JOHN BARRYMORE IN "THE DICTATOR"

Auditorium, Tuesday, February 22nd

John Barrymore, whose every appearance on the screen insures a carnival of mirth, attains a genuine laugh-triumph in the famous Players Film Company's thrillingly humorous photo-adaptation of the popular stage success, "The Dictator," by the celebrated author, Richard Harding Davis.

The central character of this famous comedy-drama is Brooke Travers, a young American, who is forced by existing and exciting circumstances to become temporarily the Dictator of a small republic in South America, and who in doing so becomes the hero of many momentous situations, some comic, and some very serious indeed, from all of which he emerges the victor, through the aid of his clever wit and never-failing audacity, and is finally rescued from his predicament by a kindly fate in the substantial guise of an American battleship.

Produced in Cuba, the film version of "The Dictator" adheres in atmospheric detail to all the requirements of the unusual story while John Barrymore's personal success cannot be exaggerated.

PETER PARSHALL

Peter Parshall, who was stricken with a shock at Sabinsville, Pa., Monday, Jan. 24th, passed away Tuesday of last week.

Colds Cause Consumption?

Ardover folks may be proud of Andover weather. But our winters bring catarrh: Catarrh disgusts one's friends. It hurts our health. We get to look sickly.

But worst of all catarrh—whether it is chronic or simply cold-in-head-catarrh, may cause the worst of diseases. For instance, here is what Mrs. Annie Richardson has written over her signature:

"Shortly after I was till my little three-year-old boy came down with the same disease that I had, and I cured him with your Jelly. All his life he has been troubled with a terrible cough whenever he took the least cold. I have been up with him all night long and could get nothing to relieve him until I got hold of some Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly."

You can get (free) a book about this—and some Kondon Catarrhal Jelly, if you write immediately to Kondon Mfg. Co., Minneapolis. Or go to your own drug store here in town. They may have some free samples left. If not, get a 25c. tube. This newspaper guarantees that you will get your money's worth, or your money back. But be sure it's the genuine—proved by 25 years' use—in millions of cases. Insist on

[illegible]UND DEAD IN WELLSVILLE HOTEL

[illegible]erious Death of Charles [illegible]rank and Harry Guill Saturday night at the Erie Hotel [illegible]uthorities Investigating.

[illegible]rom Monday's Wellsville Reporter.

[illegible]harles Frank, aged 53 years, [illegible] Henry Guill, aged 32 years, [illegible] found dead about noon Sunday on a bed in a room at the [illegible] Hotel, which is conducted by [illegible]o Barresi. The deaths and [illegible] are a mystery.

[illegible] Frank, who is well known [illegible]his city where he has spent [illegible]ife, roomed and boarded at [illegible] Erie Hotel. He was in this [illegible] Saturday evening together [illegible]h a party, including August [illegible]man, Carley Grove, Frank [illegible]es and himself. They were [illegible]ing cards and during the [illegible]ing indulged, it is said, in [illegible]ral drinks.

[illegible]twen ten and eleven o'clock [illegible]y Guill called at the Erie [illegible]l and asked to see Mr. Frank [illegible] was directed to his room. [illegible]st what time the other visitor [illegible] Frank left the place is not [illegible]n.

[illegible]e first intimation of anything [illegible]g was known about noon [illegible]ay when Mrs. Barresi went [illegible]rank's room to call him. Get[illegible] no response to her knocking [illegible]he door she entered and dis[illegible]red both Frank and Guill [illegible] across and on the outside [illegible]he bed with their clothes on. [illegible]went to Frank and shook [illegible] and then to her horror, dis[illegible]red that both men were dead. [illegible]. Gish was called and Mr. [illegible]k's brother William was [illegible]moned. Dr. Gish pronounced [illegible]men dead.

[illegible]ter Health Officer J. W. [illegible]er and Officer Ellsworth were [illegible]d. The Health Officer called [illegible]ertaker Embser and had him [illegible]ve the bodies to his under[illegible]g rooms at No. 15 North [illegible]. Coroner Dr. E. W. Ayars, [illegible]lfred, was notified by phone [illegible]e mysterious deaths and ar[illegible]d in town Sunday evening on [illegible] train 501 about 7 o'clock [illegible] took charge of the case.

[illegible]ere would have been nothing [illegible]ge in finding Charley Frank [illegible] as he was afflicted with [illegible]holism, but two men dying [illegible]t the same hour, with no [illegible]rent struggle, and no calls [illegible]elp being heard in the night, [illegible]s suspiciously like a tragic [illegible], whether premeditated or [illegible]ingly or unknowingly hand[illegible] the unfortunate victims.

[illegible]e first doctor called intimat[illegible]hat it might be wood alcohol [illegible]oning and only an analysis [illegible]e contents of the stomachs [illegible]reveal the true cause of [illegible]h.

[illegible]ere was enough mystery sur[illegible]ding the deaths, to have [illegible]ed the most rigid examina[illegible] by the police department. [illegible] it was due to the family and [illegible]ds of the two dead men. But [illegible] nothing was done be[illegible] a superficial examination [illegible]Health Officer Coller and Of[illegible] Ellsworth, and the bodies [illegible]ndered removed to the [illegible]er undertaking rooms while [illegible]ffice was placed in charge of [illegible]oms and its contents where [illegible]ouble tragedy occurred.

[illegible]e Coroner this morning and [illegible]ostmortem examination on [illegible]odies and the stomachs [illegible] removed and are to be sent [illegible] to be analyzed. Later an [illegible]st will be held.

Guill Lived in Hornell

[illegible]rry Guill had been a residen[illegible] Wellsville about four years. H[illegible] employed at the Tompkins [illegible] as a driver of the delivery [illegible] and boarded with Frank [illegible]ey, on Coats street. He is [illegible]ved by a wife and three [illegible] children, in Hornell, and [illegible] brothers, Robert and Charles, [illegible] Hornell and [illegible] Bradley [illegible]

PROPOSES NATIONAL DEFENSE HIGHWAY

Bill Introduced in House of Representatives to Build and Maintain a Highway Around the Unied States.

Representative Wm. D. Stephens of the tenth district of California has introduced into the House of Representatives a bill known as H. R. 3667, which has as its object the acquirng and construction and maintenance of a national defense highway. It would provide employment for citizens of the United States, and educate them in how to defend the country.

It is supposed that the states through which the highway passes will give the right of way gladly, much of which may already be built, provided the national government maintains them.

The bill if adopted will provide the following:

A National Highway circling the United States within its borders, and running strategically near the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf Coasts, as well as our Northern and Southern Boundary lines.

A National Highway, to be used in times of peace by automibiles, auto trucks and other vehicles for commercial and healthful purposes.

A National Highway extraordinarily useful, when war threatens or we are attacked. Over it men in greatest numbers and munitions and supplies can be transported quickly to any point north, south, east or west.

A National Highway, 10,000 miles long, that will give work at good wages for many years to at least 100,000 American citizens in good times and to several times that number in "hard times." The employment of new men periodically, will add greatly to our trained reserves.

A National Highway providing physical and mental drill for all manual and clerical employees—thus fitting hundreds of thousands of young men for national defense—and to be better heads of families.

You can assist in passing such a Bill. Advise your Senators and Representatives to work for it. Ask your automobile and other associations to boost it. Give the bill all publicity possible. If sufficient publicity can be obtained, Congress will pass such a measure.

This is the most sensible proposition yet suggested for defensive preparedness. Should our country be attacked by a foreign foe we would be prepared to mobilize our army one hundred per cent. sooner if we had such a system of national highways encircling the country. And in time we [illegible]

ANTI-REACTIONARY OR ROOSEVELT

Was Sentimentof New York Stat Progressives in conference Saturday. Republicans can take choice and responsibility.

The county chairmen of the Progressive party from almost all the sixty-two counties in the state met Saturday at state headquarters and recommended to the primaries as delegates-at-large to the Progressive National Convention in Chicago, Oscar S. Straus, chairman of the Public Service Commission, and Horace S. Wilkinson, of Syracuse. The alternates named were Judge Virgil K Kellogg, of Watertown, and Elon H. Hooker, of New York.

The state Progressive leaders were quick to question the sincerity of the story coming from William Barnes and his friends in the Republican Old Guard that Colonel Roosevelt had promised to support ex-Senator Root and other Republican possibilities if any of them should receive the nomination for President. They declared that the Colonel would not support any Republican candidate who was not satisfactory to the rank and file of the Progressive party.

George W. Perkins, chairman of the executive committee of the Progressive National Committee characterized the Root-Roosevelt [illegible] a dream on Mr. Barne's part. With the approval of Mr. Perkins, J. W. McGrath, Colonel Roosevelt's secretary, gave out a letter which Mr. Roosevelt wrote to a Bull Moose friend last December, purporting to show that he intended to continue to act with complete accord with the Progressive leaders throughout the country.

This letter was dated December 14, 1915, and addressed to Charle W. Fear, of Joplin, Mo., Progressive leader in the northern section of that state, who had written to ask the Colonel what course should be pursued this year. The letter follows:

"My dear Mr. Fear: I thank you for your letter and appreciate it. I remember well the active part you took and the valuable work you did in the last campaign. But, even to such a loyal friend as you, it is not possible for me to write my opinion as to the course that ought to be followed next year. By repeated and uncomfortable experience I have found that anything I say in a private letter or in a private interview, even with my good and stanch friends, is almost certain in the course of repetition to be misunderstood and misinterpreted. Accordingly, I must have it definitely understood that I am not expected to say anything unless I speak in public over my own signature. For the last few months I have been so absorbed in the question of natational defence and national preparedness to defend our honor and interest abroad, and in the even greater question of real Americanism in this republic, that I have not been able even to think of other matters. As regards the Progressive party, if you will consult Progressives like George W. Perkins, Wilkinson and Childs, in New York; Hale, in Massachusetts; Flinn and VanValkenberg, in Pennsylvania William Allen White and Victor Murdock, in Kansas; Ickes, in Illinois; Lee, in Indiana; Hiram Johnson, Meyer Lissner and Chester Rowell, in California; John Parker, in Louisiana; Pope in Michigan; Herbert Knox Smith, in Connecticut; Kirkwood, in Missouri—in short, if you will consult the Progressive leaders with whom I have been acting for four years and with whom I intend to continue to act, you will find that they and I are in hearty and complete accord. In local affairs I cannot under any circumstance give any advice. Sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

A close friend of Colonel Roosevelt sized up his attitude in this manner:

"Colonel Roosevelt would not take the Republican nomination unless the Republican leaders came to him and insisted that he was the one man who could put up the best fight against Wilson and the Wilson policies. He would not consider a nomination which had any element of manipulation or trickery in regard to the Southern delegates.

T. R. Says Progressives First

"I can't conceive of a situation in which Colonel Roosevelt would support Senator Root, or any other Republican nominee, who would not be satisfactory to the Progressives. If the Republicans should get back of Root it would mean that they believed the 3,000,000 voters who voted for Taft in 1912 were right and the 4,500,000 voters who voted for Roosevelt were wrong."

Major General Leonard Wood, who was mentioned as one of the emissaries of Colonel Roosevelt to ex-Senator Root to give the latter the assurance that he would have the Colonel's support if nominated, denied yesterday that he had acted in that capacity.

Mr. Perkins' comment on the Root-Roosevelt story was:

"Oh, I don't think Mr. Barne's statement as to which one of the various reactionaries Mr. Roosevelt will support needs any comment from me. If Mr. Barnes is not careful, I am afraid the Attorney General will bring suit against him under the Serman law, charging him with having acquired a monopoly on dreams."

The county chairmen held an Executive meeting at state headquarters and later lunched at the Hotel Manhattan, where each chairman reported the conditions in his county.

Walter A. Johnston, chairman of the state committee, presided at the luncheon. Dr. George S. Hobbie, of Niagara County, declared that he found a rapidly growing sentiment for Colonel Roosevelt in both the old parties.

Democrats For Roosevelt

"Democrat after Democrat has come to me," he said, "and told me that Teddy was the man, after all."

A statement was issued by the county chairmen after the meeting in which they heartily indorsed the platform suggested by the national committee in Chicago, on January 11, as an outline of the big issues in the coming campaign. Referring to the attitude to be taken at Chicago, they stated:

"In this turning point in the world's history we will not stick on details. We will lay aside partisanship and prejudice, but we will never surrender the principles for which we stand and have stood, and we will follow only a leader whom we know stands for them and is able to put them through."

The statement said further:

"We desire further to point out and emphasize the extremely important fact that world-wide conditions are now such that no platform by any party can be drafted this year that can possibly anticipate the momentous questions that will confront the civilized world during the four years that constitutet our next Presidential term.

"We especially commend the spirit evidenced by our national committee in Chicago in January to the effect that the questions of party strife and party advantages should be subordinated to the nation's present needs, and we pledge ourselves to do anything within our power to carry out in the broadest spirit such a programme. Should our effort in this direction fail we are confident the responsibility for the result will not rest on the Progressives."

Several informal speeches were made at the end of the luncheon. One of the speakers quoted former Senator Edgar T. Brackett as having said: "I am in Theodore Roosevelt's corner." Another committeeman declared that the Republican Convention would not nominate Colonel Roosevelt, but that the Progressives would, and they would elect him.

ELMIRA ASKS FOR VOTE ON LIQUOR QUESTION

Would Have Legislature Enact Special Law—Council Acted on Petition of Voters

Elmira, Feb. 21.—The Common Council of this city to-night voted to ask the Legislature for a special law permitting a referendum here on the question of liquor license. The council's action was taken following the receipt of a petition signed by 7,500 names, representing about one-half of the voters of the city.

A delegation will leave for Albany to-morrow to present the request to the Legislature. The action of the Elmira citizens is based upon the memorandum of Governor Morton when he signed the Raines law in 1896, to the effect that "if the people in any city should desire an opportunity to vote on this question (local option) the Legislature will doubtless accord it that right; and public opinion may soon warrant an amendment to the bill, providing for local option in all cities. On principle there seems to be no reason why local option should not be applied to cities as well as to rural communities."

Elmira is the first third class city to send such a petition to Albany on the strength of Governor Morton's comment.

FOUND DEAD

Lorenzo B. Green was found dead at the home of Frank Dawson on Barney street, last Friday morning, where he had been visiting. Bronchial pneumonia was given as the cause of death. Deceased was about sixty years of age. The body was taken to Almond to the home of Mrs. R. P. Brown.

"CHILD OF THE ATTIC."

Home Talent Production to Be Given By Lucy Stone Club Under Direction of Miss Christine Lewis, Tuesday, Feb. 29th.

"Child of the Attic," a play, in three acts, will be given by local talent at the Auditorium, Tuesday evening, Feb. 29th, under the auspices of the Lucy Stone Club. The Club has been most fortunate in securing the services of Miss Christine Lewis, a well known dramatic coach, to produce this famous play. Miss Lewis staged "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" two years ago, and promises that this play will be as successful as Mrs. Wiggs.

The "Child of the Attae" has been arranged for children and adults. The story is one of great interest, dealing with the theme of the little girl, who was put into a private school by a rich father and has all the advantages of wealth until the principal of the school finds that the child has supposedly lost her fortune. She is then put into the attic and treated "worse than the scullery maid." The closing scene deals with the father's friend discovering the child, in destitute condition. She is restored again to happiness. The story is simply but dramatically told, the play introduces games, drills, etc. The most careful study has been made of the entire production. There are many humorous as well as dramatic touches. Not a dull moment. The play is especially interesting because it has a decided plot which works out to a final climax.

Specialties will introduce folk dancing from the lower grades of Andover school, the famous song hit "America" will be sung by Boy Scouts and Camp-fire Girls. "Say-Little Girl Sextette" sung and danced by six couples chosen from Andover's best dancers.

Admission, adults 25 and 35c. Children 25c. Seats reserved for children any part of house.

Seats go on sale at Sugar Bowl, Monday, Feb. 28th, a. m., at nine o'clock.

AUDITORIUM SATURDAY EVENING

Myrtle Stedeman in "The Wild Olive"

In the picturization of Basil King's fascinating novel "The Wild Olive", the screen is given a most picturesque setting for an intensely interesting story. Miss Stedeman's interpretation of the Wild Olive is all that could be desired, her beauty and naive sympathy lending a delightful charm to the character. In Forest Stanley we have a "Norrie Ford" that is particularly pleasing in that dashing adventurous role.

Our "B. B. B" column always does the business.
