144 YEARS AGO TO-DAY

The British Man-of-War, the "Gaspe" was Burned in Narraganset Bay by a Party of Americans from Providence.

The pride of England suffered greatly from her several sea defeats administered at the hands of the young country in the New World.

Proud of her navy, Great Britian felt almost secure from the small fleets of many other countries. A grim determination to win made America's victory possible. Did you display half this purpose in connection with your personal affairs and savings there would be no cause for worry regarding the future.

AUDITORIUM, SATURDAY EVENING

Patrons of the Auditorium, and that means everyone in and about the town, will be delighted to have the opportunity to see petite Marie Doro in the gripping play of love and adventure, "The White Pearl" which is the Paramount feature for Saturday night. The thrilling scenes at sea, including the shipwreck, will keep the audience almost breathless while the scenes among the gentle folks of old Japan will give the picture an unusual atmosphere and charm.

CANOEING ON THE DELEWARE

The popularity of canoeing appears to be increasing from year to year. This does not seem remarkable, however, when the great physical benefit to be derived taken into consideration. Paddling is an excellent exercise as it is not too strenuous and it is usually performed in the water of some healthful resort where the purity of the air is unexcelled. Every season new trips are planned by lovers of this fine sport. To those of the canoeing fraternity who are in doubt as to just where to go this season the Erie Railroad Company has just issued a leaflet in which a very interesting cruise on the Delaware river between Deposit and the Water Gap is beautifully described by an enthusiast who makes the trip at least twice a year.

To one who loves the swish of the paddle, the Delaware is an enchanted body of water. Though the wigwam no longer dots its shore, the lovely river is unchanged, save that where the Indian trail once wound its tortuous way, now stretch the ribbons of shining steel and mighty trains go hurling by, bearing the white man from his sweltering cities into the cool valley of the Indian.

To watch the want ads is to be "in" when opportunity knocks.

ES & FAIRBANKS P. CANDIDATES

Was Name Colonel Theodore Roosevelt For President Conditionally Declines Committee Meets.

Republican and Progressive convention finished their work in Chicago, Saturday afternoon, by formally nominating Justice Charles E. Hughes. The latter named ex-President Theodore Roosevelt as their candidate. Mr. Roosevelt declined to run, consistently of course, but it is well understood that he will contest Mr. Hughes' election.

We herewith a little history of Justice Hughes: They say blood will tell. But in the case of Charles E. Hughes, instance of a great party for leadership, it is not easy to trace of the Welsh ancestry, claims on the paternal side.

Welsh are, as a rule, emotional, mercurial, moody, apt to be cold. They have not been famed as truth-tellers. They are narrow—and they are vindictive.

Charles E. Hughes seems to opposite. He may be cold. But he hides the fact. He is unemotional.

Mother's blood, perhaps, accounts for much. For on her side Dutch, Scotch, English, Irish, chiefly Dutch. The result is austere and rigid purist in religion and a cheerless sense of duty. Sobriety and sense of duty he does.

Failed to Win Esteem

A mid-Victorian in his ways of thinking. He has lived and failed to win esteem, not liking, and doubless please him if he was respectable.

Curious to a fault, and a fighter. Not, possibly, a inspire devotion—he is too cold for that, too nearly immune.

A youth he must have been unpopular. What boy could like another boy who, at early age, had pledged his life as Charles E. Hughes did at Baptist father, never to drink alcohol until he had gone to college. That father, to whom was a Baptist minister, settled from Manmouthshire, Wales.

A young Hughes kept his word, when he had ground down by terrific effort, from obstructions (which he is said to have mastered in his nursery at age of seven) to the mysteries of the law, he showed equal energy. At a time when most men of flesh and blood are to be impressionable, he went to work and to the study of books with such persistency and seldom if ever called on the young lady to whom he was engaged and whom he married.

A Dogged Student

Ideals, and perhaps he lacked fame. But all his family friends saw was a hard-working law student, set his mind on becoming a lawyer. If that might have hoped to become a great Sphinx like face testified to the joys of his drab life. At last he refused to bear that name.

After graduating at Columbia and tutoring at Columbia and between whiles as a law student had been admitted as a partner in the firm of Carter, Wilmer & Cravath.

Clients ordered him to drop them or expect a breakdown. In the time, he left his city post as a professor of law at Columbia University.

Head of the great city was a long, though, to go long way. He soon went back to his city and his law practice.

Know of him outside of his own field. He mixed little, if at all, in politics. And yet, when a committee was appointed by the New York Legislature to inquire into "the fraudulent methods and extortions of the gas and electric light companies," it was to Charles E. Hughes that Senator Stevens addressed himself in his search for an honest and untrammelled counsel.

Reticent at First

Till then Mr. Hughes had made no deep or special study of the subjects which he was called upon to probe. And what is more, he showed no desire at all to accept the rather handsome retaining fee Senator Stevens had offered him. It was not clear to him at first that the committee was as honest as it should be.

When he convinced himself that Senator Stevens was in dead earnest, however, he took up the case and—as we know—he won it.

His triumph did not cause him much excitement. He went on plodding, plodding at his dull office work, growing richer daily, but without indecent suddenness, and adding daily to his excellent reputation.

And then his second chance came, with his appointment as chief inquirer for the Armstrong Committee of investigation into the abuses of the office of the life insurance system. The skill, the thoroughness, the unshrinking earnestness with which he fulfilled his mission made him a national figure. In his hand to hand grips with the masters of chicanery against whom he was pitted at the inquiry he amazed not only the committee but also the whole country by his wonderful grasp of figures, his insight into the relationship of facts and his seemingly passionless but unrelenting purpose.

Most Dramatic Moment

The most dramatic moment in the inquiry came when Mr. Hughes succeeded in wresting from a witness the revelation that Mr. Perkins, of the New York Life Insurance Company, kept a book which could throw a glowing light on the illegal donations of the companies to the Republican campaign funds.

Mr. Odell, then the boss of the G. O. P. in New York State, strove vainly to prevent Mr. Hughes from insisting on the production of this book. When he failed he hinted, with startling foresight, that the committee's obstinacy might lead Mr. Hughes to the sacred door of the White House.

The fourth great opportunity of Charles E. Hughes came when, at the wish of President Roosevelt, he was nominated for the New York Governorship. Against him Mr. William Randolph Hearst and the Independent Party waged a Homeric struggle. But, for reasons which need not now be recalled, Mr. Hughes was elected.

Only One on Ticket Elected

The circumstances of his election were unique. He found himself Governor with no brother Republican to help him in his task. But on the other hand, he had the strange and rare advantage of being unpledged, unbossed — a freeman.

In his answer to the offer of the Republican nomination he had simply said:

"I shall accept the nomination without pledge other than to do my duty according to my conscience. If elected it will be my ambition to give the state a sane, efficient and honorable administration, free from the taint of bossism or of servitude to any private interest."

His practical sense, his marvelous mastery of detail in business, again served him well. No one has forgotten the whole-hearted fitness with which he took up the task of checking the corruption of the nefarious corporations. His unselfishness did not suit the Republican leaders. They had never been exactly enthusiastic about his election, they began to look

KERR TURBINE TAKES ONE FROM ANDOVER

Saturday's Opening Game Was Most Exciting and Full of Fine Playing by Both Teams. Score 2-1.

The opening game of Andover's Base Ball team took place last Saturday, when the fast Kerr Turbine team won from Andover by a score of 2-1. It was one of the best games ever played on the Andover diamond, and considering the fact that several of the Andover men had not had hold of a ball before, the game was very satisfactory. The game belonged to Andover up to the seventh inning by a score of 1-0. But things broke bad in the seventh and a two base hit got lost in the long grass in L. P. Crandall's cherry orchard, resulting in a home run which gave Wellsville the winning score.

Saturday's game certainly promises that, when we get our diamond fixed up and the boys have a chance to practice a little this summer, you will see one of the fastest Base Ball teams Andover has ever had.

Following is the score:

AUDITORIUM, SATURDAY EVENING

"The Chorus Lady" With All Star Cast

"The Chorus Lady" is one of the most popular contributions ever made to the Paramount program by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company. It is a picturization of James Forbes' comedy of stage life of to-day—a play which ran two whole years in New York and several seasons uninterruptedly on tour. Thousands have enjoyed its wholesome fun and have laughed through tears at its human qualities.

It is a play which lends itself excellently to picturization. The frequent and compelling incidents which lead to the dramatic climaxes are especially suited to the photodrama. Patricia O'Brian, the brave little chorus girl, who is quick of tongue and big of heart, is represented in splendid fashion. Her sister, Nora O'Brian, who insisted upon going on the stage despite Patricia's warnings, furnishes a human example to thousands of girls thruout the world.

The story of life behind the footlights, across which young women smile is universal in its appeal. The glimpse behind the curtain which hides the world of powder and rouge is a faithful representation of a side of life that never fails to interest.

RINGLING BROS. COMING THIS WAY

World's Biggest Circus and Spectacle "Cinderella" Announced For Earley Date

Announcement is made that on Friday, June 23rd, Ringling Bros. circus will give afternoon and night performances at Hornell.

The famous showmen are this season presenting an all new and wonderful program. The tremendous fairyland spectacle, "Cinderella," will appeal to both young and old. More than 1000 persons take part in it. It is easily the biggest spectacle Ringling Bros. have ever staged and its glorious "Ballet of the Fairies," with 300 dancing girls, is in itself worth going many miles to see. Following "Cinderella" 400 areni artists appear in the main tent program. Because of the great European war the Ringlings have secured scores of circus performers never before seen in America. An entire trained animal show has been made a part of the main tent program this season. The menagerie now numbers 1000 wild animals. The elephants, including "Big Bingo," the earth's largest pachyderm, have been increased to 41 and almost 800 horses are carried. There will be 60 clowns and a big free three-mile street parade show day morning.

TO ORGANIZE

Base Ball Association is Forming In Andover

A meeting of all people who have subscribed stock in the Andover Base Ball Association the past week is called for tonight (Friday) at the Village Hall, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing directors to carr on the game the coming season.

It is characteristic of the good people of Andover that they have so willingly gotten back of the base ball team this year. In just one day sufficient stock was subscribed to assure Andover of a team well financed and cared for. Any who are willing to take a chance with Andover base ball games this year will be sold stock from amounts from $1.00 up until the meeting is called to order to-night, when the stock subscriptions will be closed.

Everyone is invited to the meeting to-night, but no one not a stockholder will be allowed a vote on the choice of directors.

Andover has as good a team as ever had this year and with the hearty support now plainly evident from Andover people base ball this summer we predict will be very successful.

The committee on Andover's entertainment have begun preliminary work on fixing up the ground and the work will now be pushed to a rapid finish.

BLANCHE SWEET

In a Dual Role Wednesday Evening.

Blanche Sweet, the beautiful and clever idol of photodramatic audiences, will be seen in her seventh Paramount production, at the Auditorium, Wednesday evening, in "The Secret Sin" a gripping drama written especially for Miss Sweet by Margaret Turnbull, the famous dramatist.

The Lasky Company have surrounded Miss Sweet with a splendid cast for this wonderful play. Thomas Meighan, remembered for his splendid performances in "Kindling," "Out of Darkness," "Blackbrds" and other productons, plays opposite Miss Sweet. Sessue Hayakawa, the noted Japanese actor, is also a member of the cast as is Hal Clements, Alice Knowland, and other members of the Lasky all-star stock company.

In "The Secret Sin" Blanche Sweet plays two characters—twin sisters. How as one sister she can talk and even quarrel with the other is one of the mysteries of the camera.

The play is a valuable addition to the United States propaganda against the nefarious traffic in drugs and shows a series of the most cleverly constructed scenes ever seen on the screen.

W. C. T. U.

The Womans Christian Temperance Union will meet with Mrs. Brewster Friday afternoon, June 16th. Subject—"Industrial Training School For Girls."

Directors, Miss Ensworth, Mrs. Brewster.

To Watch the Want Ads is to keep Practical.

ROOSEVELT'S REFUSAL

To the Progressive Convention:

I am very grateful for the honor you have conferred upon me by nominating me for president. I cannot accept it at this time. I do not know the attitude of the Republican party toward the vital questions of the day. Therefore, if you desire an immediate decision, I must decline the nomination.

If you prefer it, I suggest that my conditional refusal to run be placed in the hands of the Progressive National Committee. After Mr. Hughes' statements, when he makes them, shall satisfy the committee that it is for the best interest of the country that he be elected, they can act accordingly and treat my refusal as definitely accepted. If they are not satisfied they can so notify the Progressive party, and at the same time confer with me, and then determine on whatever action we may severally deem appropriate to the needs of the country.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Soon 'twill be the time of year when we can revel in the joys of sunshine and flowers and sweet perfume, and bugs, and gnats and mosquitoes. Oh joy!

Just for a change, brother, why not step over into the bright side of life and speak of the good that there is in this town?
