Safe From Poisonous Serpents.

A physician who spent some time in the countries bordering on the gulf of Mexico found a curious body of men among the natives called curados de culebra, or the safe from vipers. Having been inoculated with the poison of the serpents, they were proof against their venomous bites. The inoculation was made with the venom tooth of a viper and the bulb of a native plant called mano del sapo (toad's hand). The preventive inoculation has been an old custom among the natives of that region.

Wants Country Folk to Settle Now.

AFTER CONSTRUCTING $100,000,000 WORTH OF IMPROVED ROADS FOR CITY AUTOMOBILISTS, THEY WANT FARMERS TO KEEP THEM IN REPAIR FOR THEM.

Not content with the farmers and rural residents helping them build automobile boulevards for the city folks to ride through the country, in their $5,000 cars, making the highways well night useless to the country folks, killing our children, ruining crops along the road with the poisonous dust and making a general nuisance of themselves, the city automobilists are now trying to get a bill through the state legislatature which will place an awful burden of taxation upon the country folks, making them maintain all the improved roads in their districts.

Had the farmers and country folk had any idea that such an imposition would be attempted, they would never have voted them the $100,000,000 to build the roads.

Following is the proposed legislation:

Albany,—Jan. 30.—Revision of the Highway law which, its sponsor claims, will result in an annual reduction of $2,680,000 in the state-wide assessment for road construction and maintenance, is contemplated in a bill which Senator George F. Argetsinger of Rochester will introduce in the legislature to-morrow.

The measure aims to transfer from the state at large to the separate localities benefitted the bulk of the cost of providing for the state, county and town highways. Thus New York City, whose municipal and legislative representatives for many years have maintained it bore too heavy a share of the cost of good roads throughout the state, would be relieved of a large proportion of the present highway levy.

If the bill is enacted into law the present highway commission virtually will be reorganized. In a statement to-night Senator Argetsinger explained that the contemplated reorganization was not meant to be a criticism of the present highway department but an effort to correct statutory imperfections which are portioned unequally among the various political subdivisions of the state the cost of highway construction and maintenance. He said he expected opposition from up-state counties but had been assured by the legislative leaders that the proposed change would receive careful consideration.

According to Senator Argetsinger the legislation would relieve the state at large of the following annual expense:

$30,000 in the administration of the main office of the highway commissioner due to elimination of offices and of duplication of work.

$350,000 in general administration expenses resulting from the reduction of construction division from nine to six with corresponding reduction of engineering and operatitng forces.

$300,000 in engineering and operating expenses owing to the fact that this expense will be met by the separate localities.

$2,000,000 in annual maintenance charges now paid by the state but under the new plan to be paid by the political subdivisions benefitted.

These figures are based upon the state and county highways already completed. Under the two $50,000,000 good roads bond issues, approximately 2,300 miles of the 10,000 contemplated are yet to be built. When the entire system is completed, Senator Argetsinger calculates the state-wide reduction in cost will be more than doubled by the proposed transfer to the individual localities of the greater part of maintenance cost. This will be possible, because of the elimination of the construction department which will no longer be necessary when the balance of the construction money raised by the bonds is exhausted.

"My organaization plan," said Senator Argetsinger in his statement, "would establish a strict line of demarkation between the construction department, which is only temporay and will cease when the moneys derived from the bond issues are exhausted and the bureau of town highways and the maintenance department, the latter two being combined into a permanent organization. The whole intent of the bill is to place the responsibility of the work of the permanent department back on the localities where it belongs. Yet ample jurisdiction and authority is given the state for absolute audit and check upon local activities.

"The state highway commissioner and his staff are retained, but all employes in the permanent department below supervising inspectors are paid by the localities in which they operate, each county having a county engineer in charge of all the permanent department work in that county. In the temporary construction department, the commissioner has the right to reduce the divisions at his pleasure commensurate with the natural decreased construction work as the bond issue moneys become more and more depleted."

IT WAS A DANDY

"The best play ever under this roof" was one of the remarks heard after "Within the Law" had concluded its production at the Auditorium Saturday night. We don't know about that, but we do know from the general approval expressed by those who attended it that it was very satisfactory to them all. Not a word of criticism has been heard and that tells a whole lot.

PLEADS GUILTY AND SAYS HE'LL REFORM

Man Who is Known Throughout the Country as a Clever Confidence Man, Repents in N. Y Tombs and Confesses.

Jules Ford, alias Doc Waterbuy, a former resident of Enfield, Tompkins County and known the country over as one of the slickest confidence men in the game, is going to reform. He says so himself. He announces that he is through with crime.

Ford pleaded guilty to an indictment in New York Tuesday and is now in the Tombs awaiting sentence, which will be pronounced next Tuesday. A New York newspaper publishes the following account of the proceedings:

Jules H. Ford, known internationally as Doc Waterbuy, who says he has a dual personality, pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the second degree before Judge Malqueen in General Sessions yesterday and was sent to the Tombs for a week, when sentence, the limit of which is five years, will be pronounced. In the meantime it is probable that Ford will give to the district attorney a history of his life, as well as valuable information about crooks who have been successful in this country and abroad.

Ford, who is athletic build, was recently brought back from Montreal, where he was picked up after a search of several months. Last October he passed through this city en route from California to Canada and spent enough time to call on Dr. Allan Starr, who paid $200 to become a life member of the Gridiron Club of Washington. Ford admitted that he got the money.

Ford, who is 40 years old, is a native of this state and says he is a graduate of Cornell. He has of late years been known as a confidence man who spent much of his time on ocean steamers. He is said to have married into a respectful family of Westchester County.

It developed yesterday that Ford, under the name of Waterbuy, had been convicted in the Federal courts of publishing an untrue story, and for it was sent to prison for five months. He was later pardoned. At the time of his arrest he was working as the Washington correspondent for a New York morning newspaper. After his release from prison he got employment on another morning paper in this city, where he remained until his identity became known.

"I have played the game and had my fun," said Ford in his cell. "Now I have to pay the penalty. When this case is over I am through and I mean it. Perhaps it would have been better for me if I had been convicted before now."

Ford said that he had made at least two fortunes in his time. Once in London he cleaned up $250,000 and had $87,000 of that sum in cash. He said he had got the money through legitimate means.

Ford asserted that he had been driven back to crime through being uncovered to his employer by a detective who knew his past. It was said that he, if he desired to, could tell a great deal about a band of men who have been going about the Wall Street district collecting subscriptions for a preparedness campaign.

ANDOVER MAN LECTURES IN BELMONT

What the Belmont Dispatch says of Mr. Williams' Community Lecture Given in that Village Tuesday Evening Last Week.

The Rev. H. B. Williams, of Andover, delivered his Community Betterment lecture at Ward Hall Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the B. L. & H. Society, to a large and appreciative audience.

The reverend gentleman speaks from personal experiences and observations made during a four-year campaign doing community work in Pennsylvania and is thoroughly conversant with this subject.

He draws many peculiar similes and drives home his point in a manner so forceful that its effect cannot fail being lasting and helpful.

"The Man From Our Town," the subject of the discussion, is a character drawn during the course of the lecture and is taken from every-day life, common to the point of being unnoticeable and in many instances is a representation of ourselves.

The following are a few of the pithy quotations mentioned during the lecture:

"Community Betterment hinges on life, religion, love and education as essential qualities."

"Never despise or be ashamed of the fact that you live in a small town. Do not register from Olean or Hornell, when you reside in Andover or Belmont."

"Put your arm under the fallen stranger and life him up that he may also partake of some of the good things of life."

"A jungle man is one with more or less of the animal in his heart. How many 'jungle men' do we know? How many living just within the shadows of the jungle?"

"I am proud of the fact I came from a 'Hello Bill' town, where everybody knows everybody else, their very lives and their intellectual capacity. I wish there were many more "Hello Bill" towns in this world.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church has bought this space in order to give the people of Andover a hearty invitation to take part in Church activities for the benefit of the People of Town. Religion is a straight-up proposition.
