Bureau Wants Opinion on Potato Legislation

Potato growers of Allegany county may express whether or not they favor legislation embodied in the proposed potato act of 1935, intended to raise the price of potatoes by limiting the amount marketed. The Allegany County Farm Bureau is asking growers whether or not they favor such legislation. Any potato grower may get a copy of a brief explanation of the provisions of the bill at the farm bureau office and a card to indicate his opinion in regard to it.

The Farm Bureau, according to William Hodnett of Fillmore, chairman of the Allegany County Farm Bureau potato committee, is neither opposing nor endorsing the legislation. It is simply trying to make information concerning it available to growers so that they may express their wishes in regard to it.

Numerous inquiries have been received at the Farm Bureau offices in New York State including inquiries from congressmen in some districts asking what the sentiment of farmers is on this proposal. In this, as in other matters, it is the policy of the Farm Bureau to go directly to the growers for their judgment in such matters.
