Andover High School TIDBITS

Well, we are sure proud of our actors and actresses.

The stars of the talkies and the stage can look for their laurels for the cast of "And Mary Did" sure looked as tho they could stand under some laurel.

The Andover High School was the scene of the three-act play, written by Lawrence C. Worcester. The scene occurred on November 25th and 26th, 1929. These days will go down in the History of Andover High School as the days when "And Mary Did" was presented for the public's approval.

It was more than public approval; it was acclamation. The audience acclaimed the play as the best acted of any ever produced by local high school students. The cast was coached for the excellent presentation by Miss Helen Clark. She was assisted by Miss Helen Klefeker and Principal Hardy. The coaches are to be commended for their efforts.

Getting back to the cast, well they all sure deserve congratulations for their acting. The "make believe" air of most amateurs was not to be noticed. The players lived their parts, one might say.

Cast of Characters

Mary Sterling, the heroine, a modern "Joan of Arc," Kathryn O'Donnell.

Lawrence Grey, the hero, a modern Lancelot, Francis Cable.

Mrs. Sterling, an old-fashioned mother, Marguerite Perry.

Dressa Rand, the girl that men forget, Julia Joyce.

Daniel Grey, father of Lawrence, Edward Crandall.

Edith Smith, Mary's chum, whose chief aim in life is to "laff off" the other 50 pounds, Virgil Slaght.

Willie Sterling and Betty Sterling, Mary's brother and sister, Ralph Williams and Glenora Baker.

Miss O. G. Whittaker, a masculine monument to feminine freedom, Doris Church.

Matilda, the maid, Cecelia Gavin.

Henry, Mr. Grey's gardner, who spends most of his time in Matilda's kitchen, Lloyd Gee.

Note:-Monday evening, due to the illness of Edwin Aldrean, No. 2 of the entra'acts was ommitted and its place we had "Elmer and Elias" with Donald Lynch and Joe McAndrew.

Edward Crandall was elected Treasurer of the Andover H. S. Athletic Association.

OVER AND OVER

Owing to our Thanksgiving vacation, the assembly last week was held at the usual time, but on Wednesday instead of Friday. The two eighth grade teachers had charge of the program, which was partly in comemoration of National Book Week and Thanksgiving. Some popular books were potrayed in an amazing way. Some Thanksgiving songs to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne" were sung by the entire eighth grade, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" and "America" were sung by the audience before and after.

The Athletic Association had a "rally" in which the officers and two basket-ball squads were cheered very enthusiastically.

THIRD GRADE

Wednesday morning the third grade put on the assembly program.

A play "If Books Could Talk" as given for National Book Week. The rest was a Thanksgiving program as follows:

Song - School
Play - "If Books Could Talk"
Song - Come Lets Go.
Thanksgiving.
That Dinner
Song - That Turkey
The Kitten's Thanksgiving
Thankfull Sambo
Song - School.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

WORTH CONSIDERING

While the average span of life has been materially lengthened by the splendid progress in medicine and surgery, yet the fact remains that more men of middle age or just beyond are dying in a given period of time than ever before. In fact it seems now that middle-age is the critical period for men. They are found dead in the bath-tub, at the steering wheel, on the golf links, at the desk—and the newspaper diagnosis is usually "heart disease."

It is true that the heart does more work than any other unit within the human being. It lifts from ten to 18 pounds of blood 72 times a minute; multiply; and that by 60 to give you the pounds lifted per hour by the heart—I think it is something over 77,000: Think of a day—a week—a month—a year—a lifetime! The power of this heart is simply staggering to belief.

Then, when the body is in action—when exercising, or indulging in field sportsfl the muscular pressure on the blood-vessels is doubled—trebled—and the labor of the heart increased in exact proportion. The heart is actually made stronger and more efficient by wholesome exercise in work or play. Just why should this wonderful organ be the first to fail, at an age when it should be at its best?

The answer is, the heart is poisoned from within. Strangely enough—by food—food—useful, necessary food! Eaten at improper hours, in gluttonous quantity. The body is stuffed with heavy proteins at hours when their digestion is impossible. I still maintain that the six o'clock dinner-debauch is killing more of our middle-aged men than cancer. The heart cannot obtain its own proper nourishment from a torrent of undigested proteins within the blood-stream from which it must be sustained.

The six o'clock dinner is an assassin that creeps upon its happy victim by stealth—and gets him ultimately. Our pioneers, who knew more than we do, died of old age. Mush and milk for supper is a good prescription—mighty good.

It is good for us sometimes to consider how our Banks have helped to develop our national Resources—

Without their help much of our so-called national wealth would not be at our disposal. The Federal Reserve System has been a factor of immense importance in placing these National gifts at the door of mankind.

Maybe we can help develop your own business in the same way but on a smaller scale.

They are a clean, quick match that fire every time and heads do not fly.

They are safe for the children to use.

Ten cents a dozen; three for 25c.

The Ivorine Enameled Ware that has just come upon the market is as handsome and attractive as any cooking ware that has been developed in a long time.

We have a sample display in our show window—take a peek at it.

Only two articles in the assortment cost more than $1.00.

Open season for Weather Strip. The outside doors you use every day can let in enough cold air to offset a considerable amount of fuel that is cost you real money.

A few cents worth of Weather Strip at stragetic points will save dollars on the fuel bill. Why not measure up and tack it on before it really gets too cold to do the job in comfort.

Felt strip, rubber strip, wood strip—a style and size for every spot.

In a few days you will receive by mail or at your door our folder of adaptable Christmas Gifts. We hope it will solve for you that most perplexing problem of suitable gifts for the whole family.

It is no longer a secret that the New Method Stove Co. of Mansfield, Ohio, has developed a most unusual gas heater.

The first great improvement that made possible a radiant gas stove was a perfected burner, one that would measure its pressure exactly at each outlet.

Burners have been improved until it appears no longer possible to gain any further efficiency thru change of burner type of construction and most stove makers have been content to stop there.

New Method engineers were not satisfied so have devised and patented the New Method Aerating; double radiant increases air pressure, produces more heat from the same amount of gas and evens up combustion full length of radiant. It has produced in their gas heater, the same increase in efficiency that high compression has produced in automobile engines.

You can obtain this exclusive feature only in New Method Radiant Gas Heaters. You cannot afford to invest your good money in any but heaters that are strictly up to date.

Gas Heaters using the old type single, flat front radiants are as obsolete as Hoop Skirts.

We have just added several more sizes to our line of auto glass. We believe we are now able to cut any size you will require.

FARM BOYS NOW GET REAL MONEY

Old Customs Superceded by "Business Farming," Which Provides Spending Money For All the Family

Times have changed since grandfather was a boy, and certainly not for the worse in regard to spending money for farm boys.

Fifty years ago it was the custom for the farm boy to work at home without wages until he became of age. Then his father gave him a horse, an implement or two, and a paternal blessing; and with this capital the son started out to make his way in the world.

It is not hard to understand this when we recall that in those days money was not much used in the business transactions of farmers. It was the custom then for the farmer to take a load of wheat or butter and eggs to town and barter or trade them for shoes, clothing, and other necessities. Farmers did not handle much money and farmers' sons handled less.

The present-day farmer sells his crops for cash; when he buys his groceries, drygoods, and automobile tires he writes checks for them. Money enters into his business transactions as it does with his city cousins.

It is quite natural, then, that under these changed conditions farmers should see the advantage, even the necessity, of providing spending money for their children.

The state college of agriculture made a study during the past summer of the money income of 300 boys who are at home on their fathers' farms in a dairy section of the state. Most of these boys are paid wages, are given a money allowance, or receive spending money in some other way. In a few instances elaborate business arrangements have been made between father and son.

One 19-year-old boy started in a 4-H Club livestock enterprise a few years ago and has now developed it to the extent that he has pure-bred livestock in his own name to the value of $3,000. He owns his own team and harness, and drives his own $900 sedan. This boy, with his business, fits into the business of the rest of the farm. The father feeds the cows which belong to the boy and has the milk from them but the boy has what he makes on the sale of pure-bred stock.

Two other boys 18 and 20 years of age rented their fathers' farms outright for cash. In several instances father and son are in partnership.

The precise arrangement matters little. The important fact is that business arrangements are working on many farms. The boys on these farms have learned the value of money early in life. They have seen and felt the results of their good judgment or their mistakes. Who can deny that as a result of this early experience, they will be better prepared to make their way in business, whether it be farming or some other occupation?

Bolivar Man Loses Arm

Elmer M. Mitchell of Bolivar, had his hand and arm so badly crushed, while operating a corn cutter, last week, as to necessitate amputation. A glove on his right hand caught in the machine in such a manner as to draw the arm under the knives.

This is the last week for the Red Cross Roll Call.
