ENVISIONING THE FARM FUTURE

Increased Efficiency Has Brought With It a Great Many Problems, Writes H. H. Sheldon for News.

Soil fertilization has made it possible to pasture a cow on a quarter acre where previously three or four acres were required. The combine makes it possible for one man to do the work of four or five in harvesting. The introduction of electrical power has added greatly to the farm work done per man. Thus in spite of a rapidly decreasing acreage under cultivation in the United States, in spite of the increasing population, improved scientific farming methods have resulted in an overproduction that has resulted in our present farm problem and many suggested means of farm relief.

The truth is that there are too many men on the farm as the farm is now conducted. The farmer must grow chemicals and no food if he is to enlarge his scope. He must grow materials that can be converted to industrial uses. He must grow horn-buttons for automobiles, dials for radio sets and the like.

It is not the large scale farmer who is at present suffering. It is the small farmer who cannot afford to buy expensive labor-saving equipment, who has not the time nor the training necessary to take advantage of the latest developments in farm machinery and methods. He is like a cobbler trying to compete in the shoe making business with the shoe factory and he is doomed to extinction for the same reason. He is furthermore trying to make a living from a seasonal occupation. In the old days his winters were made profitable by drawing out and selling fire wood or logs for lumber mills. His winters now are a period of marking time.

With these difficulties before the individual farmer it seems reasonable to predict that in the near future farms like every other productivity activity will pass into the hands of large corporations. Corporations which will control hundreds of acres and produce perhaps a single product. They will have the funds to employ the most able scientists who will watch every development in their field and will take quick advantage of every improvement in fertilization and insect control. They will employ engineers to devise the machines for most efficient harvesting and who will supervise all farm work. The employees, the farmers of the future, will find their winters occupied by factories for utilization of waste products. Straw will be made into wall board, corn stalks will be made into paper or artificial silk and new and at present undreamed of materials will be manufactured.

Perhaps it is unpleasant to look forward to the elimination of our most independent workers but the time seems near when like the rest of us, he must become a cog in the great industrial field. He may sacrifice his independence but that is an expensive luxury. The new regime which is now on the way will mean greater prosperity, a more certain income, and greater opportunities for his children than now exist.

STATE BUREAU OF COMMERCE

Conference of Mayors Recognizes That State Industries Are Lagging. Seek Aid of State.

The movement for the inauguration of a State Bureau of Commerce which was initiated by the New York State Association of Real Estate Boards at a conference of the leading statewide business, trade and professional organization, held early in December, seems to be sweeping the state, according to a statement issued during the past week, and it is probable that a measure carrying these ideas into effect will be introduced into the Legislature in the near future. Organizations in all parts of the state are constantly being added to the list endorsing the suggestion and during the past week the New York State Conference of Mayors passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, facts have been presented to us which show that New York State industries are lagging behind the general industrial growth and that losses are particularly noticeable in a number of the smaller cities and other municipalities, and

"Whereas, industrial changes in most of our municipalities during recent years have been rapid and readjustments, therefore, particularly difficult, and

"Whereas, several of our cities have endeavored to improve their conditions by the creation of municipal industrial agents and commissions, and

"Whereas, all experts and well-informed persons with whom we have consulted agree that one of the reasons why New York State has been slipping behind industrially is because of a lack of knowledge about its industries and industrial advantages; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that we in behalf of the cities and first class villages petition the Legislature to take such action as is necessary to authorize and direct a state department to collect, study and disseminate authentic information about the industries and the industrial advantages in New York State, and to empower such department to do for the State of New York what the Department of Commerce does for the Nation."

IMPROVING THE ANIMAL SHELTERS

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Doolittle, Formerly Well Known Here, Head Humane Effort in Elmira.

Erection of modern kennels to care for homeless animals, and to provide boarding quarters for the pets of persons leaving the city for vacations or other trips, are planned by the officers of the Animal Shelter on Coleman avenue. Notice of this decision was given in a statement issued as follows:

"The Shelter on Coleman avenue, which was donated by Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Doolittle for the humane care of homeless and injured animals, will undergo extensive repairs in the spring. Tentative plans are under way to build modern kennels so that homeless animals can be properly cared for and also provide safe quarters where pets may be boarded at a reasonable price while owners are away on vacation.

"Until the Shelter becomes self-supporting, donations from people kindly disposed towards animals are not only needed but will be greatly appreciated and carefully used for the care of our little four-footed friends.

"The Shelter is in charge of kindly folks, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cornell, and all animals receive real protection in their care.

"We want the public to know that our greatest effort lies in placing stray and homeless animals in good homes and not in depriving them of life. We find many kindly folks ready to love and shelter these unfortunate beasts. Among our nine family awaiting adoption are Tiny, Chummie, Rowdy, Spotsie, Dinah, Pal, Rover, Curley and Prince. Among our feline family are Tommie, Sandy, Beauty, Tippie, Connie and Billy Burke.

"We solicit the support of the public in this great humanitarian work and invite everyone to visit the Shelter at any time. Emergency calls will be answered day or night for stray or injured animals, phone 6564.

Officers of the Shelter are: Honorary president, Mrs. F. E. Doolittle; president M. N. Haines; secretary and manager, Mrs. C. J. Mentler; superintendent of Shelter, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cornell.

PRAYER

Matthew 6:5-13; Luke 18:9-14; I. John 5:14-15

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

A suggestion of the universality of prayer is found in the "Pater Noster" Church, on the summit of the Mount of Olives. In the vestibule are 32 tablets bearing the Lord's Prayer in as many different languages. Then three more such translations are close at hand in this building. The most unlettered people has its prayer form, in which they seek to placate an injured deity. Prayer, however, is much more than an effort to avoid consequences for wrongs that have been committed. In this means of grace the Christian approaches the Throne for spiritual fellowship and to express thanksgiving, before any requests are made for personal benefits or favors. In this manner of address we talk things over with our personal God and indicate our confidence in Him.

Scripture portions for special study, in addition to those indicated above are Genesis, 18:23-33 Exodus 32:31, 32; Nehemiah 1 4-11; Daniel 6:10; John 17: 1-26; Thessalonians 5:17. One of the most helpful books on the subject is "With Christ in the School of Prayer," by Andrew Murray.

Intercessory prayer is especially illustrated in the portion in Genesis and Exodus. Abraham pleads for Lot in Sodom, which is about to be destroyed, and though ten righteous men could not be found therein the nephew is saved, which is the purport of Abraham's prayer. Moses prayer involves a nation. Sinning Israel is saved, tho Jehovah had said that of Moses he would make a greater people. The decree of king could not stop Daniel from keeping his daily prayer tryst with God. Even so we are to establish both time and place for daily prayer, and permit nothing to interfere.

The disciples asked Jesus to teach them how to pray and the model called the Lord's Prayer is the answer. While we are to follow the general content the Christian world has made blessed use of the actual words. We must use this as a prayer however, rather than as any form of recitation.

The approach is by a formal recognition of Diety and an ascription concering Him. It is in order to confess our sins before we seek favors from one who has been wronged by our acts. Note most carefully that Jesus indicated that the way in which we forgive our debtors is the standard by which we seek pardon from our heavenly Father. Here is a test indeed. Being at peace with God we begin to seek His blessings. We want His Kingdom to be established here on earth. This is the socialized Gospel in action. His will is to be done by us, even as the angels and redeemed souls absolutely follow His desire in Heaven.

The publican reveals the simple, direct attitude and petition that the Father accepts. His only outcray was "God be merciful to me a sinner." This prayer was answered and the man returned joyously to his home.

do Women grow old faster than Men?

In grandfather's day most women were old at 40—worn out by household drudgery. Today the modern mother looks as young as her daughter.

The answer is really so simple. Electric range frees her from the kitchen all afternoon—automatically cooks dinner while she's away. Electric washer and ironer take the blue out of Monday. All through the house, electric helpers do the thankless tasks for a few pennies an hour.

Delay no longer. Visit your nearest electrical dealer. See for yourself how these servants could lighten your work—how small a sum will place them in your home—how economical they are to run.

The cost of your electric service today is the lowest in history. Niagara Power Service is one of the biggest bargains you buy. You can afford to use it freely.

I'M BETTER NOW

I think my life is an old, old life, not beginning with my breath.
I think my life is a long, long life, not ending with my death. In many a land I came to birth on many an ocean shore. On many mountains are the graves they digged for me before. Each time that I returned to earth I came a little better, with strength to weaken, if not break, some rusty sinful fetter. Why then in us do memories sleep of other lives we had? Wise is the law that drugs them, lest all the world go mad. The errors of a single life are heavy now on me, with souvenirs of lower selves that would the burden be? I dead my death, and,
I was slain, belike a thousand times.
My heart was black with bitterness, my hands were red with crimes. Yet memory of what has been is somewhere in my mind, and when I reach a higher peak, I'll see the road behind.

P. S. If you don't like me as I am and think me hardly worth a damn you should be thankful, too, because you never knew me as I was.—BOB ADAMS.

Doctor: "Your husband must have absolute quiet. Here is a sleeping draught."

Wife: "And when do I give it to him?"

Doctor: "You don't give it to him—you take it yourself."

We are asking every automobile and truck driver to buy and use—BRUNSWICK TIRES and TUBES.

We have used them ourselves and we know they give real dependable economical service.

They are the product of many years' experience. They have to be good or the liberal guarantee they carry would be impossible. Just think it over, twelve months of absolute tire protection with each BRUNSWICK CASING; no strings to it, no mileage to check up—just date your serial tag and nail it up for reference only.

As to price they cost enough to be out of the junk class, but are priced under others of anywhere near their quality. Too many sizes to price here, but just to give you an idea—29x4.40 $6.95; 30x6.00 $12.95. No express to pay, just hand in the cash and get your tire.

No tires or tubes on credit—cash only.

Those using Cello Glass find that it is just the covering for cold weather; conserves all the sunshine and does not admit cold as readily as window glass.

The inventory has uncovered a few of those 50-pound medicated salt brick, their composition is about the same as the better kinds of stock tonic on the market and our friends who have used them speak highly of results obtained.

These bricks were bought to sell at $3.75, but while they last you may own them at half price.

We consider them excellent value and are sure you will if you will use them. 50 pound "Tonic Brick"—$1.88.

"Always and everlastingly late," snapped wifey as hubby came home late for his supper. "Why, you were late at church the day we were married."

"Yes, my dear," he replied bitterly, "but not late enough."

We can save you money and give you stock absolutely true to name.

Any woman who cooks would be proud to possess items of the Vapo Seal line and also be able to feel that they had bought them at the right price. Better than Mirro are not made.
