OUR KEYNOTE:
"If There Is not a Way, Cut a Way."

Andover, N. Y., Sept. 15, 1916.

Entered as second-class matter under act of Congress, at the Post office at Andover, N. Y.

Many a swell dresser has a dirty back yard.

Hang on to life. You'll never get a second grab.

• • •

Thanks. We never smoke political cigars. Make it an advt instead.

• • •

Some Americans seem crazy over a little money. It never bothers us any.

• • •

The strike was called off. But prices, we note, persistently decline to come down.

• • •

Don't cuss the country roads Hunt up the road officials and cuss them instead.

• • •

The next time you feel like scolding your wife give her a kiss instead. It works.

• • •

Don't sow too many wild oats while young. You may run short of seed when you get old.

• • •

Some people know a lot but don't know how to let other people know that they know it.

• • •

The time of all others when we love you the most dear reader is when you dig down and whack up.

• • •

Young men who are inclined to lead a fast life would best keep in the vicinity of a stout hitching post.

Heard about the latest German drive? It was Sunday afternoon and a dainty Miss sat by his side.

If the price of print paper keep on climbing we'll soon have to be printing this sheet on ten dollar bills.

• • •

Well, well, well! How's the war, anyway? Every time we read about it we know less than we did before.

• • •

We know a fellow in this town who is so irresistibly funny he does not know it. If he did he wouldn't be funny.

• • •

If you want to go to heaven the quickest route, just hitch up a mule and a politician and go in the opposite direction.

As an evidence of our great belief in and adherance to reciprocity, if you'll present us with an automobile we'll furnish the gas to run it.

• • •

The people who read your ads are the people who are to make business "good" at your store—their patronage is subject to your influence.

• • •

Little man, when ma gives you a penny to buy candy just go out and earn one yourself, buy candy with it and salt the other down. You'll be rich some day.

• • •

The man who persistently ignores modern methods in any line of business be it farming or printing is himself eventually ignored by the Goddess of fortune.

• • •

Every dollar "too much" which you pay for things is, really, the premium you pay on your expensive habit of not reading the ads.

• • •

Funny, isn't it? A fellow got peeved and stopped his News the other day and then rushed over and borrowed his neighbors paper to see what we had to say about him.

• • •

General Nelson A. Miles thinks a federation of nations would put an end to wars. So do we. But the trouble is the Kings and Emperors and other potentates won't listen to either Miles or us.

A new one has been sprung on an overworked public by a murderer who claims that he killed his wife in order to keep her pure. And we think dancing on air is the best method of keeping him pure.

• • •

Your Want Ad should sell the used article to someone who will find it as useful as though it were new.

MOULDING YOUNG MEN.

Have you ever watched the turner take up a rough piece of wood, run it through first one style and then another, and have it come out a polished and perfect piece of furniture or other article of daily use?

That is exactly what the officers of the Army are doing with the young men of the National Guard now on the Mexican border.

Doctors and thinking men generally admit that military training is the greatest possible aid to intellectual, physical and moral development. The daily exercise gradually works the raw and awkward youth into a physically perfect and self reliant man; discipline implants in his mind the necessity and the desirability of respect for his superiors and, for his fellow men; the intelligence and the high standard of morality maintained by his preceptors elevates him to a higher and more honorable plane of manhood; as the months go by he becomes more and more a man among men.

Young men who went to the border with these regiments will come home with higher purposes in life, with a greater determination to meet and overcome the numerous obstacles in the pathway to sucess and radiating to others their own newly acquired polish, self reliance, forcefulness and the will to acomplish that which they undertake.

If you have a relative or friend on the border, rest assily on his account. He will return a better man than when he marched away.

As The Editor Sees It.

Try it for one day. Give a cheerful word to every one you see from the time you wake until you go to sleep at night. Then note the change in your own feelings.

* * *

The sting of a honey bee is ajoy compared with the sting of price boasting that is going on all over this country. The price of postage stamps and air, however, remain normal.

* * *

Young man, the road to wealth and fame does not lie in idleness or street corners. Successful men are never found there, and men who have made names and fortunes for themselves were not found there in their youth.

* * *

This conflict between the railroads and their employes has served at least one good purpose. It has convinced the ultimate goats (the public at large) that laws must be enacted to prevent recurrence of conflicts in the future which have the possibility of a paralysis of the commercial interests of the country. Those laws should be so drastic in their nature as to force a course of moderation on both sides to the controversy. The people have rights, as well as the railroads and their employes.

* * *

It may be true that the ways of women are past understanding, but the same is equally true of men. To prove this statement, go out and spend a half a day on the street. Watch every man as the women go by, many of them will ogle and stare and blink if six inches of hosiery is in sight. That is, if the woman is not of their own family. But if she is, they will make desperate attemps to engage the attention of other men until the "sights" are no longer to be seen. It depends, you see, upon whose pig you have by the tail. That's the man of it, and most men are just men.

* * *

If a live merchant will spend an hour or two some evening with his store blinds down and install a handsome and attractive window display, something unique and out of the ordinary, and then advertise it in this paper, we venture the prediction that at least half the people in this community will be around to see it. And many of them will buy just because they happened to be there. Advertising will get the people to a store that is worth going to every time but the merchant and his own goods must do the selling. Step up, gentlemen. What merchant in this town wants the people to beat a path to his store.

* * *

Do you want to see this town grow? Do you want to see more money in circulation? Do you want more of that money yourself? Then stop kicking and get out and push. If you see a defect, help remedy it instead of complaining. Do something yourself instead of leaving everything for others to do. This town is and always will be just what we ourselves make it, just as the live wire communities are what their own live wires make them. You cannot cultivate corn with a dead horse, and you cannot make a live town by simply telling others what they ought to do.

* * *

Now that the strike is off the next thing we will hear of will no doubt be another boost in freight rates. That will mean more boost in the retail price of everything, for it is not the roads or the dealers that pay the freight it is the consumers. If the manufacturer adds five per cent to his prices, the wholesaler will tack on another ten or perhaps more, and there is no telling how much more will be screwed from the public before it reaches the consumer. If it was simply an increase of the one five percent or so all along the line it would not be such a burden. But it is not. Every fellow who handles it wants to suck a little extra blood from the turnup until by the time it reaches your home or office the original increase has multiplied many fold. How does it feel to be a goat anyway?

PLEADED GUILTY

Vote For Robert Bacon
For United States Senator

"Use your right as an Enrolled Republican
To make YOUR OWN CHOICE
On Primary Day, September 1

Robert Bacon

This is not a factional fight. The Primary Law was intended t give to the voters absolute personal freedom in selecting their cand date, so that no faction may dictate who shall be YOUR nominee.

IT IS UP TO YOU

Do your duty as a citizen and vote for the candidate for Senator who you believe w most ably represent New York in the United States Senate and add the most strength the National and State tickets.

HERE IS WHAT ELIHU ROOT SAYS OF ROBERT BACON:

Not only is Mr. Bacon a citizen of the highest type, high minded, generous and publi spirited, but he has special qualifications. He was long assistant secretary of state, then for short time secretary of state, then for a number of years ambassador to France. He filled a of those positions with distinction and success.

He has special relations of friendship and personal r[illegible] with the leading statesmen in a the principal South American countries and has personal familiarity with the conditions i those countries and their feelings toward the United States. His service in the United State senate would be of immense value to Mr. Hughes in the conduct of the foreign affairs of th United States. If the people of the state of New York can put into the senate a man of th highest character who understands the business of foreign affairs they will have rendered very great service to the president who is about to be elected and to the people of the Unite States. They can do that by electing Mr. Bacon.

Elihu Root

Hundreds of similar letters have been written by the most eminent men in the Republican Party in Ne York and throughout the country.

These letters express the opinions of thousands of voters.

Robert Bacon's qualifications for public office have been recognized and indorsed by such men as ex-President Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft; Elihu Root, David Jayne Hill, Joseph H. Choate, Myron T. Herric Harvey D. Hinman, Job E. Hedges, Andrew D. White, J. Sloat Fassett and other representative men prominent in national and state affairs.

Go to the polls on Primary Day, September 19, and vote for Robert Bacon for United States Senator.

His experience in the State Department, in the Diplomatic Service, in South America his business training, his patriotic, fearless stand for Americanism, his deep knowledge of ou National Needs, his stanch stand for protection of the farmer as well as of the manufacture and working man, equip him ideally to represent YOU in the United States Senate a this critical time in our history.

THE ROBERT BACON PRIMARY COMMITTEE.

Thorns Also Grow in Every Rose

"This old world is a little 'mixed'
Is mighty hard to please;
We get a thorn with every rose,
But ain't the roses sweet?"

—Stanton

Not a rose without a thorn, not an accomplishment without effort, not a success without sacrifice That is the philosophy Stanton sings and it is set to the music of human experience. You are pretty certain to prick both your fingers and your pride in gathering the roses of success, but "ain't the roses sweet?" The dollars are the roses of toil of purpose and effort, and their perfume is the satisfaction in having met an obligation; the obligation of making provision for the "rainy day," for age and dependents. We want to repeat with emphasis that the wants to Get Acquainted with men and women who are scratching their fingers on the thorns gathering the roses of provision. We want to tell them of the provision we have made for the Safety of the roses, how to graft, prune and transplant into larger growth!

BURROWS NATIONAL BANK

Why not come in and talk this matter over with us? Why not use the experience of expert horticulturist in the garden of finance?

—Sorry, but we just had to do it. For the past few months And over people, especially the business men, have been passing through a siege of solicitations from pretty-faced sixteen-year old damsels from adjoining towns, asking for votes so they could get scholarships in this school or that college, and for many and various other charities, all worthy, without doubt. We have been an especially shining mark for these pretty Misses, but we give it out herewith double-leaded that we are through. "Charity" begins at home and we have all we can possibly do to keep our own swee Andover girls happy, without extending the philanthopy to adjoining villages.

FILLMORE HAD BAD FIRE

On Tuesday Night Flames Swept Big Section on North Side of Main Street.

Fillmore, Sept. 8.-Fire which swept the north side of Main street Tuesday night destroyed a total of fifteen buildings, six of them on Main street, the other stables and similar buildings in the rear.

The fire started about 1 o'clock in a sort of storage room under Webb's meat market, in what manner is not known. It raged for several hours, but was finally brought under control by the combind eefforts of Fillmore and Hume fire departments. Practically nothing worth while was gotten out of the buildings except the goods from the millinery store of Maud Farnsworth.

The following buildings were destroyed.

Railroad hotel of Mrs. Lane, occupied by D. E. Quant.

Buildings adjoining owned by Fred Purdy and occupied by Messrs. Pritchard.

The next was the building in which the fire started, owned by Mary Crawford and occupied in addition to the meat market, by Frank Sprague.

McMurty's hotel and restaurant.

L. D. Wilday's hardware store.

Kinney, building-Miss Catherine Kinney, the owner, occupied the second floor and Farnsworth millinery store the first floor.

The buildings on the South side of Main street caught fire several times, but were extinguished. The fronts were badly scorched and all the glass in the fronts was broken.

The loss is about $30,000.

TALKING MACHINE ETIQUETTE

The editor of the household department in the Erie Railroad Magazine, discussing letters from correspondents, says:

"My custom is not to play any records at all when I have company unless requested, and then not more than three unless urged. Lots of people while visiting or calling expect to spend their time in conversation. Nearly everyone has a machine nowadays and can have all the music wanted at home. My advice is to be careful not to bore your company with this or any other kind of music or entertainment. Give them what they want. That is true politeness.

"A dog in the house is all right under certain conditions; but the natural place is out of doors, unless he is small and of a certain 'house-broke' breed. Some small New York apartments have mastiffs and Newfoundlands in them, although there is hardly room for the occupants to turn around. This is neither healthful nor comfortable for man or beast. But as my husband once said as he observed a man put sugar in his oyster stew, "there is no accounting for tastes."
