A Certain Silver Sixpence.

Beau Brummel had a very odd way of accounting for the sad change which took place in his affairs at this time. "He used," observes one of his friends at Caen, "when talking about his altered circumstances, to say that up to a particular period of his life everything prospered with him and that he attributed his good luck to the possession of a certain silver sixpence with a hole in it, which somebody had given him years before with an injunction to take good care of it, as everything would go well with him so long as he did and vice versa if he happened to lose it." The promised prosperity attended him for many years while he held the sixpence fast; but, having at length in an evil hour unfortunately given it by mistake to a hackney coachman, a complete reverse of his previous good fortune took place and one disastrous occurrence succeeded another till actual ruin overtook him at last and obliged him to expatriate himself."—Captain Jesse.

Origin of the "Three R's."

The famous toast to "the three R's—reading, riting and rithmetic" was made by Sir William Curtis, lord mayor of London, in the year 1795 and for many years one of the wardens of the tower. What made it more ludicrous was that he proposed it at a dinner given by the London board of education. It was received with great applause and drank amid much merriment. At the time it was recognized as a jest, but was afterward taken up in earnest by the mayor's detractors, who have handed his name down to posterity as a blundering ignoramus. A writer has now come to his defense and says that when he was a boy an aged member of the board of education assured him that Sir William knew better and that he really used his famous alliteration as a jest. To many people, however, the story will always sound better when it is based upon the belief that Sir William was really serious.

A Record Hailstorm.

One of the worst hailstorms ever known in the United States occurred Sept. 5, 1888, in Nodaway county, Missouri. The path of the storm was about three miles wide and eighteen miles long, its greatest visible being 250 over a region of four square miles east of Cornlocst. At one point in this region the fall of hail was so heavy that a drift unprotected by artificial means remained lying on the ground for four weeks after the storm. At the end of that time people in the neighborhood were found gathering the hail for the purpose of making ice cream. During the storm cylindrical pieces of ice were picked up four inches long by about two and a half in diameter. The growing corn was practically all destroyed. In a field of eighty acres only one stalk was left standing.—Chicago News.

A View of Jefferson Davis.

Very straight and tall, thin, with a clear cut, clean shaven, distinguished face, with a look half military, half student, with a demeanor to all of perfect if somewhat chilling courtesy; by temperament a theorist, able with the ability of the field marshal or the scholar in the study, not with that of the reader and master of men, the hardest of workers, devoted, honorable, single minded, a figure on which a flawless light has beaten; a man not perfect nor always just, bound in the toils of his own personality, but yet an able man, who suffered and gave all, believed in himself and in his cause and to the height of his power labored for it day and night. Such a man was Jefferson Davis.—Mary Johnston in "The Long Roll."

Conquered.

"No," snapped the hard featured woman, opening the kitchen door about six inches, "and, to be perfectly plain with you"—

"You couldn't marry," gallantly interposed Tuffold Knutt, lifting his tattered remnant of a hat—"you couldn't be otherwise than perfectly harmsome with me."

"I was going to say," she rejoined, visibly softening, "that, to be plain with you, there is nothing in the house but cold victuals, but if you care to try a plate of warmed over hash you can come in."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Didn't Tire Him.

He had taken pains when he applied for work to assure the farmer that he never got tired. When his new employer went to the field where he had put the man at work he found him lolling on his back under a tree.

"What does this mean?" asked the farmer. "I thought you were a man who never got tired."

"I don't," said the hired man calmly. "This doesn't tire me."—Exchange.

Liquid Ones.

They were waiting for dinner, and the virtuoso, who was to play afterward at the musicale, was whiling away the time at the piano. "How would you like a sonata before dinner?" he asked.

"Hardly," returned the host. "I had four on the way home."

A Happy Ending.

"Has your new novel a happy ending?"

"Very. The judge awards my heroine $50,000 a year alimony in the closing chapter."—Detroit Free Press.

Sins of Omission.

Tommy—Pop, what are the sins of omission? Tommy's Pop—The sins of omission, my son, are those we forget to commit.—Philadelphia Record.

The more one judges the less one loves.—Balzac.

Bulldogging a Steer.

Perhaps there is no contest that is a greater tax on human endurance than that demanded by "bulldogging" a steer, and the "bulldogger" must go it alone. The pony is as great a factor as the man for when once the lasso rests over the horns of the range animal all depends on the rapid way in which the mustang wheels so that the trailing rope will trip the steer. When the steer is on the ground the plucky pony must keep the rope taut. The range rider keeps a good with a length of rope less the steer's four feet length or. Time is the crucial. Unless he has completed his operations from the word go in less than two minutes he is motodoned in the race for the finals. As a matter of fact, one contestant cut the time to 29 seconds, a world's record.—Sunset Magazine.

Begging the Question.

The phrase "begging the question," or in Latin "petitio principii," signifies the treating of a proposition as a fully demonstrated fact when it is actually only a premise or a conclusion brought forward and not yet proved. In other words, to beg the question is to assume something to be true, in order to evade the task of bringing forward the necessary argument to show its truth.—Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Foiled.

"A man tried to pick my pockets in the street yesterday, but my wife prevented him.

"Did she grapple with him or just scream?"

"Neither. She wasn't there."

"Then how could she prevent him?"

"She had been through my pockets first."

A Help to Promptness.

Anxious Voice Over the Phone—Doctor, please hurry over to our house. One of the family has suddenly been stricken with a fainting fit. Is there anything you want ready when you get here, so that there will be no time lost? Doctor—Yes, or you may have my fee ready.—Lippincott's.

Easy Enough.

"Maw, I've come across a word that I can't pronounce."

"Spell it, dear?"

"G, e, o, m, e, t, r, y."

"Why, that's a proper name, Murphy. Pay more attention to what you are reading and don't bother me again."—Chicago Tribune.

R. G. Collins, Postmaster, Barnegat, N. J., was troubled with a severe grippe cough. He says: "I would be completely exhausted after each fit of violent coughing. Bought a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and before I had taken it all the coughing spells had entirely ceased. It can't be beat."

Here is one way a piece of land may be made profitable.

Find a clay hole and make bricks out of the clay.

Cut the few in the hole in the winter if you can get away with it.

Get money from the city to fill the hole as a dumping ground.

Put a top soil over all and sell the lot for a manufacturing site.—Chicago Post.

The Drone.

Son—What kind of a man is a drone, papa? Father—One who stands in a revolving door and waits for some one else to push it around so he can get in, my son.—Judge.

Mean Thing.

Maybelle—See the beautiful engagement ring Jack gave me last night. Estelle—Gracious! Has that just got around to you?—Toledo Blade.

Deliberate with caution, but act with decision; yield with graciousness or oppose with firmness.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitive, modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distressful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to the ordeal.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its entire formula on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine makers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Address, in confidence, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.—take the advice women find so valuable.

Over the Phone.

"He hasn't slept all night, doctor," said Mrs. Bibbs over the phone, describing her husband's symptoms, "and this morning he complains of aches in his bones and a general boodarky feeling. Is there anything I can do?"

Just then the wires crossed with the phone connection of the dog fancier.

"Sure!" came the response. "Bring him in this afternoon and I'll cut his ears for you"—Pittsburgh Press.

Sounded Interesting.

"How about the sermon?"

"The minister preached on the sinfulness of cheating at bridge."

"You don't say! Did he mention any names?"—Kansas City Journal.

BACKACHE ALMOST UNBEARABLE

Is an almost certain result of kidney trouble. D. Toomey, 803 E. Olive St., Bloomington, Ill., says: "I suffered with backache and pains in my kidneys which were almost unbearable. I gave Foley Kidney Pills a good trial, and they done wonders for me. Today I can do a hard days work and not feel the effects."

Among Our Neighbors

South Hill

With winter weather, the world is singing sweet, When the snow has melted We'll be violets at your feet.

Sick people are all on the gain.

Leon Nora and Chestina McAnany were home from Friday until Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dean attended a banquet given the stockholders of the Burrows National Bank last Friday night.

The Misses Forness was the guest of friend, Miss Mary Lynch, the last of last week. Miss Mary returned home with her.

Potatoes are being moved to market at $1.00 a bushel.

Times are rather quiet on the Hill, no "hustling" but the weather is fine. Forness was on the Hill, Wednesday doing some work on his lease.

The "Child's Welfare" movement has challenged the attention of thoughtful people everywhere. They are natural supporters, and friends of Foley's Honey and Tar because it is a most valuable aid. It soothes and heals the lungs, relieves quickly the worst coughs, bronchitis and pneumonia and expedites the healing and convalescence. The purpose of these "Agreements" is to maintain present high charges, and to block the introduction of any better system by others. The methods employed to destroy the Telepost have been notoriously unfair, and un-American:—Spies dogging the footsteps of visitors to our offices; men of importance, associated with us, threatened; employees induced to betray us; timid shareholders stampeded into sacrificing their shares; our wires mysteriously cut, and our customers urged to leave us. Periodicals, and other publications, in alliance with the money powers behind the telegraph interests, have maliciously attacked us in order to discourage popular support for our enterprise, in much the same manner as they did Alexander Graham Bell when he introduced the telephone.

With the low rates of the Telepost, the wires will be used almost as freely as the mails. We plan to build a line from our terminal in Chicago to New York, having secured entrances into both cities and practically all of the right-of-way. This line will pass near Buffalo, and thence along the Boone Kitchen Cabinet. The New York-Chicago line will put the Telepost on a solid and big dividend-paying basis that extends to all parts of the country will rapidly follow. The opposition has declared that it will make it impossible for us to build this extension by PREVENTING US GETTING THE MONEY NEEDED. In this we do not reckon on your having anything to say, and we only forget that the original telegraph lines were built by Wall Street,—but, with profit to themselves by the merchants, farmers and small investors of the country who were independent of capitalistic control or influence. We propose to build the Telepost lines in the same way. However determined the "interests" may be to stop us, we want you to help us show them that in spite of Wall Street opposition there is enough manhood and civic pride in this country to insure the completion of a monumental work of this kind without either the help or sanction of any moneyed combination, however powerful.

There is more telegraph business between these two cities than between any other two cities in the world. Our lower rates and better service will give us the bulk of this profitable business. The old line companies estimate the average cost to them per message to be about thirty cents. On the same volume of business the cost to the Telepost would be only eleven cents,—over sixty per cent. less. Thus with the people behind us our position in this fight is impregnable.

The profits will be unusually substantial and increasingly large from year to year. Every $1,000 invested by the original shareholders in Western Union in 1858 received up to 1890 cash and stock dividends amounting to $150,000. Original investors in telephone shares fared even better.

The Telepost cannot be bought, sold or merged by its rivals. Its shares are safeguarded from stock market manipulation by its Board of Voting Trustees, among whom are Rear-Admiral Sigsbee, U. S. N.; General Buffington, U. S. A.; Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, former Senators Faulkner of West Virginia and Blair of New Hampshire. Could anything be fairer, safer or more desirable to the small investor?

The New York-Chicago line will cost only $900,000. To raise the $900,000 we offer 90,000 shares at $10 each (par value). These shares are full-paid and non-assessable. The company has no bonds or preferred stock. This sum may look large, but if only a small number in each community invited to join our 15,000 stockholders in building this line, take a few shares each, the entire amount will be easily raised and the line completed and in operation by the Fall. All Telepost progress achieved to date is due to the support of the independent citizens of the country and its future is in their hands. You may buy as many as you choose, but for stimulating business 9,000 men and women with ten shares each would mean much more for the Telepost than one subscriber with the entire 90,000. If you are with us in this fight,—and if you desire to share in the great profits and credit which will follow the completion of this line, write your name, address and the number of shares wanted, on the attached coupon, and mail with check or money order to me direct, care Telepost, New York.

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

Certain Ingredients That Really Promote Hair Growth When Properly Combined.

Rexall '93' Hair Tonic is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered by science, and in connection with Rexall Liquid, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which feed on the hair of its natural nourishment, and also creates a healthy healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin, although not a coloring matter or dye, is a well-known ingredient for restoring the hair to its natural color, when the loss of hair has been caused by a disease of the scalp.

These ingredients in proper combination, with alcohol added as a stimulant and for its well-defined cleansing properties, perfect perhaps the most effective remedy that is known for scalp and hair troubles.

We have a remedy which is chiefly composed of these ingredients, in combination with other extremely valuable medicinal agents. We guarantee it to positively cure dandruff and to grow hair, even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair, if there is any vitality left in the roots. It will positively cure baldness, or at will round your money. If the skin is glazed, shiny appearance, it's an indication that baldness is permanent, but in other instances we believe baldness is curable.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease or loss of hair to try Rexall '93' Hair Tonic. If it does not cure dandruff and grow hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. We print this guarantee on every bottle. It has effected a positive cure in 93% of cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall '93' Hair Tonic is entirely unlike, and we think, in every particular better than anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is prescribed. We urge you to try this preparation at our entire risk. Certainly we know of no better guarantee to give you. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in Andover only at our store.—The Rexall Store. His Tribute to His Wife.

The following obituary notice was published in a German paper:

"Today red, tomorrow dead. So it was with my wife, who only seven days ago was sprinting over bench and table, and was buried yesterday. During her life she was a live woman, who did too easily mistake an X for a U. But now she is every body can tell the exact o her crowbody. So young and so merry, and now buried. What is it man, dog? I have said to myself repeatedly within the past few days, and too yesterday in the church yard, as I paid the sexton, who will also keep the grave mound in order, so cheerful a wife I shall certainly never, never find again, and therefore my sorrow is a righteous one. I wish that heaven preserves any man from a similar sad fate, and thanks for the flowers, as well as the Herr Cantor, the music master of the choir, for the grave hymn, which went through and through me, but was very well sung. Ackerman, Master Lockmith."

Not the Silent Partner.

"I want to telegraph 175 to Chicago," said a man to the clerk in a Boston telegraph office recently.

"The name, please," asked the receiving teller, a good looking young woman behind the counter, whose accent never leave been twenty-five.

"It's for Mrs. Mary K. Brown, 175 — avenue," answered the man.

"Your name too, please," again questioned the young woman.

"My name is Henry Brown; I'm the other half of the firm," answered the man.

"The money goes to the silent partner, eh?" good naturedly remarked the young woman.

"Not on your life she isn't!" answered the man. "Nothing silent about her. She's made more noise for the last two weeks for the $25 than you can imagine. She's the noisy partner of the firm, and she makes good with the title too."—Boston Traveler.

The Giraffe as It Feeds.

The slender shape of the giraffe is adapted to its habits of life. It feeds on the young branches and top shoots of the trees, and its long fore legs and neck enable it to browse at a far greater height than any other animal, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. In feeding it stretches up its neck and with its long prehensile tongue, which it can protrude to a surprising distance, hooks down the tender shoots and leaves into its mouth. But the creature's peculiar form, though enabling it to feed on what it likes best, is sometimes the cause of its destruction. Its fore legs are so long that to reach the ground it has to stretch them wide apart and bend down its neck in a semicircle, and while drinking in this defenseless attitude the lion or leopard springs upon it and overpowers it before it can recover itself.

Splinters in the Fingers.

When you get a splinter in your finger it is sometimes possible to get at it by pressing the point of a needle under it, but unless you have deft fingers or a pair of tweezers you may not be able to pull it out even then. A new pen nib is a very good substitute for a pair of tweezers. Lay the nib of over the splinter so as to hide it. Then press down hard enough to separate the nibs. If you now let the pen down level with the splinter and allow the nibs to close again they will take hold, and you can draw the splinter out. Remember that any metal thing that is to be applied to a wound, such as a needle, penknife or pen, should be passed lightly through a flame first, so as to disinfect it. A gas jet or a match will do.—New York Sun.

Love and the Drama.

A periodical devoted to the drama pleads for plays based on some emotion other than love. Decidedly in producing such plays is time every play must have a hero, and in making a hero the playwright must win as the audience almost inevitably admits the view expressed 2,000 years ago by a soldier on one of the dead walls of Pompeii, "He who has never loved a woman is not a gentleman."—Exchange.
