DR. GEORGE LYNCH CLAIMED BY DEATH

Well Known Hornell Physician Dies Monday—Was a Former Andover Boy—Funeral Held Wednesday

Dr. George M. Lynch, 46 years old, died at his home in Hornell, after an illness of some time, Monday morning. He was born on South Hill, Andover, August 26, 1881, son of the late Patrick D. and Marie Radican Lynch. He went to Hornell from New York in May, 1919.

Dr. Lynch was graduated from Andover High School in June, 1904. He entered Cornell University and graduated in June, 1908. He then served 18 months in St. Vincent's hospital in New York City, after which he was appointed on the house staff of the surgical division and was house surgeon for six months.

In 1913 he was appointed to the surgical clinic, which position he held until he came to Hornell to practice. Dr. Lynch was particularly well trained for his profession. In 1910 he was appointed visiting physician to the House of Calvary, a cancer hospital in New York, and served until he came to Hornell. For the last three years of that service he was secretary to the medical board of the hospital.

In New York he was also attending physician to the Blessed Sacred Convent and physician and surgeon to the Hudson & Manhatton Railway company. He was in New York City for eleven years.

Dr. Lynch was a member of the American Medical Association, Medical Society of the State of New York, New York County Medical Society and an alumnus of St. Vincent's and other hospitals.

He was also a member of the Knights of Columbus, Alambrs, Hornell Lodge of Elks, Hornell Country Club, past president of the Steuben Medical Society; visiting surgeon and vice president of the surgical staff of St. James Mercy hospital; a member of the Board of Directors of the Steuben Trust Company and for several years one of the directors of the Hornell City Board of Health.

Since coming to Hornell Dr. Lynch has enjoyed a lucrative and growing practice. He made a wide circle of friends. On April 27, 1911, he married Miss Chrissie Rappell of Weehawken, N. J., who survives him; also a sister, Mrs. Michael Dougherty of Andover and seven brothers, Patrick, Hackensack, N. J.; Peter, Hornell; William, Joseph, Charles, Edward, and Augustus Lynch, all of Andover.

Passing of Dr. Lynch is a loss to this vicinity. He possessed a cheerful and kindly disposition and among his patients was noted for his kindly and cheerful disposition. While much of his time was taken up in medical circles, he took a keen interest in civic affairs and municipal efforts. His learning, social, medical and civic contacts made him one of Hornell's most useful citizens.

Funeral services were held from the late home Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock and shortly after from St. Ann's Church. Interment was made in the Lynch family plot in St. Ann's cemetery.

Resolutions of Respect

In memory of Clarinda Brundage, who passed away February 19, 1929:

Again that unwelcome visitor, death, has called one of our dear sisters to the beautiful Beyond. Her life, laden with kind deeds, will cause her name long to be remembered by members of our Order, and

Whereas, Tho all wise Father has called our sister, and she, having been a faithful worker in the Edward Seaman Relief Corps, and widow of Lieut. L. W. Brundage, a veteran of the Civil War, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Charter of Edward Seaman Relief Corps No. 155, be draped in mourning for 30 days. That these resolutions be printed in the Andover News and a copy sent to the family.

It seemeth such a little way to me,
To that strange country, the Beyond,
And yet, not strange, for it has grown to be
The home of those of whom we are so fond.

Sheriff Page Must Settle

The Appellate Division has affirmed the verdict of $6,000 given Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pickle of Fremont, against former Steuben Sheriff W. B. Page of Arkport, for alleged charges of participation upon the part of the sheriff in the kidnapping of their grandson, Vernon Page, whose mother deserted him when he was eight months old and the grandparents had legally adopted.

STATE INSPECTOR MAKES REPORT

The Condition of County Jail at Belmont and Andover Lockup as Seen by Inspector.

Inspected March 5, 1929. Edson A. Brigham, sheriff. Mrs. Brigham is matron. A turnkey and cook are also employed.

There were seven inmates, all males, at the time of inspection, classified as follows: Serving sentence, one adult; held for grand jury, four adults and two minors. The highest since the last inspection was reported as seventeen the lowest four, and the average about seven.

This is a small jail containing twenty four cells. The older part containing two departments of six cells each, arranged on the central corridor plan, and the new part also has two departments of the same size, the cells in this part being arranged on the central block plan. In addition, there are two rooms opening on the main front hallway which can be used for detention purposes if needed. It was stated that no trouble had been experienced in maintaining a legal classification.

The administration is apparently making every effort to safe-guard the health of the inmates and keep the jail clean and in order; prisoners are required to bathe on admission, are examined by the jail physican and if afflicted with communicable diseases, are segregated inmates, clothing and bedding are laundered in the jail laundry weekly, and inmates are required to keep their cells in order; they are not permitted to have supplies of food in their cells, the amount they may recieve from the outside being restricted and any recieved placed in custody of the matron who distributes it.

Money and valubles of inmates are reported as kept in the office pending their release and all visitors are carefully supervised. By restricting the packages the sheriff also eliminates the possibility of contraband being introduced into the jail. All mail was reported as being censored.

Employment consists of trusty work about the county property. Sentenced male prisoners, and such male court prisoners held on minor charges, and who volunteer, are so employed. It was stated that they are always under supervision and are not worked together; classification being maintained. The sheriff was advised that care should be taken that the provisions of the County Law relating to classification of prisoners are obseved at all times and that supervision should be strictly maintained to prevent breaches of discipline.

Three substantial meals are served each day, no set menu being followed.

Inmates are supplied with magazines and newspapers.

The jail record was in order.

James McG. Shillinglaw,

Inspected March 5, 1929. F. S. Potter, supervisor; Porter Richardson, village clerk; Edward Kilbane, chief of police.

Since the last inspection a separate room has been provided for ledgers, and blankets have been supplied for the cells. The place was clean and in order.

It was stated that perhaps a dozen prisoners had been held during the past year. Supervision is reported as given by the night officer, who makes his headquarters at the building, visiting it at least half hourly, and after he completes his tour of duty at 5 A.M., by a guard remaining constantly until the prisoner is arraigned. As stated in previous reports, the lockup is a serious fire hazard and proper supervision should not be neglected; otherwise, the Commission would be justified in closing it as unsafe.

This is another community which should provide a modern fireproof lockup and it is suggested that the town and village officials be requested to advise as to the probability of this being done in the near future.

SILK MILL NIGHT BRINGS BIG CROWD

Andover Bids Supt. John B. Faisant Farewell, and Extends Hearty Welcome to John Staffer.

The outstanding feature of Andover's activities the past week was the reception given by the Community Service Club of Andover, in honor of the retiring superintendent of our silk mills, John B. Faisant, and to welcome to Andover the new superintendent, John Staffer, Thursday evening.

Nearly 100 Andover men, including many from the Andover silk mills, availed themselves of the privilege of paying their respects to these gentlemen, by their presence.

The honor guests of the evening, besides Mr. Faisant and Mr. Shaffer were R. M. Wood, of New York City, assistant secretary of Albert Godde, Bedin, Inc., the owners of the mills, representing the president of the company, H. Barbet, of France; H. T. Roudet, of Depew, general superintendent of the company's three silk mills, and Julian Faisant of Depew.

The banquet was faultlessly served by the ladies of the Eastern Star, at Masonic Temple, and was of a quality unexcelled. Fine orchestral music was furnished thruout the evening by an orchestra under the leadership of Miss Minnie Clair. A number of patriotic and popular songs were sung by the banquetters under the charming leadership of J. E. Cannon.

At the conclusion of the banquet, President A. R. Baker called the meeting to order, and after welcoming the evening's honor guests in a most appropriate manner, turned the meeting over to the Committee of Arrangements, J. E. Cannon, B. S. Brundage and Judge E. A. Mullen.

B. S. Brundagt was the toastmaster of the evening and very capably and happily introduced the speakers. The first speaker was E. D. Baker, who paid the following tribute to J. B. Faisant, the retiring superintendent:

Mr. Baker's Tribute to Supt. Faisant

In the natural course of events we look for sons to come along and take up the burdens of the father. But tonight we have to deal with a situation in which the process is reversed and we find the father getting under a load that the son had been compelled to lay aside.

Nearly 20 years ago there came to us a young man of great promise, having a vision of his field of labor and an enthusiasm for creative endeavor. He was a busy man, with a big job, a complicated business to be built up and co-ordinated, but this did not blind him to civic obligations or the duties of citizenship. He was always ready with hand, heart and purse to help carry forward every sensible project for community betterment. How earnestly he wrot, many of us here can testify. His enthusiasm never flagged, his spirit never faltered, his vision never faded. But nature demanded her reckoning and an industry in the making was without its chief executive.

Some one was required to take up the burden and carry on. Some one with a sympathetic understanding of plans and purposes. Then this father, ripe in years and experience, came; quietly, patiently, earnestly. He gathered the broken ends, thoroly mastered every situation and carried on to success those plans visioned by his boy.

There are those present who know much better than I how successful has been his administration, but from every observation within the province of a layman his achievements entitle him to that eminent recognition which we, as a civic body, are trying to render by this gathering.

The name of Faisant has for so long a period been intimately connected with our major industry, and those who have borne it so constantly a part of our daily routine that an uncomfortable strangeness is destined to attend its separation from us.

We had cherished a hope that when the time should come that Mr. Faisant deemed it prudent to shift his load, he might still remain a citizen of Andover. But his decision, much to our regret, is otherwise, and that very soon we shall see his daily comings and goings no more.

To say goodbye is not easy. The thoughts that hover around its saying arouse the emotions and emotion stifles or makes difficult clear expression. Humanity possessed a conscious mind for thousands of years before it could utter an intelligable sound, and the human heart may still experience emotions more profound than human language can express.

And now, Mr. John B. Faisant, in the name of the Andover Community Club we bid you farewell and assure both you and Mrs. Faisant that our best wishes in full measure go with you always. We shall miss you, and this community will long cherish happy recollections of the years you have so honorably spent in our midst. The manner of man you are, has been an inspiration to all of us, and has day by day brought to our recollection what must have been the idea in mind of that wise old prophet poet who said:

"The longer on this earth I live and weigh the various qualities of men, the more I feel the high stern beauty of strict devotedness to duty. Not counting mortals praise, but finding recompense in work done squarely and unwasted days."

At the conclusion of Mr. Baker's remarks, Mr. John B. Faisant was asked for a few words in response, who said:

Superintendent Faisant's Response

Dear friends and neighbors. A silk factory man is hardly ever an entertaining speaker. His training does not generally run that way. Hence, with your permission, I will read a few words I have prepared to thank you for this splendid gathering at the occasion of my retirement.

I am at a loss to find the proper expressions which may perfectly reflect my thoughts of appreciation and gratitude at this wonderful friendly expression of good will which I believe cannot but more firmly cement the good and most friendly understanding that has always existed between the Andover people generally and the silk mill workers and the firm of Albert Godde, Bedin, Inc. But first let me thank Mr. Baker your speaker, and all here, for the delicate reference and tribute to the memory of my son, John H., who came here a young man. He was one of Andover. He identified himself with Andover. He loved Andover and its people, and especially the silk mill people, his co-workers, and helpers with him. But it never occurred to him, no more than it does to me, that we did else than trying to do what was our duty.

In a most essential manner, the superintendent of the silk mill here is the representative of the firm and if dutiful will conduct his charge in co-operation with the directions and policies of the executives above him. It is extremely gratifying to me to see here at this gathering Mr. Wood, the personal representative of Mr. Barbet, our energetic president, and our able manager Mr. Roudet, at whose suggestions and directions many improvements have been made and more planned, which will be beneficial for both the firm and for the contentment and health of the loyal co-workers of the silk mill. I am most happy to see here also such a large number of our friends and co-operators of the mill.

I have worked in many places in 57 years, but more intelligent, loyal, cheerful and willing co-operation I have never seen or experienced any place. I will say more. They are in behaviour, education, refinement the equal of any one, rich or poor, these friends have been as well as all the people of Andover, wonderful towards Mrs. Faisant and myself and I am sure that this willing, friendly co-operation will be extended, to my successor, Mr. Staffer, whom they will find a sympathetic and understanding gentleman and friend.

Words cannot express my thanks to all those good co-operators and friends for their kindly thoughts and expressions of friendliness towards me, or for their most beautiful present the watch and chain and $50 in cash that they present to me as a farewell memento. (Given by silk mill employees.—Ed.)

Going away, dear friends all, you may rest assured a part of our heart will stay here ever and our prayers will be ever for the happiness and prosperity of Andover and its people and especially my friends and co-workers at the silk mill.

Again thanking you.

The toastmaster then called Superintendent W. G. Pope to extend a few words of welcome to Supt. John Staffer. Supt. Pope spoke as follows:

Supt. Pope's Welcome

It is true that adieus must be said. They soften the sadness of parting. Yet they bring to mind the regret caused by the severing of friends; the losing of congenial comrades and business associates.

The pleasanter task by far is to welcome into citizenship and residence the new friend, the new citizen and comrade in business. This is my pleasant duty this evening.

The annals of our village may not be illustrious. Yet it is the chronicle of a sturdy pioneering people, settling at the foot of the lake, where the valleys intersect. Gradually they have reared a busy, pleasant village whose mills, stores and banks, school and churches bring service to a large area. Something of the roughness and independence of the pioneer forebears may still cling to us, yet you will discover us to be in our hearts, generous and neighborly.

Main street, Andover, is not exactly Fifth Avenue, New York City. Yet nowhere will you find more faithful and sincere business men. Burrows and Andover State Banks hardly compare in their deposits with those of Wall Street. Yet the banking service here is cordial and efficient. Our school with its new addition, of which we are justly proud, cannot offer the varied and enriched curriculum of the large city system. Yet its graduates go forth to positions of honor and service. None of our five churches would be mistaken for a cathedral, yet the sincere worshippers find peace within their doors. The houses of our residential streets do not much resemble those on River Side Drive and yet they house a neighborly and God-fearing folk. Lacking perhaps the full social grace of the cosmopolitan, yet retrieving this lack by their sincerity and friendliness.

We know that our village is especially fortunate in having located within its midst such a plant as the Albert Godde, Bedin, Inc., silk mill. A factory that gives employment to better than one hundred of our citizens and in a commercial way puts our town on the map. And to you, Mr. John Staffer, a new resident and as manager of this plant, we extend a most cordial welcome. You come to our village as a leader in its industrial life. You are a man of five talents, a man of authority, "saying unto this man, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh." We sincerely hope and expect that you will soon come to love this village and look upon it fondly as your home. We hope and trust that you will also deeply interest yourself in our civic and spiritual progress. This Service Club, which is this evening honored in having you as one of its guests, heartily invites you to become a member and to help us to make the village of Andover the cleanest, fairest and most prosperous village of our land.

* * *

In response to the warm words of welcome extended him, Mr. Staffer responded briefly with a few words of appreciation for this reception:

Words of Appreciation

As we have met here tonight as a Community Service Club, to bid God-speed to one of our citizens who is about to leave us, and whom we have all learned to esteem and respect, and also to welcome to our midst a new manager of our leading industry, a few words of appreciation for the industry which has given them employment in Andover, will not be out of place at this time.

Just how to express one's self properly to convey our deep feelings of pride and gratitude to the people who have made our leading industry, the silk mill, the outstanding business enterprise of this community, is the problem the chairman of this meeting seems to have assigned to the present speaker.

It is, indeed, a great pleasure to all Andover men to be able to meet personally and to become better acquainted with the men who have guided the affairs of our silk mills to the success they have attained at the present time.

The silk industry in Andover has

Albany.—Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., New York State Health Commissioner, gives the following prescription for Spring tonic: "Daily dose of sunshine mixed with a brisk walk. On arising in the morning apply pure water, externally, internally and eternally."

BIG BARN BURNS AT FRANK DEAN'S

Twenty-three Head of Stock and Three Horses, Two Automobiles and Farm Machinery.—Total Loss.

A fire that entailed the largest individual loss of any Andover has had in years was that Sunday morning when the large dairy barn belonging to Frank Dean, one mile west of Andover, with 23 head of stock and three horses and two automobiles were consumed. The loss will exceed $10,000, to say nothing of the loss of the use of the farm and farm machinery for use this spring on the 127 acre farm.

The origin of the fire is not known. Many theories have been expressed but there is absolutely no evidence to substantiate them. Many believe the fire was caused by tramps sleeping in the hay, and smoking, as the fire started above the first floor where the stock were housed.

The barn was a modern well built dairy barn, 36 by 57 feet. It was practically new, having been built two years ago this coming summer. It was double planked and building paper between, thus making it impossible for the smoke to escape. It settled to the floor occupied by the stock.

The fire was observed first by employees of the pump station, who sent in the fire alarm. At about the same time three men driving toward Wellsville discovered the fire and immediately aroused the Dean families. When they rushed to the barn there was no fire in the basement, which was filled with smoke. Upon attempting to liberate the stock and horses, it was found they were all dead, having been suffocated. There were three horses, 12 cows, five yearlings and six calves, an Oakland and a Pontiac automobile; all the farm machinery, including 12 tons of hay, quantity of grain and a large quantity of feed all were consumed.

The Andover fire department made a record run to the fire, and were of great assistance in protecting the other buildings. As soon as the barn doors were opened to try to rescue the stock the entire building burst into flames, and nothing could be done to save it.

The barn was one of the best in this community of good barns. It was modern in its requirements and an up-to-date dairy barn in every way.

Mr. Dean carried a very small insurance which consisted of $2,000 on the barn, $1,100 on the dairy cows, $100 on young stock and $250 on the machinery.

Huron T. Updyke

After nearly a lifetime passed on the farm home where he was born, in the town of Greenwood, Huron T. Updyke passed away Wednesday, March 20th, of ulcers of the stomach, after an illness of about three months, aged nearly 84 years.

The deceased was a man well known thruout this entire vicinity, and had been a farmer all his life.

Huron T. Updyke was the son of Francis and Jemima Updyke, and was born May 19, 1845, on the farm where he died.

The deceased was married to Mira Glover, who died five years ago, to whom four children were born, Jennie Mae, John Francis, Martha Bessie and Walter H. He is survived by only one daughter, Mrs. Clarence Wittie, one sister, Mrs. Martha Brown and one brother, Charles Updyke, all of Andover.

Funeral services were held at the home Saturday afternoon, Rev. Walter Dynes of the Methodist church of which deceased was a member, officiating.
