EXCHANGE CLUB GETS ITS CHARTER

Charter Night Brings Guests to Andover From Several Cities and Towns. Enthusiasm Prevailed.

With the organization of an Exchange Club of Andover completed here Wednesday evening, May 5th, with a charter presentation banquet, served most graciously and efficiently by the ladies of the local Rebekah lodge at I. O. O. F. hall, Andover now is represented in the National Exchange Club, the largest exclusively national service club in the United States, and one of the four largest in the world.

Merle J. Fairbanks, first vice president of New York State Exchange, of Hornell, designated by the National Exchange Club, presented to the Andover Exchange Club its charter. The Exchange Club of Hornell acted as sponsors for the Andover Club. They were presented a beautiful service banner from the National Exchange Club, as an award of merit for this service. Edward S Mason, treasurer of the Hornell Club was also presented with a service award lapel emblem from the National Exchange, for his individual efforts in the formation of the Andover Exchange Club.

Eighty-eight Exchangeites, many accompanied by their ladies, were seated at the banquet table and enjoyed a most happy social time. Mrs. Alice Bailey, violin and Mrs. Evelyn Smith of Wellsville, piano, furnished beautiful dinner music thruout the serving of the banquet. Also the occasion was enlivened by singing of popular songs, led by Principal Grace E. Bostwick by the diners during the meal. Mrs. Baker played a violin solo on the program, in a very capable manner; "Zigeunerweisen" by Sarasate; "Mazurka de Concerto" by Musin.

After the dinner, C. Ray McGill, president of the newly formed Andover Exchange Club, acting as toastmaster, introduced the following speakers:

C. C. Cheney, district governor of District No. 10 of Salamanca, gave a very informing address telling of the purpose and work of the Exchange Clubs.

Ralph Greenlee, district governor of District No. 9, of Arkport, in a very effective manner spoke of Exchange Club activities and presented the service banner to the Hornell club.

B. J. Wilkinson of Olean, a former Andover man, congratulated Andover in forming an Exchange Club. Mr. Wilkinson is a member of the State Board of Control.

Merle J. Fairbanks of Hornell then presented President C. Ray McGill for the Andover Exchange Club, its National charter, in a very appropriate address. Mr. Fairbanks is a Hornell banker. He joined the Exchange Club in 1926 as a charter member of the Hornell club. He was secretary of that club in 1928. At the 1934 New York State convention, held in Olean, Mr. Fairbanks became third vice president of the State, was then elected second vice president in 1935 at Binghamton and rose to first vice president last June at Poughkeepsie. During his present term he has won the True-Blue Wings.

Delegations of visiting Exchangeites were present from Wellsville, Hornell, Olean, Salamanca and Arkport.

At the conclusion of the program dancing was enjoyed by all who so desired.

EMPLOYMENT IS UP TO PEAK OF 1929

Survey Shows Steady Gain in Re-employment. Accurate Government Census Now Needed.

Employment in the manufacturing industries as of April 1, 1937, is reported by the National Association of Manufactures to have reached 1929 levels, with approximately 11,000,000 persons now on the payrolls.

The estimate comprised the most recent figures available upon the unemployment situation within manufacturing. It was based upon the results of a telegraphic survey, coupled with figures of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the U. S. Census of Manufacturers, and the National Industrial Conference Board.

The Federal Reserve Board, its data derived from customary governmental sources of information, confirmed the Association's figures in a simultaneous report, finding that in March, for the first time since the depression, more people had jobs in manufacturing industries than in 1923-25, the years it selected for comparisons.

Since 1923, the report revealed, 2,310,000 persons have found jobs. These were divided, with 2,190,000 or 66 per cent in the durable goods industries, and 1,120,000 or 34 per cent, in the non durable goods industries.

"The manufacturing industries have been and are swiftly re-employing the idle," the statement of the Association said. "With the strides that have been made and the indications for the future, if cooperation can be supplanted for industrial strife, it is only folly to speak of America with a permanent unemployment problem of huge proportions.

"We have never been without pessimists. There have always been those who forecast the end of industrial progress. But in thousands of laboratories and research plants throughout the country, new jobs are daily being born. New industries are appearing and expanding. The unemployed are being absorbed. The manufacturing industries are driving forward. As these industries progress, unemployment in other fields also is being curtailed.

"Department of Labor figures show that between February 15 and March 15 alone, 305,000 jobless persons had found work with an increase of $15,100,000 in industrial payrolls. This gain came during one of the worst periods of strikes and industrial disorder in the nation's history.

"We know now that manufacturing employment is at or above the 1929 levels and that in many industries wages are the highest in their history. We know that there is a severe shortage of skilled labor becoming more apparent month by month.

"But we also know that billions of dollars are still being spent to maintain an army of unemployed, an army of which no one knows the size. Estimates range from below 3,000,000 to above 10,000,000.

"The time has come to take stock of our progress and to accurately forecast the problems of the near future thru a quick, scientific count of the unemployed by the government. If unemployed figures are lower than is now estimated, expenditures for relief can be curtailed. Such a curtailment would move the government a step nearer a balanced budget. Once the government's expenditures are brought within the bounds of its income, a new stimulus will be given to the nation's business with more stability for the future.

The first white man to behold the Grand Canyon was Garcia Lopez de Cardenas, who had been sent from Zuni, New Mexico, to find a river far to the west of which natives had spoken.

A Lesson in Leadership

by Lawrence Hawthorne

Let me direct the thoughts of men
And I care not who makes their laws!
Let me control their hearts, and then
I shall succeed in any cause.
Give me the power of appeal
To sentiment, and men will see
The glory of a great ideal—
And they will gladly follow me.

Let me direct the thoughts of men
Along the paths of friendliness,
And let me guide their steps again
Where joy will cheer and beauty bless—
Let me bring music to their souls
And I can rule a continent!
No other force so well controls
The acts of men as sentiment.
