Kicking may afford a certain degree of satisfaction, but it produces doubtful results.

• • •

A Kansas town is said to have passed a law against frogs croaking at night. Prohibition again.

• • •

Mr. Hughes assures us that we are living in a fateful hour. Correct, but it is even better to live than to die.

• • •

This weather is so extremely edifying that the temperature appears to be the same on both sides of your face.

• • •

A Boston professor has predicted an alliance between England and Germany. And strange to say he still survives.

If dye stuffs are so scarce, whence came the coloring agents for all of those illuminating stories from the border?

• • •

An editorial writer solemnly affirms that we are missing trade. But, then, we never miss what we miss, so what's the dif.?

• • •

That fellow who dropped in the other day from the North pole can probably give us an accurate description of the fires of hell.

• • •

No, sister, marriage is never a failure. It only slips a few cogs and smashes the rest and then forgets to hunt the repair man.

• • •

Chicago has produced a gospel automobile. But the meek and gentle voiced occupants wisely keep on the shady side of the streets.

• • •

About every fifth day some enthusiast arises and declares a lasting European peace—in the newspapers—and the next day "hell breaks loose again."

United States prestige is said to be growing abroad, according to a Washington dispatch. No mention is made, however, of our standing with our dear friends across the Rio Grande.

• • •

"Europe has reached the part in the war where it refuses to count the cost" is the latest from over yonder. Possibly on the theory that it is easier to forget to count than it is to pay.

• • •

The Germans want peace because they think they have won the war, and the Allies refuse to accept it because they are sure they will win the war. Therefore, on with the carnival of blood.

• • •

It is said that thirty thousand manufacturing plants in America are suited for the turning out of munitions of war. Here's hoping that insofar as the United States is concerned, they never have the chance to turn a wheel.

Correspondents are warned not to send us any poetry for publication. The people won't read ours and we'll be everlastingly hoohoed if we are going to make a poetical reputation for any other fellow.

ELIMINATE THE REGENTS AND THE INSOLENCE

Our schools and our boys and girls was the keynote to the Community Chautauqua meetings which closed here Sunday night.

No subjects should be nearer the hearts of any community than these, and they were ably handled by the speakers at the Chautauqua gatherings.

Dr. Eible Saturday afternoon advocated what the News has contended for years, and what many of Andover's foremost citizens believe, that the system being used in our schools under the Board of Regents is a detriment rather than an aid to the efficiency of any school.

The answers to the puzzle questions submitted by the Board of Regents, or as now organized, the Department of Education, can in no way give a proper idea of a pupil's knowledge of the subject

The teacher is the only person who is in a position to know whether a pupil is qualified for advancement or not.

True, this gives the teacher an opportunity to show favoritism, but a teacher whose sense of moral obligation is insufficient to overcome any temptation, not to use his very best judgement in the advancement of pupils, who will allow petty personalities to control his action in the least, is too narrow to be in such a responsible position, and is not a fit person to preside over a school room.

As a rule our school teachers are above reproach, able and efficient. They are as a class persons with unimpeachable character and their judgement of the fitness of one of their pupils to be passed is much superior to that displayed by the pygmies who draw fat salaries at Albany for no other purpose than to see how well they can puzzle the brain of the tired and frightened pupil and prevent them from receiving the reward that their hard study and application has made them entitled to.

Our American school system is a mighty power. We have been patting ourselves on the back for half a century, complimenting each other because of the wisdom of the men who instituted it. No true American depreciates it or its great influence for good, yet there is always chances for improvement in any line of human endeavor.

The education of our children has far more to do with the future character and stability of our government than has any other factor, for "the way the twig is bent the tree is inclined." We all recognize this fact.

If we want this country to grow and keep on improving, to continue to hold our place as leaders among the nations of the world, we must give our children the advantages of the very best training possible.

This cannot be done under the present trick system of Regents examinations, where our children are taught one-half of the school year to dread the aproach of the examinations, and the other half of the year they spend preparing to meet and answer the enigmas sent out under the name and by authority of the State Department of Education.

The time spent in our schools in "preparing for regents" might be better spent at a much greater profit, in learning something about the subject in question.

Because a pupil is able—after being drilled for weeks upon the regents question books, giving questions and answers to former regents examinations—to pass regents in a particular subject, is no criterion that he is proficient in that subject.

Then, too, the impositions sent by the Department of Education to the Boards of Education throughout the state is most exasperating. They even threaten the full-grown men and women composing the Boards of Education; who are always working without hope of fee or reward, and who are chosen usually from the very best and most able people in the several communities in which they live; much the same as a short-sighted parent threatens his child in order to govern him. It is a mistake to undertake to govern children by threatening, and it is a down right insult on the part of the Department of Education to try to bring to terms their peers in intelligence on a Board of Education by treating them like spoiled children and threatening them because their good judgment is at varience with some pet theory or notion or fool idea advanced by a lot of state officials.

They will threaten the withdrawal of the public money from the district that refuses to obey the dictates of these czars who constitute the State Department of Education.

In most cases it would be a blessing rather than a detriment if the Boards of Education would tell these arrogant gentlemen to keep their money and they would run their schools as in their best judgment was wise and proper.

At the annual school meeting, recently held, the Andover Board of Education reported that since the last school meeting the Department of Education had twice sent them what could be construed to mean no less than an ultimatum to the effect that the buplic school money—funds that by every manner of reasoning could justly belong to no other than this school, because our citizens had paid the taxes imposed upon us that some of it might—come back here in the form of public school money—would be withheld unless this district employed two additional teachers, which the Andover Board of Education and the faculty of Andover High School did not deem at all necessary.

How much longer will American citizens, educated to the belief that the people of this country are capable of governing themselves, submit to such despotism on the part of these officials?

We would advise the Andover Board of Education to reply to these insults in the future by a flat refusal and to inform these would-be czars that they will enddeavor to conduct the affairs of the Andover school as it seems wise and proper to them, and, as they see it, for the best interest of our schools, regardless of whether we receive their stipend or not, that there is at least one Board in New York State that cannot be subsidized.

The salaries of the two needless instructors will more than come to the amount of the public money.

IF YOU CAN'T KEEP COOL, KEEP SWEET

That we of the human family are more or less influenced by our environments is well illustrated in the fact that the hot, stifling weather we have been experiencing for the last few weeks, has a tendency to play havoc with our dispositions.

It would seem that we are not always responsible for our actions as it is impossible for us to be normal and hot at the same time.

But there comes to our rescue the never failing remedy of work. Did you ever notice that as you sit quietly in the shade trying to keep the blood in your veins from boiling, and your position from being popular, thinking of the duties which you should be performing, and telling yourself that it is too hot to work that the heat gets almost unbearable?

But when you throw aside the lame excuse, buck up and go to it, the work is soon progressing finely, the heat is not half as oppressive, and presently it would seem as though a cool, refreshing breze has come to clear the atmosphere, as you no longer suffer with depression.

Try it—some time.

It is all in your mind, dearreader.

It is just as hot and stifling back there in the shade of the porch as it was before, but you have cooled the atmosphere yourself, by taking your mind off the weather and putting it on the efforts of your hands, and you lose yourself in your work.

That is why one day seems much hotter to one person than it does to another. That is why Sundays are usually the hottest days of the week.

This is just the season of the year when we should exercise a certain restraint, not so much in our physical activities as in the working of our minds.

If we are employers we should remember that the heat that bothers us also bothers those who work and toil for us. We should cultivate a broad charity for all mankind, since the possessor of it is bound to suffer less than the one who flies off the handle at the least proviciation and for no apparent reason.

Hot weather is extremely irritating to the nervous system. People who seldom lose control of themselves will become easily peeved, or annoyed, during extremely sultry weather. They get tired, their digestion becomes impaired and other organs of their anatomy go on a strike and it seems to them as though everything was going dead wrong, and everyone who comes in contact with them aggravates them and usually are in turn aggravated by them.

That, too, is only in your mind.

If you can't keep cool, keep sweet, and you will soon learn that the heat is the cause of the other fellow's strange ways and change of action.

Our advice in the face of the weather conditions now prevalent, is to move gently, think gently and act gently.

Have you noticed the peculiarities beneath the surface in the mobilization of the National Guard of the United States and its dispatch to the border? Serving in the ranks of many of the organizations are millionaires from the highest social and financial families. In the same commands are janitors, farmers, clerks, and common laborers, all good men and true. Each is serving his country to the best of his ability, but the most noticeable feature is the fact that social caste is utterly unknown. The millionaire and the laborer groom their horses or dig ditches side by side and joke as though they had been fast friends all of their lives. They are comrades in a common cause, andas comrades they think, act and do.

Tenney would have been called a tramp printer when he trudged into Madison in 1860 with all his worldly possessions tied up in a handkerchief swung from a cane over his shoulder. He knew how to set type and he had this rule of conduct:

"Have a steady job; take 25% of your income and set it aside in some saving plan or absolutely non-hazardous investment; adjust your living so that the other 75% will cover it and perhaps leave some for speculation. Don't risk the 25% in speculation, but if you can squeeze anything out of the 75% it is all right to take a chance. Follow this rule and you will never know want. You can't help but get rich."

The beauty of this rule is that it works. It worked with Dan Tenney and it will work with you. Tenney's wealth was the accomplishment of PURPOSE! This game of saving and provision is one in which every man rolls his own hoop. The

FANNIE WARD

In "The Cheat" Auditorium, Saturday Evening.

Famed for her talents as a comedienne, Miss Fannie Ward will make her second appearance as a Paramount star in a production by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company entitled, "The Cheat." Her first photoplay was "The Marriage of Kitty," which has been universally popular.

"The Cheat" is a modern drama offering Miss Ward splendid opportunities not only for comedy but also for drama. It is by Hector Turnbull and was personally produced by Cecil B. DeMille. Prominent in support of the star are Jack Dean, Sussue Hayakawa and James Neill.

Miss Ward appears as Edith Hardy, whose husband is a hard working man of extensive business affairs. She is interested in charity movements and is ambitious socially. Also she is vain on the subject of clothes. Through her position as treasurer of a charity fund she has many thousands of dollars in her keeping. Tempted to speculate in stocks in order to satisfy her desires for wealth, she takes the fund money.

Exposure faces her when she seeks the aid of a neighbor, a wealthy Japanese, who tries to make a bargain in return for the loan. The successful and happy working out of the complex and thrilling situation furnished a thoroughly exciting photoplay, replete with suspense.

Besides the Paramount picture, "The Cheat," featuring Fannie Ward, the program for the Auditorium Saturday evening will include Charlie Chaplin in "The Rounders." Prices as usual 5 and 10c.

It has been definitely announced that Hon. Frank B. Vroman, of Washington, D. C., will speak in support of the policies and renomination of President Wilson on Democratic Day, Wednesday, August 30th, at the Great Hornell Fair. Governor Charles S. Whitman will speak in support of the candidacy of Justice Charles E. Hughes on Republican Day, Thursday, August 31st. These will be the two largest days of the Fair and undoubtedly previous attendance records will be broken.

—The St. Louis Americans will play at the Tuller field in Wellsville next Monday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark welcomed a fine young son to their home this week.

—Pennsylvania oil has dropped about 20 cents the past 10 days. It is 2.40 at this writing.

—Sheriff Nichols, of Cattaraugus County, has the inmates of the county jail at work on the roads.

—Sixty thousand dollars has been drawn out of the Fillmore bank this year to purchase automobiles.

—Those having dishes or pails belonging to the Presbyterian church are urged to kindly leave them with Mrs. B. B. Hann.

—Mrs. Electa Prosser, an aged Cuba lady, died Friday morning at the home of her son, E. E. Prosser, in that village, aged nearly 85 years.

—Mrs. Hattie Hazelton, wife of Norman Hazelton of Whitesville, died at the family home last week, following an illness of several months.

—John P. Herrick, former editor of the Bolivar Breeze, is sending that paper a series of Western Travel letters, from Wyoming and other western states.

—John Haines, a farmer living in the Plum Brook vicinity, says the rounds in his section are so poor that when he takes his milk to the cheesefactory it is churned into butter.

—Harold, the nine-months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Norton, of Hornell, died Tuesday evening from the effects of burns received that day from an overturned pail of scalding water.

—The Hornell Chamber of Commerce is doing a good work in assisting laborers to find employment and assisting them otherwise. It is said that no discriminations are made whatever.

—The Rice-Shu Orchestra of six pieces will furnish the music for the annual "Old Home" Party to be held at the Auditorium, Thursday evening, Aug. 17. The usual large attendance is expected.

—Andover people will be sorry to learn that Miss Carolyn Rheinhart is ill at the St. James Mercy Hospital in Hornell. She was operated upon Saturday for appendicitis and is doing nicely at this writing.

—It is now definitely settled that the Clay Cutlery Co. will remain in Andover. The plans, specifications and blue prints for the new building have been received and the addition will soon be under construction.

—While emptying a boiler of hot water Tuesday morning, Mrs. Bartley Joyce and little son Louis were badly scalded. In some way the boiler slipped and the scalding water was thrown over their feet, inflicting painful burns. Both Mrs. Joyce and son are recovering nicely from the effects of the accident.

—Captain William S. Childs, has been confirmed by the Senate as Hornell's new postmaster. Hornell Democrats have had a most bitter time trying to find a person to take the office that would be acceptable to all. Mr. Childs is one of Hornell's most respected citizens and will without doubt give that city a good administration over their postal affairs.

—E. A. Rathbone and J. C. Darcy, of Wellsville, were in Andover Wednesday, in the interest of the Wellsville Base Ball Association. They were placing advertising for the big exhibition game to be played at the Tuller field, Monday, Aug. 14th, between the Wellsville Team and the St. Louis Americans. Fielder Jones Day with his "Browns." The base ball in Wellsville is being handled by a bunch of live wires this year. Andover will be present when the roll is called Aug. 14th. We'll all be there.

—Jennie, the eight-year-old daughter of Edward Miner, of Mt. Morris, was lying on the ground picking berries Saturday when she felt a sharp sting in her arm. Looking around she was horrified to see a big black snake drawing away from her side. Before she could get away from the reptile it struck again the fangs entering her leg. The little girl hurried home. It was not thought the bites would amount to much. Towards night her arm and leg pained so she was taken to Dr. Brown for treatment. Blood poisoning has developed. It has been the general opinion of authorities here that blacksnakes do not bite but instead used their forces to crush.

—A case of infantile paralysis has been reported in Angelica, that of two-year-old Edwin Palmer, son of Fay Palmer.

—There will be a special meeting of the Allegany-Steuben Holstein Friesian Breeders Club at Alfred, Tuesday, Aug. 15, at 2:30 o'clock.

—Careless hunters shot a two-year-old heifer on the Graham Bros. farm, near Belmont, recently. The farm is now posted against hunters.

—W. L. Snow, of Hornell, won one race and took second in two others, at the opening of the Grand Circuit races in Detroit, each purse being for $1,200.

—Rev. Harry L. Boyd, for four years pastor of the Olean Presbyterian church, tendered his resignation Sunday. He has accepted a call to a church in Iowa City, Ia.

—Since the hot weather and warm nights have come corn in this vicinity has just jumped. It looked at one time not long ago that the corn crop would be an utter failure. Not so now. The crop is fast catching up, and if the hot weather continues will be out of the way of the frost in full time.

—A daughter is a recent arrival at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Slocum.

The Allegany County Ayrshire Club held a picnic and meeting at Cuba, Tuesday.

—Hon. Ruben R. Lyon, of Bath, died Saturday evening, of Brights disease. He had been a prominent attorney in that village since 1881.

Dr. David Lewis has opened offices for the practice of medicine, at Alfred, in the Burdick block.

—Next week is Recognition Week at Chautauqua. It is one of the most popular weeks on the Chautauqua program.

—Edgar, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira O. Dillie, of Bolivar, fell from a delivery wagon recently and broke his left arm.

—Our village officials are expecting an engineer here soon to go over the water system with them and recommend improvements in the service.

—The continued dry weather is drawing on the water supply. There is plenty for all, but patrons should be careful not to waste it, by letting faucets run.

—Robert S. Kreason, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kreason, of Hornell, has successfully passed the Oregon State bar examination and is now a practicing attorney in Dallas, Oregon.

—Or popular mail carrier on route No. 2, R. F. D., Jesse Baker, is making his trips now with his new Ford automobile, purchased this week through the F. C. Lynch & Son Agency.

—The building of the Hammondsport Vintage Company was destroyed by fire Monday a. m., with a loss of more than $50,000. Included in the contents of the building were 40,000 gallons of still wine.

—Miss Maud Hemphill, a Hornell bookkeeper, was thrown from a horse, in that village Sunday evening, and so badly injured that she died Monday morning, at the St. James Mercy Hospital, aged 30 years.

—Wm. E. Pierce, of East Aurora, was chosen president, and Leon L. Rider, of Falconer, vice president, of the Southwestern New York Firemen's Association, at East Aurora, last week. John Jones, of Wellsville, was elected to membership on the executive board.

—Howard VanNoy, of Rochester, is spending a few days in Cuba nursing a finger of which the end was taken off while employed in the Stecher lithographing plant in Rochester. He and his brother Harold were both putting in their vacations at the plant, and will return to school in the fall.—Cuba Patriot.

—Ezra P. Hamilton, one of Alfred's foremost farmers and respected citizens, died Saturday in Binghamton where he had gone several weeks ago for treatment. It had been thought that he was improving rapidly and was on a fair way to recovery, but he was taken much worse Thursday evening, and was unable to rally. Mr. Hamilton was serving his second term as Town Superintendent of Highways.

—Thomas Johns, 63 years old, a farmer from Farmersville, is at the Higgins Memorial Hospital in Olean, suffering from a fractured jaw and a severe laceration of his eye which may result in a partial loss of sight. He was driving a hayrake one morning recently when the horse shied, throwing him from the seat. The animal kicked him in the face as he lay on the ground. His injuries, although serious, are not likely to prove fatal.

—The officials of Cuba are troubling themselves very much over the automobile drivers. Last week a Wellsville gentleman, who is also an automobile dealer, lost one of his number plates and "got pulled" at Cuba. Tourists and automobile drivers, when they arrive at the corporation line of Cuba had "better stop, look and listen," and see if they are all there before entering their sacred precinct. It is much shorter to go over Norton Hill through Bolivar, anyway.

A couple of hours devoted to reading and answering want ads might enable you to save a dollar a week on your room rent—and there are 52 weeks in a "furnished room year."
