Three More Days Of Fun in Harmony Hall Here

Rain Dampens Carnival Spirit Tuesday—Drawing of Lucky Winner for the Week Held Saturday Night

The rain, as usual, when the local firemen put on a celebration of any kind, put a damper on the opening night, Tuesday, but the few companies coming to Andover to participate paraded as scheduled.

The midway in Harmony Hall was well patronized and a fine crowd attended the free dance given each evening of the week.

Wednesday night was rather quiet due to the sudden drop in temperature but the balance of the week promises to bring out many to the indoor carnival.

Tonight (Thursday) the committee has secured the Andover High School group of boys in their tumbling acts and acrobatic stunts, followed by other features and dancing.

Friday night, besides the regular attractions and features, Prin. Glenn E. Bretsch will supervise a spelling bee, open to all, for which a cash award will be given the winner.

Saturday night, the last night of the fair, will have various features ending with the drawing of the big prize of the week. It is necessary for all those holding tickets to be present or see that your ticket is present in order to win.

The numerous booths, games, blanket stands, wheels, fish ponds, etc., will be in full swing each evening, and to those who care to dance good music is being provided by a local orchestra every night.

Every night a door prize is given.

Musical Club Is Entertained at Baker-Rogers Studio

September Meeting of the Club Held Monday Night. Study Life of Ludwig Beethoven.

The Musical Club held its September meeting at the Baker and Rogers studio on Dyke street Monday evening. Mrs. Hayden Rogers entertained the club with the following piano program:

Beethoven's Sonata in F Major.
A—Allegro.
B—Allegretto.
C—Presto.

The life of Ludwig Van Beethoven was read by Pearl Goodridge and discussed by the club.

Musical games and refreshments were served and enjoyed by all.

Ludwig Van Beethoven

Ludwig Van Beethoven was born at Bonn, Dec. 16, 1770 and died Mar. 26, 1827 at Vienna. He began his musical education at four years of age under his father's severe treatment who appreciated the child's talent. But his gifts were not developed until later on.

His father and grandfather were professional musicians. At eleven years of age Neefe took charge of the boy's tuition and left a record of the boy's progress at that time. At 12 years he was organist. At 13 he was promoted to the position of which was to assist at operatic rehearsals and play the piano at the performances.

He was very melancholy and did not enter sports of those of his age but his creative mind has carried music almost beyond human conception. His soul he breathes his music in public school he received a slight knowledge of Latin and drawing and elementary branches. He spoke and wrote French fluently, would have learned more about English if it were not for his deafness. The Italian language he could only read. He wrote the Latin music for the Catholic church and possessed a deep religious nature, being brought up under the Catholic faith. His life was spotless but the wine cup brought poverty and unhappiness.

Beethoven was never married. His most serious love affair was with Countess Guillette. She made him miserably happy for he said unluckily she was not his rank of life and he could not marry. He lived by his pen and was a composer not only by nature but by profession. Rays of sunshine he sent into the heart of man. Most of his later years were spent in the city of Vienna. His nine symphonies and numerous works for the piano and for voice gave him the rank of one of the greatest composers of all time.

Will Elect Delegates To Constitutional Convention

At the November Election, Electors Will Choose Delegates to Represent Their Ideas.

Ithaca, Oct. 11.—"Are you going to vote for the new state constitution?"

"Why, I thought we voted for that last year, or didn't we?"

The answer is "no" according to Dr. V. B. Hart of the department of agricultural economics at Cornell University. Last year a majority of citizens voted in favor of a convention to revise the constitution. Such a convention is now scheduled for the spring of 1938.

This fall, however, say Dr. Hart, delegates will have to be chosen for the 1938 convention; and next April they will meet in Albany to consider the present constitution and decide whether it needs to be changed.

"Every voter of the state has an obligation and a duty to keep informed about the constitution, the constitutional convention, delegates to this convention and the work that it will ultimately do."

The constitutional convention is made up of three delegates from each senatorial district and 15 delegates at large. This means that at this 1937 regular fall election three delegates to the constitutional convention will be elected in each of the 51 senatorial districts of the state and 15 other delegates elected by voters all over the state, says Dr. Hart.

If the convention meeting next April finishes their business six weeks before the fall election of 1938, citizens may vote on a new constitution a year from this fall. Based on past history, however, overhauling the constitution might take two or three years before it can actually be voted upon.

"New York State's constitution is ten years older than that of the United States. It was adopted at Kingston on April 20, 1777, right in the middle of the Revolutionary war. If the present constitution is compared with the original, two things are found: one, the present is four or five times as long as the original; and two, in spite of several revisions and numerous amendments the main structure of the constitution has not been greatly altered.

"Eight different times since the adoption of the original state constitution, the people of the state have voted on whether to overhaul it. Six times out of eight, the vote has been "yes," and five constitutional conventions have been held during the past 150 years. The sixth is scheduled for next spring.

Of the five conventions held, all proposed revised constitutions, of which three were adopted and two voted down. This means, according to Dr. Hart, that about every 40 years the state constitution has been overhauled and a new one adopted.

At one time a provision was made for submitting to voters in 1916 and every 20th year thereafter, and also at other times designated by legislative law, this question: "Shall there be a convention to revise the constitution and amend the same?" Apparently it was figured, says Dr. Hart, that about once in 20 years this question should be threshed over and settled. History shows that the question has come up about every 20 years. The last time was in 1918.

Clover Farm Store Holds Re-opening Sale This Week

Store Closed First of Week Preparatory to the Big Re-opening Sale Starting This Thursday.

The Andover Clover Farm Store re-opened for business this Thursday morning with a big re-opening sale, after being closed the first of the week to re-organize and replenish the stock. The store opened for inspection only Wednesday evening, drew favorable comment from those who visited it. Their advertisement on page four in this week's issue of the News will tell you of many of the bargains available at this re-opening sale.

As was stated in last week's News, the local Clover Farm Store has been sold to Murt J. Cullen, formerly of Mt. Morris, who comes to Andover with a wide experience in the grocery business.

The Andover Clover Farm store is one of over 10,000 independent retail grocery stores that have voluntarily associated themselves together for mutual good. The big organization gives these stores a tremendous buying power and enables them to meet the keenest competition with quality merchandise.

Andover Home Bureau Activities

The Andover Home Bureau met with Mrs. Henry Livermore Monday, October 11th, for the first two lessons on "Family Meals For Better Teeth," conducted by the Foods Leader, Mrs Claire Backus. The meeting was well attended and the lesson very helpful. Tasty refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next Home Bureau meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 21, at 10:30 A. M., in the Seventh Day Baptist Church parlors, when Miss Elda Jane Barber, our county Home Demonstration Agent will conduct a lesson in Furniture Refinishing. This will be an all day meeting with tureen dinner at noon. Bring sandwiches and one other dish.

Our two weeks' membership closed Oct. 2, at 5 o'clock P. M. The local contest gained 20 members for Mrs. Greene's side and 17 for Mrs. Smith's side, giving us 37 members, 27 being renewals and 10 new members. We expect to bring our membership to at least 40 in the next few weeks. The winning side will be entertained by the losing side in the near future.

In the county contest "The Southern Steppers" were victorious over "The Northern Go-Getters." Andover is on the Northern side.

The plans for the Northern Go-getters pay-off have been made. There will be a Victory Party on Friday Oct. 15, at 2 P. M. at the Temple Theatre in Wellsville. The entertainment will be a movie and talk by Dr. A. A. Allen of Cornell University on "Birds." The movie is in natural color and is a sound movie. It is indeed a rare privilege for both sides to have the opportunity to hear Dr. Allen and see the movie. All members in our unit are urged to be good sports and come to this Victory Party.

All members who have not renewed their membership this October are still Home Bureau members until Jan. 1, and are urged to attend the Victory Party.

The Thomas M. Lynch Post No. 397, American Legion, entertained its auxiliary at a 7 o'clock chicken dinner at Legion Hall last Thursday night.

Following a bountiful dinner served by the Legion boys, a very pleasant evening was enjoyed with music and cards.

Harold Hardy, Archie Bloss and Carlyle Myers were the Legion committee in charge of the evening.

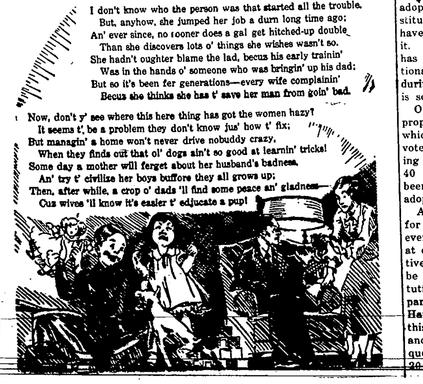
This Thursday evening the Legion holds its annual oyster supper at which it entertains the Legion band. The regular business meeting of the Legion will be held after the supper which is at 7 o'clock.

An efficiency expert is a fellow who is smart enough to tell you how to run your business and too smart to start one of his own.

Somethin' Needs Fixin' Somewhéres!

by Lawrence Hawthorne

This world 'd be a better place for almos' everybuddy
If women-folks would only quit a-makin' one mistake!
Now, I have give' this enterprise o' livin' lots o' study,
An' let me tell you here an' now some things give me a ache
Where apples often does the same inside a little duffer;
I mean jus' this: I don't see why a wife-an'-mother tries
To make her husban' over, cuz she thinks he's gettin' tougher.
When common-sense 'd tell her that ain't where her duty lies.



I don't know who the person was that started all the trouble.
But, anyhow, she jumped her job a durn long time ago;
An' ever since, no rooner does a gal get hitched-up double
Than she discovers lots o' things she wishes wasn't so.
She hadn't oughter blame the lad, becus his early trainin'
Was in the hands o' someone who was bringin' up his dad;
But so it's been for generations—every wife complainin'
Becus she thinks she has t' save her man from goin' bad.

Now, don't y' see where this here thing has got the women hazy?
It seems t', be a problem they don't know jus' how t' fix;
But managin' a home won't never drive nobuddy crazy,
When they finds out that ol' dogs ain't so good at learnin' tricks!
Some day a mother will forget about her husband's badness,
An' try t' civilize her boys buffore they all grows up;
Then, after while, a crop o' dads 'll find some peace an' gladness—
Cus wives 'll know it's easier t' educate a pup!
