ACCOUNTING FOR SALT LAKE

Fact That Well-Known Body of Water Has No Outlet Is Reason Why It Is Saline.

Great Salt Lake has no outlet. Jordan river, which enters it from the south, is the outlet of Utah lake. Bear river, coming from the north, carries the outflow from Bear lake. The waters of Utah and Bear lakes and of Jordan and Bear river are fresh, and so is the water of Weber river, the third great tributary of Great Salt lake, but the lake into which the three rivers flow is saline. It is saline because it has no outlet.

The fresh waters of the rivers contain some saline matter, but the quantity is too small to be discovered by taste.

As stated by the chemist, in parts per million, the quantity seems minute, but when account is taken of the total volume of water brought by the streams to the lake in a year their burden of saline matter is found to be really great, amounting annually to more than five hundred thousand tons.

Year by year and century by century the water which they pour into the lake is evaporated, but the dissolved solids cannot escape in that way and therefore remain.

They have accumulated until the lake water is approximately saturated, holding nearly as much mineral matter as it can retain in solution. The lake contains over five billion tons of common salt and nine hundred million tons of Glauber salt (sodium sulphate) as well as other mineral matter.

Here's the Backbone ---of the--- Chautauqua

It's in the lecture numbers. Music and entertainment there will be—and a-plenty of it. But the MEAT is in the five lectures. Talks like these are pace setters and thought stimulators. They make a man grow overnight. They lift him up as by his boot straps. They set him thinking in new trains of thought. They broaden his horizon and give him a bigger look at things.

Each day of the Chautauqua brings its special message in form of a lecture. We'll look at four of the five.

Professor E. J. Ward

of the Federal Bureau of Education at Washington is the founder of the social center movement. And what is that? It is a plan of getting neighbors together to talk over things that are best for the community and when they have settled on something to go out and make it a fact. It means the development of a stronger community sentiment. It is a movement that has the unstinted indorsement of two ex-presidents, Roosevelt and Taft, and of President Wilson. It is sweeping the nation. Hear Ward on the second day. He'll tell you all about it.

Judge Lee S. Estelle

the great juvenile court judge from Omaha, the man who established one of the earliest special courts for juvenile offenders and has saved thousands of "kiddies" from lives of crime. He has built a Child Saving Institution and has taken many a youngster out of the gutter and set him on his feet and seen him grow into useful citizenship. His lecture he calls "The Law, the Lass and the Lad." Hear him on the third night.

Dr. George P. Bible

It is the uplift and the inspiration in the Chautauqua that has carried it into more than 3,000 communities in ten years. No boy or girl will amount to anything unless they have a powerful INCENTIVE. And it is these great, powerful inspirational lectures that have stirred thousands to greater efforts. On the fourth day.

Lorenzo Zwickey

on art, a lecture on home decoration and the choice of colors effectively illustrated with the use of crayon and a large easel. An electric lighting device adds much to the interest of Mr. Zwickey's art entertainment Fifth day.

The first day lecturer is announced under a special heading.

It reduces the cost more than half. Get it of the committee before the tent goes up. It will cost less now than later. Every member of your family should have one. And remember, besides the lectures, there is a whole host of musical numbers!

AUTOMOBILE TRIP A GRAND SUCCESS

Nature Contributed to the Andover Advertising Pleasure, Journey Most Pleasant—No Accidents.

The automobile advertising trip under the auspices of the Community Co-operative Club Tuesday was a great success in every way. The weather conditions were ideal and the roads fine.

Forty-four automobiles containing 118 men lined up on Main street at 7:30. Twenty-two cars carried five passengers each and two, four passengers and the two instruments.

The start was begun at 7:50 from Main street, out Elm to Church, out Church to Greenwood, through Greenwood to Main, and down the state road to Hornell.

Andover streets were thronged with women giving the boosters a cheer as they started on their mission of advertising Andover and a day's outing.

The first stop was made at Canisteo, but at Alfred Station they almost drowned the boys sang Andover Rally Song and distributed Andover booklet telling of the advantages enjoyed by the visitors of Andover, and contained a fine half-tone illustration of a birdseye view of the village.

At business places in the village, excepting the banks, and Fowler's, were all closed for the day. The banks had the right to close.

The first stop was made in Hornell, where the business men gave the party a warm welcome, although they did not know we were coming. About 250 Andover booklets were left with Hornell people. One of Hornell's leading business men commented because Hornell was not on the map on the inside page, but when it was explained that Wellsville and Hornell were only the suburbs of Andover, as shown on the map, he did forgave us.

Hornell people paid Andover compliments on our ability to pull off such an advertising trip successfully.

On leaving Hornell the line was formed and the decorated cars passed Broad and Main streets, going for Keuka Lake out Seventh street.

Although the party passed through Bath and Hammondsport they were made until reaching Keuka Hotel, at Keuka Lake where Mrs. Young had prepared for the Andover delegates on her caught fish, chicken and other viands.

One hundred-seventeen dinners were served. It was 12:30 when we reached the hotel and the last table was seated at 12:45, nearly 3 o'clock before all were served.

During the stay at Keuka Lake the Andover party had the pleasure of seeing one of the Curtiss planes make a flight and a dive at the hotel. Many expressed themselves as being well for the trip, by this sight alone. It had been advertised they would carry passengers in an aeroplane for $1 per minute and many of the Andover fellows expressed themselves as being anxious to make the flight but they had not put along their big pocketbooks. There would have been a few in the party, however, who would have sailed in the air and it not been for the fact that the fellow, who run the airship said he did not take passengers.

The return trip began at 3 o'clock and was very pleasant. At Hammondsport their Mayor, Percy Green, a former Allegany county boy, welcomed the party a few minutes. At Bath the decorated cars paraded the streets of Main street and return, passing out literature, and went to the Old Soldier's Home.

The first car arriving at the Soldiers and Sailors Home discovered Comrade John Wilcox seated on a bench beside the beautiful park. We all stopped, one hundred and eighteen of us, and proceeded to give John one hundred and eighteen handshakes. The old man seemed to appreciate the visit and gave the last handshake as vigorous a squeeze as he had the first.

The band was playing in the pavilion in the center of the large park. We marched out and presented them with Andover booklets, when they played another selection for our entertainment, the whole bunch marching in step around the bandstand. We then responded by singing to them "Andover For Me," and giving three cheers for the red, white and blue. The old veterans all saluted our party as we passed, as each car was decorated with Old Glory.

The boosters left the Soldiers Home about 5 p. m., and started for our home, some arriving at seven, others later, but all in good season, after passing a most pleasant day in singing, "Andover For Me" and boosting the old home town until many voices could hardly croak.

TRIP SIDELIGHTS

D. Remington says that the Boosters owe him a nickle. He had been after his milk and coming home waited to see the parade pass by. It took so long that the milk soured.

The Kaiser stopped shooting his fire crackers one day, it would seem, for the Boosters to go on their auto trip.

They say President Faisant had his speedometer fixed befor starting on the trip.

B. B. Hamm, in his new 8-cylinder Oldsmobile, asked the pilot car for more road—he got it.

No tire troubles in any of the 24 cars, making 120 miles each.

Frank Horan may be able to drive South Hill Holsteins with his big Studebaker, but he found that Bath Bosses resent such.

You can't drive Andover cars by a former Andover man's home. No one knows just why we stopped where we did to line the cars up to go into Bath together, but the reason was that we were opposite the fine farm home of Rev. Daniel Redmond, a former Andover man.

Ladies, no need of being jealous of your husbands as no married man stood any show with the landlady when the Mayor and "Dib" were around.

We give the following account of the trip as reported from other papers:

From the Hornell Evening Tribune-Times:

ANDOVER MEN VISIT HERE

A delegation of about one hundred men from Andover passed through Hornell early this morning, on their way to Keuka Lake. They called it an automobile advertising trip, and were extending the glad hand to Hornell people for some twenty minutes. They came into the city singing "Andover For Me," with the band playing and making enough noise for a town three times its size. During their stop here they distributed a fine little booklet entitled "Andover," giving the location and advantages of Andover for business, residence and pleasure. On the inside pages was a fine half-tone birdseye view of that charming little village eighteen miles west of this city.

This advertising and pleasure trip is being pulled off under the auspices of the "Community Co-operative Club" of that village organized about a year ago, since which time things have been humming around Andover.

The trip to-day is being made to Keuka Lake, where a fish dinner is prepared for them upon their arrival, at Mrs. Young's hotel. After dinner a good time will be had by fishing, boating and playing base ball, until time for the return trip.

Every business place in Andover is closed down tight for the day, excepting the banks and one notion store. You can't buy even a pound of beefsteak or a collar button in Andover to-day. It is their one holiday.

From Hornell Dept., Elmira Advertiser.

ANDOVER BOOMERS VISIT HORNELL

Two Hundred Residents Go on Atuo Tour Distributing Booklets About Village.

Hornell, June 6.—Over 40 automobiles, containing about 200 residents of Andover, N. Y., paid this city a short visit while on their way to Keuka Lake this morning. Each auto was gaily decorated for the trip. While in the city the occupants of the autos circulated small booklets containing a large picture of Andover, which told of the many advantages of this thriving and wideawake town. In the back of the book these progressive residents had a map showing the transportation facilities to the large cities. This was entitled, "A Hint to Manufacturers," with the sentence, "With the Cheapest Power on Earth." This is supposed to mean the natural gas advantages found in and around this town.

The cars, which were of every make and description, lined up for over a block on Main street, and one of the members of the party delivered a sort of eulogy on Andover. After an hour's visit they continued on their way to the lake by the way of Seneca street. If the trip accomplishes nothing else, it will serve to inform the hundreds of residents along the line of their route to Keuka Lake that there is such a place as Andover on the map. Many favorable comments from residents of this city were heard pertaining to the "liveness" of the people of Andover community.

THIRTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

The Farther Lights of the Baptist Church Celebrate Origin With Banquet

At the home of Mrs. R. B. Burrows, the founder, and Miss Marjorie Borden, the President, the Farther Lights celebrated their 35th anniversary, Monday night, June 5th. The tables were decorated with yellow tulips, lillies of the valley and pansies, with attractive water color, toast cards at each place. Tweny-nine guest and members sat down to a very delicious banquet, served by the Ladies Missionary Society.

After the banquet music and toasts were enjoyed, also letters and telegrams from members who could not be present.

The evening ended with a great deal of rejoicing that the society had more than met its apportionment of $36, and that during the 35 years of its existence, $1,250 have been sent to home and foreign missions.

The following guests from out of town were present, Mrs. Minnie Teeple, of Wellsville; Mrs. Rena Reed, of Canisteo; Mrs. Fannie Brundage Langworthy, of Newport, R. I.; Mrs. Lena Brundage Langworthy, of Westerly N. J.; Mrs. Pearl Branch, of Goldsboro, N. C.; Miss Gertrude Peterson, of Belmont; Mrs. Inez Kemp, of Columbus, Ohio; and Mrs. Flora Sullivan, of Albany, N. Y.

"BLACKBIRDS"

At the Auditorium, Wednesday, June 14.

"Blackbirds," in the picturization of which Miss Laura Hope Crews makes her second appearance as a Paramount star is adapted from the drama of the same name in which Miss Crews appeared a whole season at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, and on tour of the United States. The author is Harry James Smith.

This elaborate production is a fitting sequel to Miss Crews' first photoplay, "The Fighting Hope," which has created widespread favorable comment.

Just as Miss Crews in the picturization of "The Fighting Hope" established herself among the great dramatic stars of the screen, "Blackbirds" places her at the top of the list.

SIXTY ATTEND THE JUNE MEETING

Community Co-operative Club Adjourn until September Meeting. Very Pleasant Gathering Adopt New Constitution.

About sixty members of the Community Co-operative Club gathered at I. O. O. F. Hall, Thursday evening, June 1st, for the June meeting and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Miss Florence Williams favored the boosters with a cello solo with piano accompaniment by her sister, Miss Ruth Williams. They also responded with an encore.

The instrumental trio, piano, violin and cornet, by the Misses Williams and Claire Backus, was received with hearty applause.

Rev. H. B. Williams announced for the librarian that they had recently placed on the library shelves a copy of "Community Development," which each member was requested to read.

President J. H. Faisant then gave his monthly inspiration to the members, thanking them and Vice President F. W. Burrows for the kind bouquets thrown his way during his absence at the last meeting. Mr. Faisant emphasized the fact that but for the hearty co-operation of the vice president and other members of the club his efforts would be fruitless. He said he was doing no more than his duty, and only what every man in Andover should do in helping with all his power to build up the beautiful community in which we live.

After the president had finished his remarks he suggested that one and all join in learning and singing Andover's rally song, and it was truly an inspiring spectacl to see the boys marching around the hall singing "Andover, Andover, Andover For Me."

Then came the monthly roll call.

The lunch was served this month by the refreshment committee itself, consisting of W. S. Calhoun, F. J. Raufenbarth and C. E. Brown.

After the luncheon President Faisant called for a report of the committee on Andover's entertainment, and P. C. Berkwater, chairman, reported the success of the recent fair given to raise money for base ball diamond and park improvements. Mr. Berkwater thanked all members who had in any way contributed to the success of the fair. It was then suggested that this same committee on Andover's entertainment should hold a Labor Day celebration on the first Monday in September for the benefit of the club treasury.

An expression of the club was taken as to whether the committee should undertake a Labor Day celebration, and every man jumped to his feet for such a celebration.

George Barrett suggested that the club should acknowledge and thank outside firms who had contributed articles for the fair, also the cast that put on the play. The president appointed George Barrett and P. C. Berkwater, a committee to do that work.

The matter of the forthcoming automobile advertising trip up Keuka Lake was then taken up and discussed. Reports from the committee to make arrangements for the dinner was made by E. J. Atwood and the secretary. The ticket committee reported that the trip would cost $2.50 each and that the tickets were now on sale.

The chair called upon F. W. Burows to report on the assembling of the club to greet Governor Whitman when in Andover. Mr. Burrows said that he had talked with some of the governor's party, including J. S. Phillips of Hornell, and that they had expressed themselves as being greatly delighted and surprised at the turn out. The town and the decorations were well pleasing to the governor and party. They said Andover gave them the best reception of any of the small villages along the line.

Rev. H. B. Williams, chairman of the standing committee on charities, was called upon for a report. He said that since the advent of spring no calls had been received for assistance.
