NEED IS GREATER THAN EVER NOW

County Health and Welfare Association Makes Plea For Generous Buying of Christmas Seals.

"When times are bad and there is more unemployment than usual, people should give more liberally to such a cause as this," said Mr. C. A. Ackerly in announcing this year's Christmas Seal Campaign. "We need help this year more than ever before. Already the office of our association is being flooded with appeals for aid and service."

This year's sale of the Health Christmas Seals will open on December 1st and continue until Christmas. The money received from the seals helps to carry on the anti-tuberculosis and other health work of the Allegany County Public Health and Welfare Association. Mr. C. A. Ackerly of Cuba is president of the Association and Dr. L. L. C. Lewis of Belmont is chairman of the Christmas Seal committee.

The work which the Christmas seals help to finance includes tuberculosis clinics where expert diagnosis and advice is given free to all who need it. They provide aid and service for sick and needy children. They buy milk and other nourishing food, clothing and shelter and medical care. They help to maintain the Children's Health Camp at Cuba Lake where last year 89 undernourished and sickly children of our county were given a chance for health and happier life. The seals also make possible the Mental Hygiene clinics at which persons with mental problems receive the advice and aid of specialists in mental and nervous disorders. Children who are found living in filthy and unfit homes are provided with good homes and proper care.

This year there will be no general house-to-house canvass for the seals. Instead about six thousand letters will be mailed from the Belmont office. Each letter will contain one or more sheets of the seals, one hundred seals to a sheet, with the request that the person receiving them keep the seals and return the money for them, one dollar for each sheet of seals. A stamped addressed envelope is enclosed for the return of the remittance or the seals if they are not wanted.

The seals this year are unusually attractive and will give an attractive and appropriate holiday touch to Christmas mail, parcels, etc.

GAVE HIS BLOOD TO SAVE WOMAN

Edward Crandall of Andover Was Only One Acceptable by Physicians Among Many Volunteers.

Lancaster, Pa.—Two blood transfusions were recently made at St. Joseph's hospital here in an effort to save the lives of two young women, both of whom were in a serious condition following operations.

The victims were Miss Elsie Lee, 21 of 139 East Chestnut street and Miss Ada Miller, 17, of 405 Howard avenue.

Dr. Gregory Chadman, head of the St. Joseph's hospital laboratory staff performed both transfusions.

The operations were made possible after more than 100 persons answered an appeal made for volunteers for a blood transfusion for Miss Lee. The appeal was posted on a bulletin in front of the News Era and broadcast over radio station WGAL.

After Edward Crandall of Andover, N. Y., a student at Bowman's Technical School was accepted as a donor for Miss Lee, hospital authorities decided to continue the blood test to secure a volunteer for Miss Miller, who was also in a critical condition.

Sergeant Ray Kamm was accepted as a donor for Miss Miller's transfusion.

Miss Lee is an employee of the Capitol theatre and the entire theatre staff reported at the hospital. None of them had the same type of blood, it was found.

During the noon hour, students from the local high school, Bowman's Technical School, Stevens Trade and members of the Lancaster police force called at the hospital to undergo blood tests.

New York state's potato crop is slightly better than normal. The United States' crop is 42 million bushels below the five year average. "A Vegetable and Fruit Storage Room, tells how to store supplies safely in spite of a furnace. It takes a room, but the bulletin tells how to build it. Ask the office of publications at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., for a copy.

ALLEGANY COUNTY POMONA GRANGE

Program For Sessions to be Held at Cuba on December 4 and 5. Andover Grangers to Participate.

The meeting of the Allegany County Pomona Grange will be held in Cuba December 4 and 5, and an unusual amount of important business is in prospect. Among the features of interest on the program is an illustrated lecture to be given Thursday night by Elmer E. Conrath, entitled "Glimpses of Other Lands."

Charles Rinker, master of Cuba Grange, will give the address of welcome Thursday morning. Harry G. Smith of Andover Grange will make the response. Reports of committees and officers and music by Clarksville Grange will follow.

An important event in the program will be the report of the National Grange at Rochester by Fred Lilly of Belfast. The Rev. C. C. Creegan of Friendship will speak on "Two Great Farmers Who Became Statesmen."

A recreation period filling out the afternoon will include a paper by Mrs. E. W. Combs of Bolivar Grange a recitation by Minnie Robinson of Inavale and a demonstration of 4-H Club work, also music by Friendship Grange.

In the evening, besides Mr. Conrath's lecture, the Angelica Grange will give a playlet, "A Bargain's a Bargain." Angelica Grange will confer the fifth degree. Music will include a cornet solo by Wisner Cook of Andover and numbers by the Cuba quartet.

Election of officers will take place Friday morning, and in the afternoon the officers will be installed by John Zorn of Granger. Suggestions for next year's work will be heard at the business meeting preceding adjournment.

Ardean Wilcox

Ardean Wilcox, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilcox, was born on Davis Hill, Andover township, Nov. 19, 1872 and practically all of his life has been lived in that vicinity and Andover village.

Nov. 26, 1904 he was married to Miss Mattie Hayes of Wellsville, who survives, with a daughter, Mrs. Orla Baker and four grandchildren of this village; one brother, Edward Wilcox of Wellsville, and a niece, Mrs. Elmer Kemp of Fort Wingate, N. M.

Mr. Wilcox was a man of pleasing personality, kind and loyal to his friends and industrious in his habits. He had been employed as a driller of oil wells for many years, having worked for J. P. Smith in the Bradford field of late.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge.

Deceased had been in ill health for some time and last September submitted to an operation. His last illness was of short duration and his death came as a shock to many as he had been about the streets within a week of his passing.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the home on Rochester avenue, Andover, Rev. W. L. Greene officiating. Burial was in the family plot in the Slocum cemetery on Davis Hill.

Cars Collide

As Claude Eldridge was taking his daughters and the Misses Weinhauers and Marion Lever to Hornell Friday night to attend a meeting, a car driven by Mr. Fitch, superintendent of the Bunce Construction Co., and formerly of this village and the Eldridge car collided near the golf course between Alfred Station and Almond. The cars were badly damaged but no one was injured.

Mrs. Bloss Entertains

Mrs. A. L. Bloss entertained a company at a bridge dinner Wednesday evening at her home on Greenwood street.

THE WHITE HOUSE WASHINGTON

The Christmas Seals of the National Tuberculosis Association which are sold at Christmas time every year provide funds for one of the most valuable of all services to mankind in helping to prevent and destroy a disease which threatens millions of homes and weakens millions of the children and youth of the nation. I commend this yearly campaign to all our people.

Herbert Hoover

OUR AMAZING ELECTRIC GENIE

C. M. Ripley, E.E., Tells Group of Andover Business Men of Growth and Benefits of Electricity.

After a vacation of several months, the Andover Service Club developed enough life Friday evening to hold a meeting at the Brunings Tavern. About 40 Andover business men gathered to hear a very interesting and timely lecture by C. M. Ripley, E.E., of the General Electric Co.

Besides the members the club were hosts to George M. Bartholomew, district manager of the Niagara & Hudson Electric Co., of Olean, C. E. Hammond of Wellsville, E. J. Rowe of the Wellsville Electric Co., and Basil Wilkinson of Cuba.

In his address, Mr. Ripley took his hearers back 50 years, and made a comparison with present day conditions. The rapidity with which the electric business has increased and developed was a revelation to most of his listeners. Following are a few of the high points in Mr. Ripley's address:

When Edison built his lamp, men wore long beards and women worked in sweat shops and tenements—stitch, stitch, stitch. Millions of workers toiled seven days a week and 12 hours a day. Women wore bustles and hoop skirts and pinched their waists with tight corsets. Of every hundred babies born, 25 or a quarter of them were dead before five years of age. Now only eleven. Mother baked the bread at home on a coal or wood stove. Washing was done in wooden tubs with the old scrub board and wash boiler. Servant girls got $3 a week.

When Edison designed his three-wire distributing system, we ran errands on foot. Few houses had bathtubs—now we have two tubs for every automobile. Then only a Jules Verne could dream of such things as radio or submarines. Darius Green and his flying machine were both considered a joke. Then panics and industrial depressions often lasted five years at a stretch or longer. Poverty was considered permanent and inevitable. Then it was thought to be a fundamental law of economics that the only way to reduce prices was to cut wages. Now individual bank deposits have increased 24 times and life insurance exceeds 73 billions.

When Edison built the first electric central station utility company, horse-cars were the best local transportation. Water was either pumped by hand or carried into most houses. Steam and hot-water systems were rare indeed. Farmers threw away their corn cobs and cotton seeds. No one thought about by-products then. Chemists and engineers were considered visionaries. Aluminum was $7 a pound instead of 28 cents and enameled kitchen ware was yet to "arrive." Besides wooden bowls and dishes many forks and spoons were made of wood.

When Edison built his electric dynamo and electric motor, animals did the ploughing and hauling along the muddy roads. The neighborhood grist mill ground the flour and the village blacksmith entertained under the spreading chestnut tree.

When Edison built his lamp, the output of steel was 35 pounds per capita per year—not enough for a Ford's differential today. Steel production has increased 56 times, mineral production 15 times, factory output 12 times.

TAXATION BASED ON ABILITY TO PAY

Grange Takes Decided Stand on Most National Issues at Its Final Session in Rochester.

Rochester, Nov. 21.—The National Grange, in the concluding session of its 64th annual meeting today placed itself on record for taxation based on ability to pay; for a deep sea waterway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic; for public development and operation of waterpower when public regulation fails to accomplish its purpose; for strengthening of the federal farm loan system; for enforcement of the 18th amendment and all legislation supporting it.

The Grange commended President Hoover for his efforts to bring about world peace, approved of International Court of Justice, and declared that "now it is deflation which needs to be opposed." The latter statement is embodied in a report of a special committee, unanimously adopted, which said: "We believe that the Federal Reserve System should oppose both inflation and deflation."

Sessions of the Grange continued until evening in order to clear up all last moment business. Thruout the day committees reported on resolutions which had been referred to them. Most of these resolutions were debated from the floor, some of them amended and some of them referred back to committees for report later in the day.

Successful Meeting

The session concluded with a number of resolutions thanking all concerned for contributing to the success of the meeting in Rochester, which National Master Louis J. Taber said "the most successful gathering in the history of the National Grange."

Included in the grist of resolutions that were adopted in the final hours were the following:

For a complete study of the tax situation by the National Grange.

For development of a program of rural electrification.

For adoption of uniform traffic signals.

For a study of the stabilization of the currency.

For continued effort in procuring federal aid for farm-to-market roads.

For enactment of laws limiting length of truck and trailers to 48 feet.

Opposing the use of oleomargarine as a substitute for butter in government institutions.

For legislation bringing collateral advertising of foods, drugs and narcotics within the scope of the pure foods and drugs act.

Expressing sympathy with the purposes underlying the unofficial Pan-American Institute of reciprocal trade and favoring branch of the institute in the United States.

Thanking the railroads for timely assistance and co-operation with farmers in the drought-stricken area.

Declaring that agricultural extension service should be free to all, without regard to affiliation in organizations, and that with that end in view no group or organization to be permitted to pay any portion of the expense of extension workers.

Opposing blanket bond issues on reclamation and drainage districts based on true value of the land because failure of portions of the lands throws unfair burden in excess of benefits upon other land-owners.

Two resolutions expressed the views of the National Grange that the prohibition laws should not be tampered with until some better practical plan for control of the liquor traffic is brought forward, and that if any such plan is developed it be put operative only in the manner provided by law.

The second resolution on the subject says: "We vigorously oppose all efforts to nullify our existing laws. The National Grange re-affirms its stand in support of temperance and we demand strict enforcement of the 18th Amendment and all laws supporting it."

In regard to public operation of water power, the resolution "reaffirm the policy of the National Grange for control of water power resources," and "deplores the weakening of government regulation." The resolution further declares "that when public regulation fails to accomplish its purposes of assuring rates based on reasonable return upon actual necessary capital invested, free from expansive holding company control, public development and operation of four water power resources as justifiable and proper."

On the question of taxation the Grange adopted the report of its committee on taxation, headed by A. S. Goss, of Oregon, which said: "We would especially emphasize the belief that real estate can not, and should not, bear the ever-increasing burden of the cost of government, but that the principle of ability to pay or benefits received should be the basis upon which taxes may be assessed."

Jesse Kemp Is Killed By Bus

Jesse Kemp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kemp of Greenwood street, died Saturday night in the emergency hospital, Buffalo, from injuries received a short time before as he was riding his motorcycle to his home in that city, after completing his day's work. His motorcycle with a side car attachment ran against the rear of a large bus at Broadway and Union road in Cheetowaga and he suffered a fractured skull. He was rushed to a hospital but died within a few minutes.

Mr. Kemp was 29 years of age and grew to manhood in this village where he was well known.

J. L. WILLIAMS BUYS OLD FAIR GROUNDS

Local Contractor Invests in Wellsville Real Estate.—Will Open Street and Build New Houses.

J. L. Williams closed a real estate deal last Friday afternoon whereby he becomes the owner of the Wellsville race track and fair grounds. The purchase was made from Fred Rice and Horace Davis of Wellsville.

Mr. Williams has plans for developing this property at once. He will make the property something that Wellsville needs and wants rather than one which has been for years a source of loss to its owners. He anticipates cleaning up the entire track which embraces something over 100 acres of land laying within the village limits and the erection of modern moderately priced residences. To do this, new streets will be laid out one of which is to parallel Dyke street.

Mr. Williams has built a number of houses in Andover and others in Wellsville and other places. He has had much experience in construction work. The past few years he has specialized in concrete and stucco construction. The past summer he had the contract of curbing Dyke street in Andover.

When spring opens up he will make things hum on his Wellsville holdings or he will do much different than he has always done with his many other properties.

New Grange Officers

At the regular meeting of Andover Grange, No. 1098, Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Howard Green, Master.
Dewey Northrup, Overseer.
Annette Taylor, Lecturer.
Clifford Green, Steward.
Earl Dodge, Assistant Steward.
Marion Cook, Chaplain.
Clifford Burdick, Treasurer.
Nellie Green, Secretary.
Wisner Cook, Gate Keeper.
Effie Burbank, Ceres.
Angilee Dodge, Pomona.
Bessie Green, Flora.
Marjorie Green, Lady Assistant.
Ruth Taylor, Pianist.
Emma Folsing, Assistant Lecturer.
A. L. Rogers, Trustee.
C. A. Robinson, Insurance Director.

SHORT WEIGHT DOES NOT PAY

County Sealer of Weights and Measures A. W. Corwin Makes Fine Report to Board of Supervisors.

The News is in receipt of a fine report of the work of Sealer of Weights and Measures A. W. Corwin, to the Board of Supervisors.

"Short Weight Does Not Pay!" This is the theme carried out in the annual report of Allen W. Corwin of Wellsville, Allegany county sealer of weights and measures given at last week's session of the county Board of Supervisors.

Attractively compiled in book form, with scattered illustrations, the report is one of the most complete and interesting heard by the board. It commends the co-operation given the Weights and Measures work by supervisors, newspapers and the public.

The total number of pieces of apparatus inspected, sealed and condemned in the past year by Sealer Corwin follows:

Sealed	5,996
Condemned	364
Total	6,360
Number of places visited	769
Distance traveled in county (miles)	4,895

Prosecution Not Policy

The report explains that it has not been the policy of the department to collect a large number of fines or penalties. Prosecution has been resorted to only as a last means of enforcing the law, when all other methods have failed.

"The smart fellow," Mr. Corwin says, "who thinks he can get by with cheating the public is made to realize that short weight does not pay and that he must change his methods if he wishes to stay in business."

Not only is the ultimate consumer protected by his department, Mr. Corwin's report points out, but the department is as much interested in seeing that the merchant gets a fair deal.

Unfair Customs

The report tells of unfair customs that have existed in the past in the sale of bananas, enameled ware and other products.

Especially unfair has been the method of measuring the number of board feet in saw logs by the use of inaccurate log rules. In order to correct this, largely thru the efforts of the Allegany County Department, there passed a law establishing the Doyle board log rule in New York State known as the International log rule, held to be far the most accurate rule.

Delivered Convention Paper

The Allegany sealer attended both the national and state conventions of weights and measures officials, the first having been held in Washington and the latter in Niagara Falls.

Mr. Corwin, at the national conference, delivered a paper on the "log rule" with slides illustrating his talk. The subject had never before been presented to a national convention and received a great deal of interest. The paper was quite generally copied by weights and measures officials throughout the country, and as re-written from a standardization point of view, was printed in the Commercial Standards Monthly issued by the United States Department of Commerce.

THEY KNOW HOW TO JUDGE POULTRY

Andover High School Poultry Judging Team Takes First Honors at Alfred, Class "B."

The Andover High School's poultry judging team added new laurels for themselves in bringing home the cup in Class B poultry judging competition held at the State School of Agriculture at Alfred last Friday.

Mr. Robinson and his boys are naturally elated, but their win is due to hard work and perseverance. They certainly deserve their honors. The team consisted of the following boys: Donald Kemp, Henry Huffman and Edward Brewster.

The second place in this competition was taken by the team from Canaseraga High School, also under the training of Mr. Robinson.

Grange Fair Postponed

On account of so much illness in Andover at the present time, the Andover Grange voted to postpone their annual fair which was to have been held December 10th, to some later date.
