Why Mourn For Slenderness When the Ready-to-Wear Garment Trade Makes Specials For Stouts

Because a woman is stout does not mean she cannot obtain good figure lines in modish models and look equally as well as her more slender sister. This applies to Suits, Coats and Dresses—and just now at the initial stage of the spring's needs—you'll find a wider choice than at any later period. We covet the privilege of showing you through our "stout" section.

Sign Boards on the Up-road

By Hamilton B. Williams

After the death of Marcus Aurelius, most pious and gentle, the people made images of their emperor and placed them among their household gods.

He was also deified, a rather rare honor; but true deification is his whose memory is given a sacred shrine at human hearths.

The outstanding reason why Aurelius bulked so big among people was that he was the embodiment of a gentleman's heart.

A gentleman's heart is the product of honor and the other elemental virtues which come from the hand of God.

When one's religion produces a true man and woman to whom we may add the word "gentle," religion has flowered.

People have exhausted praise-words in attempting to measure Jesus, but no better definition of that most beautiful man-heart may be found than that of Sir Thomas Mallory who called him, that "goodly knight, Lord Jesus Christ, of Jerusalem."

He hath fought in the list these many years the battles of the weak and poor and downmost; and fed the hungry and garmented the naked; and opened up Lord Father's House. (Blessed be His name.)

Marcus Aurelius began each day with spiritual fortification. He named over the difficulties he should likely encounter and prepared his heart that he might close up the day eminent in self-possession.

Said he: "Begin the morning by saying to thyself, I shall meet with the busybody, the ungrateful, arrogant, deceitful, envious, unsocial. All these happen . . . by ignorance."

What he should do he determined to be this: "To act against one another is contrary to nature." And in another place this code: "The best way of avenging thyself is not to become like the wrong-doers."

What shall we do with the smiling, flattering enemy? Treat him with the regard he should merit. If by any chance, he is not dead to virtue, he may be ashamed and do better.

"Overcome evil with good," says Paul.

"Do good unto those that despitefully use you and persecute you," says Jesus.

The gentleman never descends to retaliation.

That is jungle-law.

He is well assured of the empire of his own soul, who beset, nagged at, jibed, assailed, misinterpreted, is still able to do good to the enemy.

We must never let the hurter know his darts have found us.

Like one of the Knights of Arthur, smitten to the death, he kept a smiling face—and his enemy never knew that he was smitten . . .

The Christ, in whom the highlanders of the earth are named, was such a serene person. He was perfected through the processes of enduring, and in showing a benign humanity withal, shows us that it is possible to master the tribulations of life.

The Bible is a good book for strugglers to read. It seems peculiarly filled with courage for those who have a hard time, and its choicest promises are for those who overcome. God seems very compassionate toward the folks who have the rough trails and bleak hills, and the comfort of the Master is for the weary and heavy laden and for the uttermost people.

Mercy, compassion distinguish the true children of Most High.

Courtesy is religion's beautiful credential.

Honor is religion's irresistible dynamic.

Love never faileth.

CONCERNING SUFFRAGE

Last month came the news from equal suffrage California that in the city of San Francisco the drought abatement act had been enforced against four immoral houses. The houses were closed for a year and their contents confiscated. It was noted that in a similar manner every immoral resort in the state bids fair to be wiped out.

Last month also came the report of the committee of fourteen which for twelve years has waged war upon vice in New York City. It noted that the district attorney, in spite of repeated promises, had failed to bring action against immoral houses under the new abatement act of this state. The same up-to-date law is on the statute books of each state. The difference lies in its enforcement.

In an address before the Centur Club of Philadelphia Dr. Wiley is reported as declaring that the pure food law is being throttled rather than helped by the referee board of consulting experts; that benzoate of soda is still being used, that pure flour is menaced by Congress. Dr. Wiley is a firm champion of vote for women as a means of securing the enforcement of the many good laws—now on the statute books.

Press reports from Petrograd declare that in Galicia the Germans sent women, probably Russian, to work in positions most exposed to Russian fire. Some anti-suffrage offical should write those women—if any of them are still alive—and warn them never to work for the right to vote for if they should be given the vote, they would forfeit the chivalry of men.

An open letter in a recent New York Tribune suggested that a law be passed compelling every immigrant to take out his first naturalization papers at the end of his first year or be reported, and further suggested that arrangements could be made so that he might cast his vote in his native language, if he did not speak the language of the country in which he had qualified for citizenship.

The suffragists were not slow in retorting that to spend time and money forcing immigrants to become voters, and in providing machinery for them to vote in strange tongues, while Congress was refusing to pass a bill permitting half the adult English-speaking citizens of the United States to vote, savored both of the wasteful and the ridiculous.

"While the Americanization movement is at full swing" said a recent Kansas City Post, "Why not let us Americanize our women. The ballot would make them all full fledged citizens," and the editor goes on to enumerate all the qualities of good citizenship and finds that women have them all. He knows what he is talking about too, for he either prints his paper in equal suffrage Kansas or just across the river in Missouri and in either case he knows from observation just how valuable women are as "full-fledged citizens."

SECRETARY HUGO TO SPEAK IN ROCHESTER

Will Address Newspaper Publishers' Association at a Luncheon

Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo has accepted an invitation to be the guest of the Western New York Newspaper Publishers' Association, and to speak at a luncheon, in connection with the annual meeting which is to be held at the Powers Hotel in Rochester on Saturday, April 15. Other speakers will be Harry Goodwin of the Myers Advertising Agency of Rochester, and Chester C. Platt of the Batavia Times. Mr. Platt's topic will be "The Publisher's Responsibility for his Advertising Columns."

The association will meet at 10:30 a. m., for the appointment of committees and the reception of annual reports. The luncheon will be held at 12 o'clock, followed by the speaking and the election of officers.

The Western New York Newspaper Association has 75 names on its membership roll. It is an organization of weekly newspapers, but at the April meeting, the editors of some of the leading daily newspapers in Western New York will be invited to attend the luncheon and meet Secretary Hugo.

Wonderful Progress of the John Hancock Life Insurance Co.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the 53rd annual statement of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, which has now become the largest life insurance company in the state of Massachusetts, where the interests of policyholders have always been religiously safeguarded and no old line life company has ever failed.

The record of this sterling institution is one of remarkable achievement. Twenty years ago, after thirty-three years of existence, its assets were $7,664,909.00 and in 1915 they reached the astonishing total of $127,361,389.00, while its surplus or safety fund is $7,730,205.00, a sum in excess of its total assets in 1895. This wonderful progress indicates the confidence of the insuring public and is substantial evidence of the way in which the institution of life insurance is recognized in these days when the value of other investments is so uncertain. The prudent man has discovered that the certain way to protect himself and his dependents is by insurance in a solid, Mutual surplus distributing company. The old John Hancock stands for everything that is best in life insurance and offers its protection to all who are physically fit to enter its membership.

National Capital

Interest from the Seat of Government by the News Special Correspondent, J. E. Jones

PRESIDENT AND THE NEWSPAPERS

Washington, D. C., April 1. — That the President of the United States should find it necessary to warn the people of the country against the lying misrepresentations of their newspapers, is a sad commentary upon the state to which American journalism has fallen. Evidently the pleasant flipancy of speech that "you can believe anything you see in the newspapers" has become a tragic fact. Since the beginning of the European war there have been more evil influences at work than at any time before in our history, manufacturing public sentiment through the press and moving pictures, in order to promote commercial propositions or influence the foreign policy of the United States government. Perhaps those who are directing the affairs of the United States Army in the punitive expedition into Mexico do not know just what conditions our military forces will be obliged to face. In any event the administration feels that it has a sufficient force and enough intelligence to handle the situation. It would be a miserable commentary upon the worth of our government if this were not true. Sensational newspapers have been trying very hard to frighten the American public into the belief that some terrible things are in store as a result of our troubles with Villa. Practically every large newspaper is represented in Washington, and the sentiment among the men who actually do the clean journalism from the Capital, enthusiastically sustains the position of the President. They regard his recent statement as a defense of the truth in print.

Emerges From the Pigeon-hole

A rather extraordinary condition with reference to the Stevens bill has come to light. This bill is directed against the mail-order houses and the cut-throat price cutters of the large city department stores, who have been waxing fat and rich at the expense of country merchants and the small community. More than one-half of the members of the House of Representatives have pledged themselves to support the Stevens bill. Notwithstanding that an insistent demand is being made in its favor by those who believe in reputable merchandising, a standpat Southern Congressman, who by virtue of the accident of seniority of service has become Chairman of the committee having this bill in charge, had the remarkable authority to prevent hearings upon the bill. It is not at all important that this Congressman is opposed to the legislation, but as an illustration of the failures of democracy this instanace is of interest, since a single member successfully prevented a majority of the House members from considering the measure. It is said that the President became apprehensive, but there might be an explosion on the floor of the House, and quietly though very effectively, wielded a big stick. In consequence the Stevens bill, which provides the manufacturers of nationally advertised goods may establish retail prices, is to be considered in the committee; and the legislation will be brought before Congress. It may reasonably be expected that protection will be provided against the pirates of reputable merchandising, and that forceful effects of federal legislation will interfere with the gentle art of giving the American purchasers a good deal less than the consumers figure they are paying for.

Senator Taggart Comes to Town

One of the names that has stood for mechanical operation of politics has been that of Mr. Thomas Taggart, now United States Senator of Indiana, by virtue of an appointment made by the Governor of his own creating. Taggart will be given a fair show in the upper house of Congress, but there are lots of people who are speculating as to the reasons why so many of the men who are discredited in political life, even so recently as the last presidential election, are now coming into active charge of the legislative machinery at Washington, namely Taggart, Cannon, Longworth, Hill and a bunch of others among the list.

Stampeding Uncle Sam

That Americans are capable of keeping cool heads has been effectively demonstrated by the attitude of Congress toward the movement which has been boomed with brass bands, cannon, oratory and greased editorial utterances, intended to stampede the country in the interests of a huge military policy. Most people who have done serious thinking over the matter, have devised their own ideas as to how far a peaceful Republic that has no desire to conquer other nations, should go in the way of "preparedness." The results seem to indicate that there will be a small increase in the army and that military training of some sort will receive federal encouragement. Increased appropriations by our Navy also seem probable. But these gentlemen, who had it in mind that they were going to put Uncle Sam in pawn with armament and ammunition manufactures, and the steel interests, have missed their bet.

Restricting Immigration

Restricted immigration is like the ghost in the fable—it always comes back. Presidents have vetoed the bills enacted by Congress, establishing the literacy test and restricting immigration, but that never has reported such bills coming before later Congresses. The present bill has many sensible provisions; but it is distasteful to the Japanese Government inasmuch as it practically restricts people from that country coming to the United States. The Japanese have, of their own accord, prevented their citizens from immigrating to this country, and there is no danger that they will raise the bars. California Congressmen say that the Japanese have been in absolute control of immigration, and admit that they have kept faith with the United States. However there seem to be some people about Washington who are never content unless they are stirring up the Japanese situation. This feature of the immigration bill has attracted a great deal of attention.

"Expunged From the Record"

Washington has recently had two very clear illustrations of the strangulation of free speech. In one instance Mr. Allen Benson, nominee of the Socialists for the presidency made a statement before a Committee of Congress and he was warned by the chairman that his remarks were distasteful. Thereupon Mr. Benson made a little speech about the way they do things in Russia, and asked the Committee whether it was doing business upon the Russian plan. Thereupon the Committee "expunged" Benson's remarks from the records; which from an official standpoint left what he had said just as though it had never been uttered. The inconsistency of the action is shown in the fact that the press of the country gave more space to Benson's statements than to any other event of the sessions of the [illegible] Another more recent case was that wherein "Cyclone" Davis inserted in the Congressional Record what was characterized as a "vituperative and dununciatory" speech. It was red hot stuff, and was carried quite generally by the press. And yet it was "expunged." The process of striking from the records [illegible] real in its operation, as all the damage is done before the expunging process occurs. It [illegible] more than a motion to "strike out" to put a social reformer like Benson or "Cyclone" Davis out of com-

The Return of Theodore

The Republicans in the National Capital have very closely observed the nature of the comment that has appeared in the public press since the return of Colonel Roosevelt from southern waters. Conservative old Republicans declare that they would rather be hanged than have Colonel Roosevelt nominated; and the Roosevelt shouters insist that there is no way of winning without "Teddy." The suggestion of his name always starts an argument—and the Democrats who are in office want to stay there through the continuance of President Wilson's leadership, are the only ones who have any fun out of the dissension.

Values that are uncommonly offered in stores should be uncommonly well advertised.

BY OAT SMUT

The country as a whole loses each year about $20,000,000 from oat smut, and at least one-tenth of this amount, or $2,000,000, is the present annual loss in New York State, according to figures just issued by the Cornell experiment station.

Now that New York State farmers are preparing to sow their oat crops, the college calls renewed attention to the well-known blackened appearance of oat heads, which is commonly called oat smut or loose smut of oats, and says it is responsible for a much greater annual loss than is generaly supposed.

The fungus which causes this disease brings about the loss in two ways. There is a reduction in yield due to a certain percentage of the heads being smutted. This is ordinarily recognized. There is a further loss not generally recognized which is caused by the fungus killing out many of the young seedlings and stunting the growth of others, which, as a result, do not head out well.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, the field loss in the United States in the year 1911 from the loose smut of oats was 4 per cent of the crop or 36,891,920 bushels, which represents a money loss of $16,586,520. Calculating the smitted heads to average 4 per cent, which some years is low, there has been a loss every year since 1909 of $16,000,000 to $23,000,000.

New York contributes her full share towards this loss. The state experiment station reports the loss to be from 8.5 to 10 per cent. in 1884, and an average loss of 8.5 per cent. with occasional losses of 20 per cent. and even 30 per cent. in 1886. A large number of counts made by farm bureau agents last year in fifteen counties of the state showed 16½ per cent. of smutted heads. Last year's crop in New York is estimated to be 54,270,000 bushels, valued at $24,422,000. If the smut is estimated to be but 10 per cent., there is a loss to the farmers of the state of over $2,000,000.

This loss may be looked upon as a smut tax of which everyone who grows smutty oats contributed. The college authorities make this query: Does it not seem foolish to pay such a tax when it can be easily avoided at a cost of material of less than a cent per bushel of seed oats by treatment with formaldehyde? One pint of the 40 per cent. solution should be diluted with 40 gallons of water. The seed should be sprinkled with this until it is wet, after which it should be thrown into a pile, left covered with blankets or bags for four hours or more. It may then be dried and sown.

WHEN THAT CORN IS BUMPED

What happens? You may answer the question. The only positive way to avoid that painful experience is to let a Raccoon Corn Plaster remove the corn. Just buy a package from your druggist and apply a Raccoon tonight. To-morrow your corn suffering will be ended. Are you willing to do this much to obtain relief? 17

Relief Is Found By After Grippe, Colds Bad Blood

Take a blood cleanser and alterative that starts the liver and stomach into vigorous action, called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because of one of its principal ingredients—the Golden Seal plant. It assists the body to manufacture rich red blood which feeds the heart—nerves—brain and organs of the body. The organs work smoothly like machinery running in oil. You feel clean, strong and strenuous instead of tired, weak and faint. Start to take it today and before another day has passed, the impurities of the blood will begin to leave your body through the eliminative organs, and in a few days you will know that the bad blood is passing out, and new, rich, pure blood is filling your veins and arteries.

Women of Empire State

East Aurora, N. Y.—"I found myself run down and required some reliable medicine to build me up. My blood was badly out of order. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it helped me at once. I persisted in this treatment and improved all the time. Finally I was so well that I dropped it. I have always thought very highly of Dr. Pierce's remedies and shall be glad to speak words of praise concerning them."—MRS. JOHN COLLINS, Corner Oakwood and Payne Streets, East Aurora, N. Y.

Some one of these days a man will advertise "For Sale" the very thing you so much need and want, but feel that you can't afford to buy "at first hand."

RHEUMATIC PAIN STOPPED

The drawing of muscles, the soreness, stiffness and agonizing pain of Rheumatism quickly yield to Sloan's Liniment. It stimulates circulation to the painful part. Just apply as directed to the sore spots. In a short time the pain gives way to a tingling sensation of comfort and warmth. Here's proof—"I have had wonderful relief since I used your Liniment on my knee. To think one application gave me relief. Sorry I hadn't space to tell you the history. Thanking you for what your remedy has done for me."—James S. Ferguson, Philada, Pa. Sloan's Liniment kills pain. 25c at Druggists.—Advertisement.

AVOID SPRING COLDS

Sudden changes, high winds, shifting seasons cause colds and grippe, and these spring colds are annoying and dangerous and are likely to turn into a chronic summer cough. In such cases take a treatment of Dr. King's New Discovery, a pleasant Laxative Tar Syrup. It soothes the cough, checks the cold and helps break up an attack of grippe. Its already prepared, no mixing or fussing. Just ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery. Tested and treated for over 40 years.—Advertisement.
