Redvers Buller described the act as the most courageous he ever witnessed.

Not-Likely.

Mrs. Morton (angrily)—Tommy Horton, what made you hit my little Johnny?

Tommy Horton—He struck me with a brick.

Mrs. Morton (angrily)—Well, never let me hear of your hitting him again. If he hits you you come and tell me.

Tommy Horton (sneeringly)—Yes; and what would you do?

Mrs. Morton—Why, I'd whip him.

Tommy Horton (in disgust)—What! He hits me with a brick and you have the fun of licking him for it? Not much!—London Telegraph.

Matched.

Towne—Met Gabbie and Perkins at a smoker last night and introduced them to each other. Awfully—Oh, yes. It's a shame to introduce a bore like Gabbie to anybody. Towne—It's evident you don't know Perkins or you'd see the humor of it.

The Proper Head.

Husband (studying his wife's accounts)—There are several items you haven't entered here. Hung up the furniture, your hairdresser, dentist, trip to the sea, for instance. Wife—Oh, those all come under "repairs."—Fliegende Blatter.

A Will and a Way.

"Where there's a will there's a way," quoted the wise guy.

"Yes," assented the simple man; "there's generally a way out of it."—Philadelphia Record.

Will Persist In Trying It.

"What is an optimist, pa?"

"An optimist is a man who comes home late and thinks he can get in without his wife knowing it."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

What Did He Mean?

"I have been buying oil and off at a little antique shop in a side street," said a woman who lives at an uptown hotel. "I had been in the habit of going to the shop on foot and, of course, had been waited on by one of the clerks.

"Among the things I had purchased was a spoon, and I decided that I would call and get another to match it. This time I drove in with a coachman and footman, and the proprietor himself welcomed me. Before he could wait on me, however, he was called away, and he summoned a young woman. As he turned to go I overheard him whisper to her, 'G. W.'

"The young woman took out the spoon I was after. The price she said was $10.

"'But,' I protested, 'I got one here only the other day and paid only $7.50 for it.'

"She looked a bit confused. Then she took up the spoon and examined the label closely. 'Oh, I made a mistake,' she said. 'The price is only $7.50.'

"Now, what I have been puzzling over is, what did the proprietor mean by the 'G. W.' he whispered?"—New York Sun.

Guard Your Children Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and serious consequences may follow. Long after the cause has been forgotten a child's bowels may be constantly watched, and be kept laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Fruit is especially well suited to women and children. Thousands of Christian Charity, 221 Charles Lancaster, Pa., who reports cures of scores of sickness say so in the strongest terms.

"Some time ago we began using Miles' Laxative Fruit and we like them very much. They are excellent and we recommend them to everybody. We have had our children use them, and they have never failed to give them the desired effect, and we are much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, especially when children are concerned, and parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine" that is good for it. Dr. Miles' Laxative Fruit Tablets, however, overcome this difficulty. The tablets, itself, are a candy-like taste of exceptional merit, and any child, with the proper training, can take them without a wrinkle. The rich crimson color, and the absence of other tablets make Miles' Laxative Tablets the ideal remedy for children.

If the first box fails to benefit the child, return the empty box to the druggist, A box of 25 doses costs only 25 cents. "Never sold in bulk."

The Most Remarkable Suicide.

The most curious suicide in the annals of self destruction occurred at Chiquete, N. B., in the spring of 1890. Before committing the deed the self murderer, who was named W. H. T. Jones, dug his own grave and placed a rough coffin of his own handiwork at the bottom. The dirt from the opening was kept from roming back into the excavation by boards held in place by a trigger to which a string was attached. Everything in readiness, the deliberate Mr. Jones, as subsequent developments revealed, got in the coffin, took a dose of poison and then pulled the string, burying himself beneath tons of earth. This has been put down as one of the most unique and successful cases of self destruction on record.

Just as Guaranteed.

Jones answered an advertisement and sent a dollar for four pairs of socks. When they arrived Jones looked them over and then wrote the advertiser:

"Socks, received. The patterns are vile. I wouldn't be seen on the street with them on."

Back came the answer:

"What are you kicking about? Didn't we guarantee that you wouldn't wear them out?"—Judge.

Easy.

Actress—In this new play I am supposed to die of a broken heart. Now, how can I know how a person with a broken heart behaves? Manager—I'll tell you what to do. Study the author of the play after he sees your first rehearsal.—Boston Transcript.

Duty.

The reason why people so ill know how to do their duty on great occasions is that they will not be diligent in doing their duty on little occasions.

Illogical.

He—A woman is always illogical. She—How do you make that out? He—She can always remember her birthday, but never her age.—Vanity Life.

Natural Recreation.

The lightning plays, the wind whistles, the thunder rolls, the snow flies, the waves leap, the field smiles, the bud shoots and the river runs.

The result tests the work.—George Washington.

Butter From Birds.

A century ago butter birds were milked to bear the land by the native of the northern part of South America. In midsummer the Indians went into the great caverns where these strange birds had builded and with long poles the nests were broken and destroyed, something like the way the Yankee boys in barns used to break up the homes of mud dobbers and barn swallows. Butter birds builded nests in the tops of the caverns in niches and holes worn away by water. A poke or two with a pole and the nest of gray clay building like a big cheese came falling down, the young birds scattering on the floor of the cavern. The great lumps of fat between legs and under the tail of the nestlings were torn from them and piled into earthen pots and melted down into hard butter. The butter bird is about as large as a chicken and so sweet is the fat that it keeps a year or so without turning rancid. It is oily, clear and without smell.—New York Press.

Decay of Diplomacy.

Diplomacy is not a career which encourages the growth of a strong per sonality. The diplomatist is necessarily the tool of other men. Wandering from capital to capital, he is the mouthpiece of successive ministers, to whose servant he is bound to act without hesitation and unconformity, sometimes, for whom there will presently yawn some obscure and distant hole in a South American legation. The great ambassadors lived in the days when no telegraph had yet been invented to make bureaucracy omnipotent. It wants only some further perfection of the long distance telephone to abolish the diplomatist altogether.—London Athenaeum.

Gems of Oratory.

Here are some gems of oratory from the Austrian parliament:

"I have already said all I wish to say and therefore willingly withdraw all I might still say."

"I cannot longer keep silent without saying some words."

"Incumbent on engineers stand with one foot in crime and with the other gnaw the rugs of hunger."

"A funeral procession always has something mournful about it, especially when the decedent was a human being."

"If I am a parliamentary deputy I am still human."

Free Freight.

Every railway carries more or less freight for its own use, and therefore without pay, and in some countries both freight and passengers are occasionally carried free on governmental or other account. As such gratuitous service does not increase the monetary receipts, it is ordinarily omitted from the companies' earnings. The term "revenue train miles per mile of line" indicates the train density of trains that have added to the earnings.—New York Times.

A Critic Who Scored.

"I like pointed criticism," said a theatrical man, "criticism such as I heard in the lobby of the theater the other night at the end of a play.

"The critic was an old gentleman. His criticism, which was for his wife's ear alone, consisted of these words:

"'Well, you would come!'"—Detroit Free Press.

Just Like a Lady.

Lois, aged five, had spent the afternoon at a neighbor's. "I hope you behaved like a lady," said her mother when she returned.

"Sure I did," replied Lois. "Every time I yawned I put my hand over my mouth."—Chicago News.

Poetic Justice.

Policeman—Where long to rest the world had sunk I found this person roaring drunk. Prisoner—Denial, sir, I cannot plead; drunk I was—oh, blind indeed. Magistrate—To show how poorly drinking says—I'll send you up for thirty days.
